Bergdoll, draft evader, to escape, was made today by Major A communication from the allied Bruce R. Campbell, of the army, high commission at Oppeln in before a house investigating committee.

"Mrs. Bergdoll's statement is false in every particular," Major Campbell said. "There is not word of truth in Ht-"

The charge was made before the committee this week by Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll, mother of the fugitive.

Asked about a deposit of four thousand five hundred dollars with a New York brokerage firm about the time Mrs. Bergdoll swore she gave him the money, Major Campbell said he had been paid a cash sum from the sale of real estate. He would produce evidence to corroborate the statement, he said.

"The old woman lied when she said she gave me fifty dollars to a cussed copper."
