R. J. Valiton, a Montana merchant, who recently purchased the P. E. Fullerton ladies ready to wear shop, has arrived in Salem with his family and intends making this his home. Mr. Valiton has had many years experience in his line and has spent several seasons in eastern markets buying ladies ready to wear. The active management of the Fullerton store has been taken over by Mr. Valiton and from now on it will be known as "Valiton's." Extensive improvements will be made on the interior of the store in the very near future as Mr. Valiton wishes to offer his trade the height of comfort and service.

C. D. Adams, the local contractor and roofing expert, has purchased from Fred Thompson a five acre loganberry and prune tract located on the Pacific highway in the Hayesville section. Mr. Adams plans to build an attractive home on the property. O. K. DeWitt, of the Peary brothers agency, who handled the deal, reports that there is a decided tendency on the part of business men to develop homes on small fruit tracts located close enough to town to permit living on the tract and at the same time handling their city business. He states that many ex-service men expect to acquire properties of this sort in case the bonus bill passes.

New Election Board System Not To Be Used

Due to the additional expense and to the shortness of the ballot at this election, Marion county will not use the second board method of counting ballots during tomorrow's election and which was provided by an act passed by the last legislature, according to information given out by County Clerk U. G. Boyer, this morning.

Four additional ballot boxes would be required for each precinct in the county, the expense of the board would be doubled and the storage room for the boxes would have to be enlarged stated the county clerk. The law making it discriminatory with the county as to whether the system should be used, the matter will be taken up at the December term of the county court.

Instead of coming on at 10 a. m. as the law provides, the second election board will not come on until 8 p. m. Under the provisions of the new measure the second board counting the ballots cast with the first board. When the registration is less than 150, the first board acts as the second board.

A letter sent out to the different election boards throughout the county from the clerk's office states that 4000 voters' names have been removed from the files thru failure to register, and asks that care be used in swearing in such voters.
