Alaska Doomed

Mariners Say Ill-Fated Craft Was Marked Ship; Search for Bodies Is Continued

Eureka, Cal., Aug. 9 .- The oil soaked and wreckage-strewn beach line from Cape Mendocino to Eureka, a distance of forty miles, is being patrolled by fisher men and many other searchers today in the hope that the sea will give up more bodies of the wrecked steamer Alaska. Significant hits of flotsam have been coming in for many hours, mostly clothing and other personal articles. The sweep of the current against the Mendocino light already has brought one body ashore at that
