TODAY

"I'm in favor of the 1925 fair," admitted Alex LaFollett, state senator of Marion county, "because after the 1905 exposition Jefferson Myers turned back $40,000. Say, come up to the state fair next week and look at the Marion county exhibit and I'll show you some of the finest peaches grown anywhere—I raised 'em myself. And if I get a chance, I'll sneak one of the peaches out for you to eat." Although Senator LaFollett likes to vote "no" on pretty much everything submitted to a legislature when he is a member, he isn't voicing protest against a special session to take up the financing of the 1925 exposition.—Portland Oregonian.

OBITUARY

John N. Baker was born September 5, 1862, and died September 17, 1921, at Winlock, Washington, at the age of 59 years and 12 days. Mr. Baker was born and reared on the W. H. Baker donation land claim northeast of Turner, Oregon. He became a millwright by occupation and as such spent seven years in Alaska. Most of his life was spent in Oregon and Washington. For the past two years his health has gradually failed until death took him. During his illness he was lovingly cared for by his sister, Winnie, who sacrificed much for the welfare of her brother. He passed away at her home in Winlock, Washington and the body was brought to Salem for burial.

Those that knew him spoke well of him as a man of very kindly temperament and characteristics. Many of his old friends attended the funeral services at the Terwilliger parlors Monday at 2 p. m. R. L. Putnam, pastor of the Court street Christian church, this city, conducted the service. Interment followed in the cemetery at Turner, Oregon, where his body was laid in the same plot with that of his parents.

He is survived by five sisters, Mrs. Mary Howd, and Mrs. Abner Lewis, of Salem; Mrs. Emma Cole, of Jefferson; Mrs. Minnie West, of Winlock, Washington; and Mrs. Hattie Wilkerson, Wetsler, Idaho.

The appeal of the citizens of Coburg, Lane county, for an order requiring the Southern Pacific railroad company to maintain an agent at that point, was denied by the public service commission in an order issued Tuesday. The order points out that materially decreased business due to stage and truck competition and the falling off of the lumber business at that point has made for a condition which does not justify the expense of an agent.

Joseph Doelzel, of Chemawa, last night notified the police that it was he who had been held up and robbed on the Pacific highway, north of the Valley Packing company's plant, Monday night. Doelzel said that he was accosted by a lone bandit who wore a white handkerchief over his face.

Non-Partisans To Put Candidates In Field for Offices

Albany, Or., Sept. 21.—R. E. Herriek, a farmer residing near Barlow, Or., has been soliciting memberships for the non-partisan league in Linn county the last week. This information was revealed here yesterday by Mr. Herriek, who came to Oregon two years ago from Montana.

Mr. Herriek asserted he had found sentiment in Linn county "fairly favorable" to the league. He said he understood it to be the plan of the league to put forth candidates in the republican primaries next year for justices of the supreme court, governor, members of the legislature and probably other offices.

Circus Returns to Salem Bigger and Better Than Ever

The parade passed in review before a direct curb spectators "promptly on the hour named." This was a great surprise for countless numbers of people had an idea that the "circus people would play a game of whist or have a little snooze before the parade" or do other stunt in order to keep the spectator of the curb waiting. One of the dot principal is indeed an innovation but other thousands of prospective parade viewers missed flashy parade which proved to be the most creditable circus procession ever seen in Salem.

A Flash-Bang Program. Here is what one saw Sells-Floto in all its marvelous glory. The big tent has a seating capacity of more than 10,000 people and it was well-filled this afternoon for the first of the two performances to be given here today. An excellent concert band under the direction of Don Montgomery rendered an hour's program before the circus proper commenced and it is decidedly doubtful if a circus audience ever enjoyed a better or more catchy musical menu. A big pipe organ was couple up with the band and this innovation swelled the volume of melody double-fold.

"New Oregon" Prune to Be Exhibited

This remarkable new prune which was originated near Salem by Mr. Andrew Vercler, will be on display at the state fair by the Oregon Nursery company, of Orenco, Oregon, to whom Mr. Vercler has given exclusive propagating rights. Anyone contemplating planting prune trees this fall should ascertain the advantages this new prune affords before arranging elsewhere for his trees. Some of the best informed prune men of this section pronounce it a more desirable prune than the Italian. New Oregon trees this year have a 100 per cent crop.

See our representation at our booth in the agricultural building during fair week.

three rings and two stages were filled with big, clean and fast working acts which caused one to figuratively become dizzy. The only time that the spectator could rest his weary neck was during "a thriller." Seven times, "the gentlemanly announcer" stepped forth first on one stage and then to another and in loud voice informed the world and audience alike that something out of the ordinary was about to take place. And seven times the audience had their eyes riveted on "a thriller that was thrilling." The "Poodles" Hanna family of riders caught the particular fancy of the audience and for the first time a Salem circus audience demanded encores. "Poodles" responded and again tackled his big horse much to the delight of the spectators who proved their admiration for him not only as a circus clown de luxe
