Shots Lead Posse

(Continued from Page One.) had been seen skulking in an apple orchard in the same heavily wooded district Tuesday morning; that a small avalanche of loose dirt and gravel was started down the high bluff along the water during the darkness of the early morning hours yesterday, and that footprints were found in the orchard and at the top of the bluff where the gravel was loosened have all served to strengthen the opinion of prison officials and others that Gardner still is on the island and is seeking opportunity to get to the mainland.

Seen In Orchard

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 8.—Officers conducting the search on McNeil Island for Roy Gardner, escaped bandit, today maintained their belief that Gardner still was on the island. Last night they increased the flotilla of boats to prevent the departure of the outlaw to the mainland, where, the opinion was expressed, Gardner has a money cache instead of near Sacrafrauto where he once led officers on a wild goose chase.

Warden Maloney was confirmed in his belief that Gardner still is on the island by the story of Thomas Williams yesterday that he had seen a skulking figure in an orchard on the west side of the island. The 16 year old boy's story apparently was borne out upon investigation as fruit trees had been stripped and there were imprints of a man's shoes on the ground.

Once Boxer, Report

Thus far, however, no one has reported a sight of the elusive bandit. Gardner is said to have had no opportunity to familiarize himself with the island. He also, according to Warden Maloney, wore at last accounts the blue-gray prison uniform which he will have to dispose of if he determines to make a break for the mainland.

Gardner at one time fought in Northwest boxing rings under the name of Young Fitzsimmons according to Ed Hagen, former Seattle policeman and former heavy-weight boxer, who is serving a two year sentence on McNeil Island for stealing liquor from a customs warehouse.

Hagen declared he had recognized Gardner as Young Fitzsimmons upon Gardner's arrival at the prison

Hagen has records which show he knocked out Young Fitzsimmons in Yakima September 24, 1910, in the second round.

New York Stocks

New York, Sept. 8.—Resistance to the recent rise in the stock market was indicated at the opening of today's session. Mexican Petroleum, Studebaker and American sugar were under moderate pressure, but Baldwin Locomotive, Crucible Steel, Pan-American Petroleum, General Asphalt, Chandler and some of the rails were firm to strong. Within the first half hour, however, the list strengthened, Baldwin leading at a gain of more than two points. Early quotations for foreign exchange showed a strong upward movement in the British rate, while marks or German bills fell to their lowest quotation in 18 months.
