

Local Women Thanked For Jams, Jellies

An interesting letter, thanking Salem women for jams and jellies sent to tubercular soldiers at Fort Bayard, N. M., has been received by Miss Cornelia Marvin, state librarian, from Louise Singley, hospital librarian.

It follows:

"The cases of jams sent through your kind interests had arrived before I reported for duty here on Dec. 13th. My first duty—a very delightful one—therefore, on arriving, was to have these unpacked and prepared for distribution. I then conferred with the commanding officer, who was much interested and much pleased with the fruit. Only about 25 glasses and jars were broken and about 10 fermented. The rest came in splendid condition.

"After advising with some of the patients, it seemed wiser to distribute before New Year's rather than at Christmas, as it was thought that the patients would enjoy the extra feast more at that time.

"So we began distributing two days previous to New Year's. We reached in all about 584 patients—the sickest ones—carrying the jams personally to them, several ambulance patients helping to carry. Miss Greene or I went along each time to explain how and why these were sent. All the patients were much pleased and many expressed their gratitude very enthusiastically. Among these were a small group of nurses, quite sick, who were so delighted, for as they said, they are 'so seldom remembered,' in spite of their noble service to the men.

"Some very clever remarks were made, one boy asking Miss Greene, for instance, whether he might have his jam 'renewed,' just as he has renewed loans on his books. Another man remarked, 'Well, if this comes from Oregon, I am sure it is all right.'

"Many said, 'It is a mighty nice of these good ladies (The War Mothers' Association) to go to so much trouble for us. We certainly are grateful.' Some asked to write directly, and we, of course, gave them the necessary directions and encouraged them to do so.

"We reached this large number of patients in the following way. Since the jams came in both large and small sizes, we had two or more patients share the larger sizes. They were very good about doing this and in this way, all the very sick ones received some.

"I cannot express just how much joy it was to us personally to have this privilege. Many patients, too sick to do more than smile and look interested, sometimes too weak to talk at all, responded just a little. I mention this just to prove that it helps immensely to have someone send such delightful surprises to these very sick boys, for after all they are just boys, when so ill.

"Many are too ill to write, as you may know; some may be too self-conscious to do it, and for these, I will ask you to take the message of great gratitude to the Salem War Mothers' Association and to the American Legion of Salem, from this meagre attempt to describe just how it was all taken care of.

"I only regretted that Miss Stockett was not here to share this pleasure, for of course it should rightfully have been hers.

"We took some Kodak pictures of the trays, marked Oregon War Mothers' Association on one side and Salem American Legion on the other side filled and being carried to the wards. If these are successful I will send them on to you later."

Former Salemite Returns To Stay

Although a few Salemites, during the past few days, have shivered and suffered discontent with the twang in the air, causing them to envy the more fortunate who are now sojourning in the sunny south, N. J. Bowers, of Okanogan, Wash., and formerly of this city, contends that Salem is an ideal and congenial city for a home, for he has just returned from north central Washington, where the ground was covered with a foot and a half of snow and the thermometer hovering around 40 degrees below zero.

Mr. Bowers, according to reports plans to resume his residence in this city, and expects to build a home in West Salem.
