The Salem Shriners' club will give another of their formal dances tonight at the Moose hall—one which was postponed from Tuesday night, the regular date of the Shrine dances. Many of the Arabian Knights' club members will join in completing the holiday festivities with this dance.

Salem music lovers are looking forward to the first popular concert by the Salem Symphony orchestra, which will be given tomorrow afternoon in the armory at 3 o'clock. Dr. John R. Siles, conductor of the orchestra, has arranged a well balanced and pleasing program, which will include Chopin's famous Funeral March, and "The Triumphal Entry of Bo-Jaren," by Halvorsen, which were received with such a tremendous ovation at the first concert of the orchestra, several weeks ago.

The Salem O. A. C. club dance last Monday night at Dreamland auditorium was a splendid opening for the week, which has been so full of social functions for the younger folk. Over 250 couples joined the members of the club in making it a success, and enjoyed an evening of dancing.

The New Year's dancing party given at the Moose hall by Miss Ruth Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Barnes who is spending the holidays at home from the University of Washington, was one of the large events which made the holiday season one unusually merry for the younger set. The ball room had been decorated in keeping with the holiday season with large hanging baskets of red poinsettias and fern, and holly wreaths were hung around the wall. Hunt's orchestra furnished music for the evening and the Little Misses Florence Powers, Rosalie Buren, and Elaine Brown presided over the punch table. About 175 of the younger set were guests of Miss Barnes, many coming from out of town to be her guests.

Miss Patricia Prouty returned Thursday evening from a brief visit with friends in Portland and Tacoma. She was accompanied by Miss Mildred Dowling of Portland.

The fourth number of the Salem Lyceum course will be given Friday night at the armory. It will be the presentation of the DeMille quartet from Toronto, Canada, it is leading among the musical organizations of the Canadian city. The repertoire of the quartet includes selections from the great opera and operas as well as many of the English, Scotch and Irish melodies. Miss Hilda Buckingham is accompanist for them and the program includes several piano solos by her.

Noteworthy among the many programs of sacred Christian music given in Salem churches during the past week is that rendered last Sunday evening by the choir of the First Congregational church. A new and beautiful cantata, "In Excelsis," the composition of J. Lincoln Hall, was sung by a double quartette composed of the following: Mesdames Richard Robertson and J. W. Creech, sopranos; Mrs. John Hodges, alto; H. E. Glaisyer, tenors; Albert H. Gilie and Wm. P. Harris, basses. Mrs. Lillian Hartman presided at the organ and Miss Ruth Bedford accompanied at the piano. Of a character, somewhat different both in theme and musical setting, the cantata not only pleased the well filled auditorium of the church but was presented in a manner so to cause numerous requests for a repetition. Accordingly the entire program will be repeated by the choir next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.
