Honor Men Of Famous Second Division Take Part In Burial Of Unknown Hero

San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 14.—The famous Indian Head, in army records known as the Second Division, sent two honor men to participate in the burial of the unknown American hero who was interred in the National Cemetery at Arlington.

Three men—Sergeants Thomas D. Saunders and James W. Dell—have received the Distinguished Service Medal and the Croix de Guerre and were chosen for their excellent army records.

What's New On The Market

By Rex Stewart

Cranberries are slated to rise within a short time. Eastern whole sale prices are quoted at $22 per hundred pounds, which has stimulated the northwest market and will undoubtedly bring the retail price of 25 cents a pound up to 30 cents.

No change has been made thus far this month on the creamery buying price of milk, which still remains at $2.35 per hundred weight. A drop to 45 cents, however, in butterfat was announced this morning.

The local egg market seemed to be weakening this morning with 50 cents as the top price offered by buyers. Eggs might go lower, but from now on the price will largely depend on weather conditions.

The turkey situation still remains a puzzle that ought to clear up within the next few days and definite prices announced. From the conflicting reports, one can but judge that there is only a fair supply.

Geese have failed to put in an appearance, and what the price on them will be is also uncertain. Producers might find a ready market now, if their birds are in first class condition.

Fine looking spinach greens were offered on the market this morning for 15 cents a pound.

in all the country. But plainly it was not his belief that society is best served by the transmission from generation to generation of such imposing aggregates of wealth. Therefore his will, after devising minor and largely sentimental bequests to many relatives and friends, directed that the residuary estate should be divided into 23 equal shares, to be distributed among the heirs whom he named.

"Washington as a model citizen shines forth with a peculiar radiance from his last testament. The first provision is that his debts shall be paid promptly. His world needs the example of kept obligations. The second item makes generous provision for his wife; and then comes the direction at her death that all his slaves shall be given freedom.

Proposal Was Real Surprise

representatives of the other powers. Although it had become known that some far-reaching plan would be presented early in the conference, it was declared that no details either as to the basis of the proposal or the exact time of its presentation were permitted to reach any of the other delegates.

It was assumed that several days would be required for the usual advisers of Great Britain and Japan, the powers chiefly concerned, to prepare any estimate of the acceptability of the sweeping American proposals.

At the state department there was every indication today that the public reaction from this government's first bold step in the conference had been entirely reassuring. Messages of praise and approval came to Secretary Hughes' office by thousands and the White House likewise was deluged with congratulatory expressions.

A synopsis of the proposal for armament reduction has been sent to American diplomatic and consular agents throughout the world for such use as they may deem expedient. It was explained that this step was another part of the effort of the American government to give the negotiations the widest possible publicity.

apart the two chief branches of the English speaking race, he was on the other the greatest personal factor in saving this continent from Anglo-Saxon domination; and in doing that he contributed very greatly to making possible the wide-flung family of English speaking nations. As leader of the revolting colonies in '76, this time aided by France, he tore them from the grasp of England, it is equally true that two decades earlier he had saved them from the possible domination of France.

Washington Business Man.

"But among the documents which attest his wisdom there is one to which little study has been given. I mean his last will and testament.

"Washington was not only a great soldier and a great statesman; he was also a man of great business affairs, and an eminent humanitarian. Provident and always methodical, he amassed a fortune, which has been rated by many as the greatest of his time without the other. The farewell address was the final adjuration of the soldier, the statesman, the founder. The will and testament was the last word of the Christian citizen, the loving husband, the devoted kinsman—and the provident man of business.

Memorial and Shrine.

"I am prone to believe they contain a chart by which the captains and pilots of a world in distress, seeking harborage from battering storms and raging unknown deeps, might well law the course of civilization itself.

"Within a brief century and a half, the American people under Washington's inspiration have created a great nation, added to the dominion of liberty and of opportunity, and, we may hope, afforded a helpful example to the world. It has not been accomplished without heavy sacrifices. At fearful cost we had to wipe out an ambiguity in the constitution and re-establish union where disunion threatened. In a conflict well nigh as wide as the world we were called to draw the sword for humanity and the relief of oppression. Very recently we have paused to speak tribute to those who sacrificed in that struggle for civilization's preservation. We cannot too often or too earnestly repeat that tribute; and we consecrate this institution as a memorial and a shrine, in reminder to all the future of the services and sacrifices of our heroes of the world war."
