Shot as She Emerges From Friend's Home With Man by Distant Relative; Letters Blame Liquor and Fast Living New York, Sept. 23 .- A double shooting in which women were the principles resulted early today in the serious wounding of Miss Mildred Hanan, a daughter of the late Alfred P. Hanan, wealthy shoe manufacturer, by Mrs. Grace Lawes, a distant relative of Miss Hanan and a daughter of Mrs. M. E. Dittmans, of San Francisco. Mrs. Lawes then committed

The shooting occurred in Brooklyn as Miss Hanan and John S. Boland, an exporter, emerged from an apartment house where they had been visiting; Boland attributed the shooting to jealousy and admitted, the police said, that he had quarreled recently with Mrs. Lawes about Miss Hanan, He said Mrs. Lawes had been concealed in the shadows near the apartment house until he stepped out and began shooting.

After firing three bullets into Miss Hanan's bedy, Mrs. Lawes then shot herself in the head, dying instantly, Miss Hanan in a hospital refused to discuss the shooting. Miss Hanan's condition was reported to be critical but not necessarily fatal.
