What's New On The Market

Strawberries are down to five cents a box. The price to the producer from the retailer is generally $1. On account of an over supply one of the largest grocery stores in the city turned down berries offered at this price. In some stores the price per crate is $1.20, in others for higher grade berries—$1.50, reaching a price of $1.75 per crate for the very best. For canning purposes, however, those selling for $1.20 are plenty good enough. If the retailers stock up and have to refuse berries offered by the growers this week, the housewife may buy her berries for far less than a dollar.

Rhubarb is just about through. That on the market has been shipped in and retails at three pounds for a quarter. Cucumbers are getting more plentiful, the price now 20 cents each or two for 35. Local Oregon peas are selling for 20 cents a pound. The head lettuce on the market is in bad shape.

Cantaloupe announced for Saturday arrived today with the price quoted at 20 cents each. They are small but good in appearance.

Support of Library Is Made Sure

The support of the North Salem branch library was assured at the meeting of the Highland Mothers club held on Thursday afternoon when sufficient funds were reported from the entertainment given last month. The librarian reported four hundred three books and twenty two magazines loaned from the library during the month of May. This makes an average of one hundred books borrowed each time the library is opened, which occurs once a week.

William Hoppes, assistant superintendent of Salem public schools, spoke before the meeting concerning the educational welfare of the children of Salem and told some of the things being done to keep up the efficiency of the city schools. In business session, the Mothers club voted to support the ten mill levy to be voted on at the coming election. The picture contest was won by the second grade, but as the third grade has won the contest the most times during the year, the prize was awarded them to keep permanently. Refreshments were served from a prettily appointed table at the close of the session.

Survivor of Greely Trip To Arctic Dead

San Jose, Cal., June 6.—Maurice Connell, United States weather forecaster here, and said to have been one of three surviving members of the Greely expedition to the Arctic, 1881-84, died here Friday, aged 69 years.

Two members of the party still are alive and reside in the east. Maurice Connell was one of the seven near-dead, emaciated men Commander Winfield Scott Schley found when he went to the relief of Lieutenant A. W. Greely's Arctic expedition in 1884.

The Greely expedition, consisting of twenty five men, had set out in 1881 to establish an international polar station. It reached 83 degrees, 24 minutes latitude then the farthest north, discovered new land north of Greenland and crossed Grinnell land to the great polar sea. Then came the tragedy. The expedition failed to meet the relief ship Proteus, which had been crushed in the ice, and was forced to take refuge near bleak Cape Sabine, where many perished of starvation. One member of the party was ordered shot by Greely for the repeated theft of food. When Commander Schley found the seven survivors they had been 42 hours without food of any kind. Connell, unconscious when found, was for the moment thought dead. For three days he lay in a stupor and when revived aboard the ship he thought himself in another world.

Professor Budlong Puts Tanlac to Test

PROF. C. J. BUDLONG, MANCHESTER, N. H. "It's an actual fact, I'm in good health for the first time in thirty years and I owe my present splendid condition to Tanlac and nothing else," was the emphatic statement of Prof. C. J. Budlong, well known and highly respected citizen of Manchester, N. H., residing at 42 School street. "Practically all my life I had had rheumatism, and when I say rheumatism I mean every word of it. It was all over my body and especially bad in my feet and legs and there were times when I couldn't get from my bed to my chair without help. And from the time I was a boy I couldn't sit down and eat a good meal without being in misery afterwards and I would have terrible pains around my heart and frequent attacks of palpitation and dizziness. "Well, before I had finished my first bottle of Tanlac I realized it was different from anything I ever tried. It suited my case exactly. And now for almost the first time since I can remember I can eat anything I want and digest it. I haven't an ache or a pain and have gained fifteen pounds in weight. I just feel good all over and am full of life and energy these days. Everywhere I go I talk Tanlac. It hasn't an equal." (adv)
