Of Interest To Women

Scenarioist Cousin Of Mrs. Byrd

It will be interesting to Salem scenarioists to know that the author of "The Affairs of Anatol," "The Affairs of Anabel," and "The Affairs of Anabelle," is a cousin of Mrs. W. H. Byrd, of this city. Mrs. Byrd's cousin, the author of the "Affairs" series, is an intelligent, alert woman, who has seen "Joan," "The Whispering Woman," "Something to Think About," and finally, "The Affairs of Anatol." She will testify that she is the country's foremost scenarioist, and she has prepared stories for all the Cecil DeMille pictures.

Her latest article featuring Miss MacPherson appeared in the August issue of Picture Play, when she interviewed upon her return from Europe. She scoffs at the idea that European pictures are being feared by American scenarioists. "You have not seen any European picture," she says. "The cost of the picture is not the factor to encourage audiences to go away from them. And that the showing of most foreign-made films would result in the censor allowing them to be shown, which he wouldn't."

A print of "Forbidden Fruit," by Mr. DeMille from a story by Jennie MacPherson, arrived in the city last week. The Miss MacPherson was in the city, and she saw it in company with Ernest Lubitsch. He is reported to be very interested in the dream scenes, but admitted that he could not understand the boy-and-girl love affair. It was too wholesome.

Miss MacPherson was also interviewed by the Detroit Journal, Detroit, being her girlhood home. In the interview she brought to light an interesting bit of news for the picture censor. While in Europe she was shown the remarkable Italian screen version of the Bible, a 15-reel picture. "It will be shown in this country," she says. "It is the Bible, faithfully, recently placed upon the screen. Yet censorship has made it impossible to present in picture form as it really is, so adhering to the censor's idea, the censorship board will leave so little of the Bible that there will not be enough to show on the screen."

Miss MacPherson, whose home is now Los Angeles, has never visited Salem.

Horse Show Will Open On Tuesday

Measured in terms of popular interest, the horse show has come back with a rush. Only a few years ago the scattering horse shows held were scant of entries and poorly attended. Since that time each year has seen a betterment of conditions until at the present time horse shows are being held from one end of the country to the other. Whereas in the old days they were considered as sort of society event, shunned by the general public, now the seating capacity of almost every show building is taxed to the utmost and the seats are occupied by all kinds and conditions of people.

The growth of interest in equine affairs is remarkable and may be due in part to the fact that the fine horse has become a rarity on the streets and in the parks, and, as the editor of the Show Horse Chronicle says, "is a strange and unaccustomed object, that people no longer see with anything like the common degree of familiarity which formerly was the case." The horse now has an attraction not only for those who love him for old times sake, but a fine horse is an actual curiosity to a large portion of the public, and inasmuch as horses will be seen only at the horse shows and under the specific conditions that exist favorable to their public exhibition, it seems entirely probable that as a form of public entertainment the horse show has a secure and definite place in the future.

Another horse show factor that may have bearing on the great crowds that have attended recent shows is the fact that of late years the hunter class has come into its own in America and whereas in years gone by there might have been an occasional showing of the timber-toppers now, the greater half of the show was comprised in the saddle class and there are possibly eighteen or twenty jumping events in the program.

While the dyed-in-the-wool horsemen may prefer to see an exceptionally good roadster or pair of high-steppers, there is no doubt but that the average spectator prefers the action, sensation and competition of the jumping classes.

The Salem state fair horse show opens Tuesday night and continues until Friday. By far the finest and most extensive number of horses that have ever shown in Salem will compete in the 45 classes on the program for the four evenings. There will be twelve jumping events, several of them recent innovations in the show show ring.

Tuesday night the handy hunter class will be a good evening's entertainment of itself and well worth going a distance to see. As the last jump in this event calls for the horses clearing a table and two benches. There are eleven other numbers on the evening's program and it should not be missed.

Oswald West, president of the Portland Hunt Club, and H. M. Kerron, of the riding academy, will head a large delegation of enthusiasts to Salem. Among the Portlanders coming are: Mrs. R. Dudley, Mrs. F. A. Dooty, Mrs. A. M. Cronin, Mrs. James Nicol, Mrs. F. A. Martin, Mrs. E. C. Grelle, Mrs. H. M. Kerron, Miss Elizabeth Bacon, Miss Pauline West, Miss Ethelred McInnity, The Misses Dooty, Miss Jean Sheen, Miss Nan Manion, Walter D. Honeyman, Oswald West, A. M. Cronin, Freda Martin, A. P. Fleming, James Nicol, Lieutenant Pat Riley, H. M. Kerron, C. H. Leadbetter, Harvey Dick, Thomas Greer, Claude D. Starr, R. W. Schmeer, W. U. Sawerson, O. M. Plummer, Douglas Nicol.

Miss Jones Bride Of Mr. Boise

At seven o'clock tonight at the First Methodist church of this city, the marriage of Miss Lucile Jones and Reuben Breyman Boise will be solemnized, the Rev. Richard N. Avison, of Wilbur Centenary church, Portland, reading the impressive ring service before a group of relatives and friends of the couple. The altar will be banked with palms and ferns and autumn flowers will add their bright colors to the mass.

Preceding the service Miss Marie Churchill, accompanied by Mrs. Walter T. McCarty, of Corvallis, will sing "Love, I Have Found You." Lohengrin's professional played by Professor T. S. Roberts, will follow this, and the bridal party will approach the altar. The groom and his best man, Frank W. Durbin, Jr., will wait at the chancel with the minister, and the bride, following the attendants, will enter on the arm of her father, who will give her in marriage.

The bride will be attended by Miss Jennette Meredith, maid of honor, and the following bridesmaids: Miss Clara Breitenstein, Dorris Churchill Weller, Miss Annabelle Golden and Miss Letha Wilson. They will enter with the ushers who are Milton Steiner, Evan Jones, Archie Holt and Eugene Gill.

The bride's wedding gown is an arrangement of Chantilly lace over satin, with tulle, giving a decidedly quaint effect, and her bouquet is an old fashioned nosegay. Her veil is long and flowing and attached to her head in a cap arrangement, adorned with the lace of the gown. Her bridesmaids will wear frocks of pastel colors and will carry lavender chrysanthemums tied with tulle in two blending shades. Miss Meredith, maid of honor, will wear a gown of blue georgette and her bouquet is an arm load of lavender chrysanthemums. The groom's mother is the mother of the bride's mother is of black pan velvet over lace, and the groom's mother will wear an arrangement of chenille net over blue satin.

Following the service, a reception will be given for about fifty of the relatives and friends of the couple at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ross Jones, 335 D street. Here Mrs. Robert L. Kirk, of The Dalles, will preside in the dining room and the bride's attendants will assist. Mrs. Fred S. Stewart and Mrs. Roy F. Dillen will assist about the rooms.

Miss Jones, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ross Jones, has lived in this city for several years and has a host of friends here. She was graduated from Salem high school and took her first college work at Ohio State university. She spent her sophomore year at Oregon Agricultural college where she affiliated with Delta Delta Delta. Mr. Boise is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben P. Boise and has lived in Salem all of his life. He was also graduated from Salem high school where the romance began, and
