

G.O.P. Action On Whiskey Is Awaited

All Factions Anxious Concerning Steps to Be Taken by Harding; Firmness Is Expected.

By W. H. Aankins, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, March 2.—What about "booze" under the new administration? Both the "drys" and "wets" are anxious for an answer to that question. President Harding is expected to fulfill his promise to give the country "real enforcement." The booze laws are to be enforced in a different fashion, unless all signs fail. What seems probable is that new dry law chiefs, pursuant to the new administration policy, will begin by slashing "red tape" eliminating stage play and get down to an application of the Volstead act as it was framed.

President Harding comes into power to find that dry law administration is enveloped in utter confusion. Allowing for all of the logical mistakes that were to be expected in the first year of experiment under the dry law, officials will find in force a mass of rules and regulations in the hands of dry law branches that are not coordinated, and which fall in their purpose. Many of these rules, found to be impractical, and some of them ridiculous, will be rescinded, and workable rules substituted.

Higher officials having supervision of dry laws now frankly admit that prohibition enforcement would have proved less farcical had no attempt been made to impose restrictions of doubtful legality. It is a grand farce to see smuggling and bootlegging operations upon a gigantic scale, and even illicit whisky manufacturing to an extent that baffles enforcement directors, and to note the apparently helpless attitude of the government's prohibition bureau.

Whisky operations of an illicit character will be dealt with in a firm manner by the new administration, it is expected, by a co-ordination of the government's agencies.

During the last few weeks of the Wilson term, dry law enforcers have been stopping all of the possible holes through which whisky and other liquors have been leaking out to the bootleg trade. With the backing of the department of justice many new and severe regulations have been imposed. Among these was a rule putting the wholesale liquor dealers out of business and limiting legal sale of whisky through whisky manufacturers and wholesale druggists.

But in these recent steps taken by dry law chiefs there is much to indicate that the Volstead "experiments" were virtually scrapped, and there is serious doubt whether or not they will be allowed to remain in effect. If not overturned in the courts, where many of the rules are now being tested, it is thought many of them will be cancelled.

Fire Department Is Organized at Monitor, Report

Monitor, Or., Mar. 2.—Monitor has recently organized a fire department, and a few days ago purchased a new hose cart which completes the equipment, thus supplying a long felt want. The company will drill from time to time and expect to become efficient.

Miss Bertha Gillis returned to her studies after spending the week end with her parents here. Her mother, Mrs. A. W. Gillis, accompanied her to Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Miller and daughter of Corvallis, have been visiting in Monitor for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Martin are visiting over the recent arrival of a baby boy at their home here.

L. E. Dimick, who underwent an operation in the Portland hospital a few days ago is said to be improving nicely.

Hartley Lefebvre and Miss Minnie Sellweber, both well known young people of this vicinity, were married last Wednesday at the home of the bride's parents. Only intimate friends and relatives were present. Rev. Rogen of Monitor performed the ceremony. They returned this week from a wedding tour to Portland and are at home in Monitor, occupying the Miller cottage.

Gervais Couple Celebrates 60th Wedding Day

Gervais, Or., Mar. 2.—With all the children present, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Shafer celebrated the 60th anniversary of their wedding at their home in this city yesterday. It was a very pleasant function for the pioneer couple and the family of children and it seemed that the aged people found more pleasure in the event than in former years. Mr. and Mrs. Schafer received congratulations from their many friends in this vicinity during the day. Mr. Schafer celebrated his 95th birthday a few days previous. Mr. and Mrs. Schafer are well and comparatively strong and bid fair to celebrate more of such events as that of yesterday.

J. H. Gidden has returned from Portland where he has been receiving medical treatment. He was accompanied by his son who is visiting for a few days in Gervais.

L. P. Gleason is here from Coconino visiting the home folks. George Heason was also here during the week end from Beaverton.

Wood is going to be cheaper in his part of the country. Woodcutters have been canvassing the city during the week for buyers, delivering to be made in the fall, and numerous orders have been placed.

Mrs. Ruben Custer and daughter left Friday for Ashland and Medford, where they will spend a few days visiting friends.

Supreme Court Holds Booze Tax Laws Are Invalid

Washington, Feb. 28.—Kentucky laws levying a special tax on liquors withdrawn from bonded warehouse were held invalid today by the supreme court. Several millions of dollars in taxes already collected by the senate were involved. The court sustained lower courts which had granted an injunction to the Kentucky Distilleries & Warehouse company and J. A. Friebert company, preventing interference by the state authorities to withdrawal of liquor on which the special tax had not been paid.

Cooper Beat Her Wife Complains

Dallas, Or., Mar. 2.—Suit was filed in the circuit court by Anna B. Cooper against Pearl C. Cooper, seeking a divorce. The Coopers were married at Independence in 1916, where Mrs. Cooper now resides. There is one child aged 3 years.

Mrs. Cooper alleges cruel and inhuman treatment and states that at one time Cooper struck her violently in the face with his fist and called her vile names and accused her of infidelity. Such treatment caused her to leave her home in January, 1921, in order to protect herself, she alleges.

She asks the court for a decree and desires that the custody of the minor child be given to her mother, Mrs. Minnie Saunders of Independence. She also asks for costs of promotion of the suit.

Eugene To Have New Drug Store

Eugene, Or., Mar. 2.—A new drug store to be known as "Carroll's Pharmacy" will be opened in this city at 783 Willamette street, in the room now occupied by the Koh-I-Noor confectionery in the Coleman building, on May 1. A lease on these two rooms was taken today by R. E. Carroll, of Junction City, and E. E. Carroll of Harrisburg.

The new druggists are brothers and have had many years experience in the business. Both are registered pharmacists. They announced after signing the lease today that they would begin at once to assemble a large stock and fix up the store to make it a strictly modern store that will be a real business addition to the city.

Tigers and Giants Train in Texas

(By International News Service.)
San Antonio, Tex., March 2.—With the training squads of the Detroit Tigers and New York Giants due here about March 1, the baseball fans are booming up interest in the pre-season exhibition games.

The Giants will train at Texas League park, while Ty Cobb's Tigers will gambol on an especially-prepared diamond at Brackenridge park. Additional locker space and shower baths have been installed at the club house of the league park, and an entirely new clubhouse, with all modern facilities, has been erected for the Cobb performers at Brackenridge park.

A tentative schedule of games with other major league teams and with Texas league teams has been arranged as follows:

March 5-6—New York Giants vs. San Antonio Broncos.

March 12-13—Giants vs. Tigers.

March 19-20—Tigers vs. San Antonio Broncos.

Mid-week games will be staged between the Tiger and Giant crews of first and second string men.

The venerable and scrapping John McGraw has reserved rooms at the Meinger hotel for his giants. The Tigers will be housed at the "Traveler's" hotel.

Country clubs will be thrown open for entertainment of members of both teams and special trips through historic Spanish missions, including the Alamo, are being arranged.

Fire at Springfield last week destroyed the Baker jewelry store and three other buildings, causing a loss of $20,000.

During the fifty-two years of presiding at the little desk just outside the secretary's door, Eddie has served many distinguished chiefs. With characteristic reserve, however, he is cautious of expressing a preference. Hobnobbing with diplomats all his life, he has acquired to a considerable degree their manner of speaking and there is just a suggestion of that diplomatic "caginess" which is the bane of newspaper correspondents reporting the activities of the state department.

Throughout his diplomatic career, however, Eddie has labored under one handicap which, in part, at least, arises from physical peculiarities of figure over which he has no control. In showing the way to a strange diplomat it is his custom to proceeed the visitor by a few feet, meantime lending verbal encouragement by the remark: "Walk this way, please, sir."

If it is recalled that Eddie is probably the bow-leggedest man in the world, it will not be difficult to understand that inexperienced diplomats are sometimes amazed at the little man's polite request.

Why Be Afraid of Good Food?

Eat What You Like Best But Follow It With a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet

When the stomach sours or becomes gassy, with heartburn, it needs the alkaline effect to offset the acid condition. This you get from one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Relief is usually very prompt. The regular use of these tablets after meals gives the stomach and small intestine substantial help to digest food and you will then be bold enough to eat baked beans, fried eggs, sausage, buckwheat cakes and many other things you thought would make your stomach miserable. Get a 60 cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store and you will then eat whatever you like and be fortified against the acid, sour stomach due to indigestion or dyspepsia.

HEAL SKIN DISEASES

Every Year to be Leap Year Bimeby; Is Claim

By Earl C. Reeves, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, March 2.—Every year will be leap year by and by. For the scientists and feminists are joining hands to prove that it should be so.

All along the Darwinian line, so to speak, it is the female of the species that does the selecting of a mate—until mankind is reached. There, also, some—both scientists and feminists—admit the female of the species does a bit of selecting. But it's only indirectly. And it's all wrong.

Sir John Cockburn started the ball rolling in a scientific lecture. Scientifically, it seems, woman should propose. It's a mistake, perhaps, that she hasn't been doing it all along.

Dr. Knight, of the Freedom League, says she and other women present at the lecture quite agree with Sir John.

"Women ought to be free to choose the father of their children," Dr. Knight contends. "At present they are not entirely free and they never will be until complete economic equality of women and men has been achieved."

"Of course, most girls select their husbands nowadays, but it is done in an indirect—one might almost say underhanded—way. Why should it not be done quite openly? If a girl likes a man and feels that she wants him as her husband, it ought not be considered immodest on her part to make the first advances. The man might be too shy."

"A girl would instinctively pick a man who would make her a good husband and I don't see any reason why woman shouldn't propose."

"Men can say no just as a girl can. They would soon get used to it."

Mrs. M. L. Seaton-Tiedeman, secretary of the Divorce Reform union, thinks it might help put her society out of business. There would be fewer divorces.

ALL A MATTER OF HABIT

An Automatic Heart. On the Hot Iron. The Word of a Friend. Plenty of Good Habits.

AN EDITORIAL ON BUYING

MAN is a creature of habit.

Some of his habits are good and some of them are bad. Most of them are good, because the human animal is so delicate an organism that there has to be a republican majority of good habits to keep him going.

In fact, good habits are not only an economy of effort—making it possible to accomplish more with less attention and less effort of the will—they are also the fundamental presuppositions that make life at all possible.

The heart has a good habit of pumping blood without your having to think about it.

The lungs have a good habit of supplying the system with oxygen.

The nerves have a good habit of sending instantaneous messages to the brain about what is happening to you.

The nerves have such good habits that when they send the message to your brain that your hand has touched something too hot they do not wait for the General Staff in your head to call a conference of your numerous impulses and inhibitions to determine whether or not to remove the hand from the hot object. Your nerves have a habit of sending back a message about what to do right away.

The same thing holds true of affairs on a higher plane.

A man keeps his contracts, pays his bills, supports his family, votes, and goes through all the ordinary actions of daily life as a citizen and civilized human being because he has these good habits, and he leads a good life when he has good habits.

A man buys largely as a matter of habit.

He buys at a place he likes because he is well treated and he finds the values satisfactory. More likely than not, the word of a friend or the printed word of a friendly advertisement got him there to begin with.

And the store where he buys lets him know about any special sales of stocks, pleasantly and effectively, because they have the habit of telling him such things through their advertising, and he has the habit of noting what they say because he has the habit of reading advertisements with interest and confidence.

The American people are a friendly, good-natured race. While we have enough bad habits, we also can look ourselves over impartially and see that we have some good ones.

Pre-eminently characteristic of us is our habitual interest in and appreciation of advertising.

We know that this interest is a good habit because we know what it can do and has done for every one of us.

Advertising itself is a good habit.

In fact, advertising and reading advertising are two of the best American habits!
