Silverton To Vote School Bond Issue

Silverton, Mar. 31.—The popular phrase, "standing room was at a premium," wouldn't express the true situation at the mass meeting, held in the high school auditorium Friday evening when patrons of the Silverton district met to discuss ways and means of providing more school room, and better facilities.

The question of bonding the district was voted down at a recent election because many patrons supposed that the purpose of the bond issue, amounting to $60,000, was mainly to provide a swimming pool and other equipment, which the patrons believed they could not afford. It has since been learned, however, that this was not the object of the directors and another election will be called early next month, when the question of a $15,000 bond or a $60,000 bond will be settled. At the mass meeting Friday, committees were appointed to investigate the true situation in the Silverton schools, and the entire day was spent on Monday in making the investigation. It resulted in a decision that something must be done at once, and it is probable that the election will be called not later than April 1. It seems that the sentiment of the meeting was favorable to the $60,000 bond issue. There are several, however, who will oppose this question to the last, and it is expected that much campaigning will be done during the next few days to defeat the larger bond issue.

Wescott Sells Aurora Paper

Aurora, Mar. 31.—N. C. Westcott, for the past ten years the editor and publisher of the weekly Aurora Observer, Tuesday sold the newspaper to Paul Robinson of Banks, Oregon, who was formerly the editor and owner of the Banks Herald. Mr. Robinson will assume control April 1st.

Mr. Westcott bought the Observer in 1911 and has been prominently identified with Aurora's civic activities since that time. He has always been deeply interested in improving the local schools and has been one of the chief promoters of the union high school project in Aurora.

"My plans for the future are very indefinite," said Mr. Westcott, "but I will probably publish a newspaper in some larger field somewhere in Oregon. I have not the slightest idea, at this time, where it will be."

Million Dollar Road Bonding Issue Approved

Farmers from various parts of the county, representing many road districts, opposed the plan, alleging that lateral roads were being neglected while the Pacific highway was receiving the benefit of all available money.
