Mrs. Bosse fled from Odessa in the face of the bolshevik advance, taking her children with her. After many hardships she reached the United States and is now staying with friends in Philadelphia. She is a daughter of General Adrian Zetoff, who supervised the building of a Russian battleship in Philadelphia some years ago. She does not know whether or not her husband is still alive, not having heard from him in six months.

Oregon Fruits May Find Market In Occident Is Growers' Newest Hope

San Francisco, Dec. 22.—Vast opportunity for Pacific coast orchardists, vineyardists and ranchers, for the disposal of any possible surplus production, in the markets of the Far East, will shortly be afforded by the installation of a line of fast, modern, combination freight and passenger carriers, to be operated from San Francisco to Manila and East India by the Pacific Mail Steamship company, was officially announced today. The highly improved service will be initiated by the shipping board steamer Creole State and Wolverine State, these vessels being due to arrive here from the Atlantic in January and February.

The announcement is of special interest to the farmers of the Pacific coast, because the ships were, at the suggestion of the Pacific Mail Steamship company, particularly designed to care for the transportation of the much produced of the western slope, and marks the beginning of a service which provides the necessary refrigerating space for commodities that could not be otherwise sent out of the United States. The ships will be operated in the famous Manila-East India service which was established by the Pacific Mail Steamship company.

The foregoing dispatch is reported to afford growers of Oregon an enlarged market of disposal for Oregon fruits. Demands of merchants of Singapore, Manila, Saigon, Calcutta and Colombo have long been clamoring for opportunity to market the fruits from Oregon's famed Hood River district.

They will return to Hay City, where the bridegroom is employed as a machinist.

London Society Is Selling Its Jewels, Report

London, Dec. 22.—Lively displays of jewels which were formerly chief feature of evening costumes in high society will be unfashionable this winter. Extraordinary private sales are being made at the present time by women of prominent families, some of them members of nobility, who are disposing of jewels that had been treasured for years.

Complete sets of diamonds, sapphires, rubies and other precious stones are being broken up and sold gradually so that their owners may be able to maintain their old homes in spite of the burden of taxation.

Jewelry is going out of fashion rapidly, and the European market is being glutted with precious stones. Vast quantities of gems were brought to Continental Europe from Russia and Asia. In addition, aristocratic families from Austria, Poland, Bulgaria, Turkey and other countries, hard hit by the war, have sent great collections of jewels to dealers in London, Paris and Antwerp to be sold for what they would bring.

At an exclusive dinner dance one hardly ever sees an old style tiara. Pearl and diamond necklaces and sunburst also are disappearing. The most that a woman of rank wears nowadays is a diamond brooch, possibly a string of pearls and perhaps inconspicuous earrings.

The wife of a British peer recently disposed of some of the larger stones in a tiara given her by her husband as a wedding present. Another woman of high family told her friends she was having broken up a beautiful set of sapphires and will sell them gradually at auction.

"Diamonds must go to save the home," has become the cry of society. It is a peculiar fact that women sell diamonds more readily than pearls. Many women will even risk giving up their fashionable homes to retain their pearls.

Allied Experts Discusses German Reparations

Brussels, Dec. 22.—Economic experts of five of the principal allied powers and Germany met here today in the first of a series of meetings to determine what Germany must pay for war reparations. The German representatives gave an impression of being on the defensive. The first meeting was called to order with former Premier Delacroix of Belgium presiding.

St. Paul Society Clubs Are Acting

St. Paul, Ore., Dec. 22.—There seems to be unusual activity in the social circles here this winter. Saturday occupied the big bazaar and sale held by the ladies of this vicinity. The ladies of the altar society will give a banquet Sunday in honor of the new Knights of Columbus order to be instituted here at that time. On Wednesday evening the pupils of Arbor Grove school will hold an entertainment at the school house. Thursday evening the pupils of the Raybell school will give an entertainment in the form of a Christmas social, and a little later the St. Paul Dramatic club will present a play.

There are numerous "hot ones" among the young people here this winter and they propose to keep entertainment at high tide during the coming months.

Miss Mildred Apperson of McMinnville, spent the week end here visiting at the home of Miss Margaret Griffith. She is a student at the University of Oregon.

Hero Criminals in Movies Are Barred in Pennsylvania

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 22.—The day of the hero criminal in motion pictures is over in Pennsylvania, according to a statement which has been taken by the State Board of Moving Picture Censors. Letters sent out to producers and distributors by Henry Starr Richardson, secretary of the board of censors, state the objections of the Pennsylvania board to any pictures where criminals are held up as heroes of education and refinement who live in luxury and outwit the authorities by superior wit, resources and audacity.

"All that glorifies crime or makes a criminal career or adventure fascinating or alluring," Secretary Richardson writes, "is considered by the board to be highly undesirable."

The board also announced that hereafter serial films will be considered only in their entirety and that whole films must be submitted for review and approval before a single installment can be released within the state.
