Alaska Doomed

 ed prayers as the waters crept up on the port deck. Nearby were some companions. The waters suddenly swirled about the praying girls. They called to Mrs. Oliver but she did not answer. The girls were saved. Mrs. Oliver was lost. Three other girls, Miss Mabel Landberg and Miss Ida Carlson of St. Paul, Minn., and Miss Francis Ekestrom of South Minneapolis also clung together as the greedy waters approached but they were quickly rescued.

Praise for Anyox
 Opinions vary widely as to the time taken by the Alaska to sink. Crew members said it was but fifteen minutes while some passengers held that it was as long as forty minutes.

Praise for the captain and crew of the rescue ship Anyox was on every lip.
 It developed today that the Anyox went to considerable risk to effect the rescue. Receiving the first S. O. S. when five miles distant, she obtained the Alaska's position and then sent a message "We are coming full speed."
 Then she went plunging thru the sabbie fog, blowing her siren continuously and sending up rockets.

Soon she picked up the first lifeboat and a member of the Alaska's crew told Captain S. Snoddy of the Anyox to beware of the heavy wreckage for fear it would crush his vessel.

In Thick of Wreckage
 "I am going into the thick of the wreckage," Captain Snoddy answered. He steered straight into the dark masses in the water, picking up the Alaska's boats in rapid succession and rescuing many from spars, doors and other floating objects. The drenched survivors in the lifeboats cheered and prayed as the Anyox's searchlight picked them out and the big British seamen pulled them to safety on the decks.

Petition For Rehearing of Hawley Case

Petition for a rehearing of the divorce suit brought by Marjorie Hawley against Willard Hawley Jr. of Oregon City was filed with the supreme court here this morning by attorneys for Willard Hawley.

The petition refers to the opinion of the supreme court on July 30 reversing the decree of the Clackamas county circuit court and denying a divorce to either party to the suit as "a departure from law as it has prevailed for years in this state" and asks that the case be reconsidered by the court in banc.

"We submit that a rehearing should be granted in this case and a divorce given to the defendant on account of the false charges of crime preferred against him and not proven," concludes a lengthy brief accompanying the petition for a rehearing. "Whatever disposition the court desire to make of the custody of the child or whatever provision it is deemed proper shall be made for its support the defendant will cheerfully accept."

The supreme court in an opinion written by Justice Brown declared that the evidence presented in the case did not entitle either party to a decree of divorce and pointed out that a mere desire for divorce did not justify the courts of the state in severing the marital tie.

Portland Colonel In Salem Today

Colonel G. W. S. Stevens, army recruiting officer with headquarters in Portland, stopped in the city today with a party of friends on a short automobile trip to pay his respects to Adjutant General George A. White of the state troops. The colonel said he expected to see the opening of recruiting offices which have been closed since March 15 before the middle of September, although the army will probably not maintain many branch offices. About 40 per cent of the men who apply for enlistment will be ex-service men he estimated, and anticipates a big rush to the offices when enlistments are again opened, which will allow the army to pick its men to an advantage.

Driver Little Hurt When Car Goes Over Bank

D. E. Hart, local real estate man, was badly bruised and shaken and narrowly escaped serious injury about 9:30 o'clock last night when an automobile which he was driving plunged over a 25-foot bank about two miles north of Salem on the Wallace road.
 The accident was reported to police headquarters by A. Bredwell of Portland soon after it happened, but it was not until after 3 o'clock this morning that Hart was found wandering aimlessly around about 50 yards from the wreck by Patrolman Troy Branson.

Hart says that he was alone in the car when the accident occurred and that he does not know how it happened. He says that he recovered consciousness in a nearby barn sometime after the accident and does not remember how he got there.

Persons who saw the wreck of the machine, which turned over twice and landed bottom-side up in a small stream, say they cannot see how Hart escaped being killed.
 The police report on the accident shows the license of the wreck car was taken out by N. H. Nickols, 1415 East Seventeenth street, Portland.

Complaints by John Bayne, 414 Bellevue street, and Manager Bishop of the Willamette Valley Transfer company, found their way onto the blotter at the police station this morning, but neither party swore out formal charges against the other.
 Bayne's complaint that one of the transfer company's trucks cut the corner of State and Commercial streets held first place on the blotter. Immediately under it was the complaint by Bishop that Bayne had used abusive and profane language in front of the former's place of business.

School Board Will Decide Indian Riddle

Whether the local school board will allow Chemawa Indians to attend the local high school without paying the regular $95 tuition will probably be settled by the school board at its meeting tonight in the high school. The question arose when the government announced that it would no longer pay the tuition for the Indians as it has done in the past.

Some members of the board have expressed themselves as in favor of allowing the Indians to attend free, although it will mean the withdrawal of over $1000 income which is badly needed since the proposed budget was rejected.
 A couple of nominations for the teaching staff of the city will probably also be brought up for the approval of the board.

Legion Taboo Endorsing Of Organizations

Endorsement by local American legion posts of any organization, commercial or fraternal, which is not directly connected with the legion is tabooed, according to orders received by the local post from the state department this morning.

The order states that all sorts of organizations have asked different posts to lend their endorsement to movements, but that the only body which can officially endorse such is the national executive committee of the legion.
 Further information from the state department says that Oregon and California are tied in passage of legislation affecting the veterans of the world war, Oregon and California, having passed 13 measures, Washington 16, and all other states less.

On September 9th, 223 farms will be opened to homestead entry by soldiers of the world war on the North Platte irrigation project, Wyoming, and one week later 57 farms will be thrown open under the Shoshone project in the same state. About 19,000 acres of land are included in the two openings. These are for no one but soldiers of the world war. Detailed information concerning them can be obtained by writing to the U. S. Reclamation Service, Washington, D. C.
