West Salem

West Salem, Or., Nov. 15.—Mrs. Alice Osborne of Oakland, Cal., is visiting her mother, Mrs. Mary Davis here.

Mrs. Frank Thomas, who has been quite ill, is now much improved.

Mrs. F. P. Curlye has returned home from a local hospital where she underwent a serious surgical operation.

The Sunday school of the M. E. church is improving in attendance the pastor reports. Also the singing society of the church meets weekly for practice. Also the Epworth League continues to grow in interest as its weekly meetings attest. The building committee of the proposed new church edifice reports progress. The new church is to be a "community church" under the direction of the M. E. local church society.

The recent bond election for Polk county failed to carry. The precinct of West Salem voting, yes 46, no 54.

November 29 there will be a citizens' meeting at the town hall to discuss the matter of the proposed city tax levy. A full attendance is desired. Time of meeting, 7:30 p. m.

Mrs. B. E. Woods has returned from Walla Walla, Wash., where she has been assisting in caring for her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Earl Woods, who was so nearly fatally injured six weeks ago near Pendleton, Or., by being run into by a carelessly driven auto truck. The pelvic bones were crushed and the lower limbs paralyzed. Now feeling is coming back and she can walk a very few steps. Physicians are hopeful that in time the young woman may be able to walk though not as freely as before. Mrs. Woods was married in Salem last September.

Fairfield

Fairfield, Or., Nov. 17.—Miss Agnes DuRette visited O. A. C. over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. John Imah made a combine business and pleasure trip to Portland over the week-end.

The steamer Relief that ran on the gravel bar about three weeks ago, is still high and dry and patiently waiting for the water to raise so they can get off.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Stewart of Seattle are spending this week at Mrs. Stewart's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. DuRette. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart were guests at O. A. C. for homecoming week.

Mrs. Adams of Salem was a guest of Mrs. John Imah Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Parker and daughter, Miss Francis, of Salem spent Armistice day at S. F. Parker's.

Carl Francis of Portland was looking after his farm interests here last week.

The new school house in the Mahony district is completed and school has commenced with Mrs. M. J. Mahony as teacher.

Mr. Segla of Arlington was a week-end guest at the Marthaler home.

M. W. Mahony sold 100 head of range cattle to M. L. Jones. They were shipped last week to Mr. Jones big ranch in eastern Oregon.

George Brough is visiting in Salem this week.

Central Howell

Central Howell, Or., Nov. 17.—The pic social at the Central Howell school house will be held Saturday, November 19, instead of Friday, November 18. This change in date is made owing to a social in Pratum district at that date.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Werner spent the week-end in Portland. Mr. Werner attended the stock show while there.

Peter Steffen is the possessor of a new Ford car.

Finds Something To Do the Business

"I tried everything that I heard of for the stomach and bowel trouble and bloating, but got no permanent help until I struck May's Wonderful Remedy, and that did the business. My son in Canada has also taken it and writes it has done him a lot of good." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

More Propaganda

Those who think that German propaganda is a thing of the past are referred to a pamphlet being mailed broadcast entitled "The Truth in the World War" by that sterling American, August Schinderhans, an "Expose for better Americanism, delayed on account of the U. S. gag-law." A group of men branded "Liars" are tugging across the cover—which also is most appropriate.

The poor dear kaiser and his war lords are depicted as innocent victims of the wily allies, the "vile ententes," the source of all evil and scoundrelism. Only a "malicious and bigotted ignoramus" could state that Germany began the war, we are informed and so on ad-nauseum.

The pamphlet is too stupid and too crass to be part of any official propaganda. It is evidently the individual contribution to the cause by an embittered expatriate whose passion and prejudice has overleaped itself in this crazed and almost incoherent torrent of rabidness, this mad and maudlin hymn of hate.

Just how this incitement to war is an "expose for better Americanism" is a puzzle for if this be Americanism, the word needs a new definition. However there is no question but the pamphlet reflects the sentiments of many of the author's countrymen, for Germany has not undergone any change of mind or heart since the nation started out to conquer the world with the sword. Defeat in battle was followed by capitulation, flight of the kaiser and creation of a republic because of necessity, but never at any time has there been the penitence that must precede pardon—and this such propaganda emphasizes.

Utilizing a Waste

To literally turn the sword into the plow-share is the offer of Henry Ford who agrees to buy the navies of the world at junk prices and turn them into agricultural machinery. Ford will contract to take any or all of the ships from each or all of the nations, and thus help solve the unemployment problem while removing the chief cause of high taxation.

With acetylene torches and electricity, the warships would be cut into pieces, their metal melted and useful articles manufactured therefrom. The purchase of the vessels would simply mean the securing of raw materials from a new source and the proposal is feasible and practical.

Perhaps it is a little too early to figure on how to get rid of the navies, but it is to be hoped that they will ere long be got rid of and that the material they contain will be salvaged and not lost forever by sinking in the sea as in the case of the surrendered German warships and as is also the fate of our own obsolete ironclads that are used as fleet and airplane targets and destroyed.

The armament industry is a gigantic institution and cessation of naval construction will throw many out of employment unless plans like those of Ford are carried out and new industries replace the discarded.

Myrtle Point Asks Permit to Extend City Water System

Extension of its municipal water supply at an estimated expenditure of $22,500 is contemplated by the city of Myrtle Point, Coos county, according to an application filed with State Engineer Cupper here, Thursday. The application covers the construction of a reservoir for the storage of 80 acre feet of the waters of John creek, tributary of the north fork of the Coquille river and the appropriation of the stored waters for municipal purposes. The project will necessitate the construction of a pipe line 5 1/4 miles in length.

Penn State To Bring Big Squad On Western Trip

State College, Pa., Nov. 18.—The Pennsylvania State college football team, which has not lost a game this season, will leave Thanksgiving night after the University of Pittsburgh contest, for Seattle, where they will meet the University of Washington on December 3.

The trip has been arranged by Coach Hugo Bezdek as a reward for the players for successfully coming through one of the hardest schedules of any eastern eleven. The first two teams will be taken to the coast and it is expected two or three additional players will make the trip. The squad is due in Seattle November 28.

For Busy People by
Parson Abiel Haile

"Let thine eyes look right on, and let thine eyelids look straight before thee."—Psalm 4-25.

While there are some brazen crooks, the most of them, wherever found, rarely look one in the eye when conversing; and while there are a few shy, honest people who are downcast-eyed, the vast majority of truthful persons have the comfortable and comforting custom of looking eye-to-eye when with another. David knew that the "double-lookers"—that is, those who looked towards another and at the same time averted the other's eye, were "double-dealers—and his view prevails to this day. He urged folks to be clear-visioned, and to coordinate the sense of sight with the gift of motion. Besides the inclusion of eye-to-eye talking, David would have folks look where they were going, lest they stumble. In every phase of our lives, we may apply the admonition of the wise king. The eye should be alert and the constant pilot. A vessel allowed to follow its own course, without the guiding brain of the pilot, is no more unthinkable than is the progress of boy or girl, man or woman, business or municipality, allowed to lapse into the perilous custom of aimless rambling in the journey through life. "Gawking" is quite common—but who amongst us is not guilty? The eye is the window of the soul, so it has been said; very well, use it. Do not let it become dusty. So few of us appreciate sight. Less of motive power; loss of hearing, smell, taste—all may be endured with a degree of regret. But the greatest human misery is blindness. In earthly things, the blind is the most pitiable of all the afflicted. And yet there are none so blind as those who will not see—who persist in not watching their step whenever they may be—and come to grief. And so it is in spiritual things. The path of real religion is plain as day, clearly marked and not hard to travel. And yet all those eyes wander to the wayside lures, stumble into the ditch—and few emerge. Use your eyes.

The Thrilling and Dramatic Story of Virginia Fairfax's Ambition

An Unintentional Hurt.
I thought a great deal about what Gloria had told me as I pulled my "built-in" bed from out the dining room buffet.
My life had changed as completely in the last three weeks as that bed which masqueraded as a buffet in the daytime was a change from the old four-poster which my mother and other ancestors had used for centuries way back in old Virginia.

Vaguely I seemed to understand that I had entered into an entirely new world—a world where it is up to the girl every minute—a strenuous world where no one but the girl herself can decide—a world of opportunity beset by dangerous temptation—a world where the girl has to fight not only for her daily bread but for her very soul.

I wondered if Gloria and the girls who, like her, had had to fight these battles over and over had lost any of that feminine charm I had been taught to consider woman's greatest fascination.

True, Gloria had lost every intimation of helplessness, but as thought of her in her varying moods, I felt that she was the most interesting little creature I had ever met.

I contrasted her with Naomi my childhood friend, and the picture was so utterly at variance that I laughed aloud. This brought Gloria back into the room.

She was a picture of girlish beauty. There was no charm missing from that radiant face or slender form which was thinly covered by her null nightdress.

No girl who had lived under the protection of home and family could have had a sweeter expression. She looked as though she might have stepped out of a poem that had been forever hemmed about with those who had kept every shadow of adversity and sophistication from her.

Her red brown hair had been brushed until every strand of it chingled about her face, frame-like.

She looked at me a moment as I fas busily twisting my hair about my fingers.

"Oh, your hair is naturally curly! How beautiful!" she exclaimed as she touched one of the curls that was hanging down my neck.

"It is not more beautiful than yours," I answered. "In fact I like yours better; it is so nice and wavy. While mine, you see, just curls up in little wringlets."

"Virgie, you are a constant source of joy to me—you dear child. Don't you know that my hair has been permanently waved?"

"What is that?"

"Oh, it means that it has been baked and toasted for hours while I sat in misery, expecting every moment to be burned by the electric current which heated every little pad about which it was rolled. It cost me $25, but thank heaven it lasted six months. And you may be sure that no matter how hot the day is your hair will not come out of curl in the middle of a picture."

"Must a girl in the movies have curly hair?" I asked rather complacently as I twisted some of mine around my finger.

"Why, my dear child, don't you know that curly hair is about half the stock in trade of a girl who wants to make an impression upon a director? But what were you laughing at as I came in?"

"I was just trying to imagine what Aunt Virginia and grandfather and Eddie Montforth and all the rest would say about me."

You don't have to coax big and little folks to eat Kellogg's Corn Flakes

Just as soon as you serve Kellogg's you'll note fussy and faded appetites getting mighty sharp; you'll find big bowls being handed back for "just a few more Kellogg's, mother—they're wonderful!"

And, that'll make you glad, for Kellogg's Corn Flakes are a great speed-start for the day's doings! They make for health and happy digestions! Kellogg's are never leathery or tough, but always joyously crisp!

Kellogg's—the original Corn Flakes—will be a revelation to your taste if you have been eating imitations! For your own enjoyment, do this—compare the big, sunny-brown Kellogg's Corn Flakes with other "corn flakes." Eat some of Kellogg's—then try the imitations! You'll realize then why Kellogg's Corn Flakes are the largest and fastest selling cereal in the whole world!

Do more than ask for "corn flakes." Insist upon KELLOGG'S Corn Flakes in the RED and GREEN package! My, but it's worth while!

Hoot Gibson

popular Universal Star, writes:

"I wasn't trying to find fault with you, Gloria. I was just making the contrast. I want you to know that I hope I shall be like you, and I know you are going to help me a lot. And tonight, when I say my prayers, I shall thank God that he let me find you."

"You're a dear," said Gloria impulsively. She put her arms about my neck and burst into tears.

"Why, Gloria, what is the matter? I would not have made you cry for the world. Surely you know I did not mean to. Tell me I did not hurt you, Ria."

"No, you didn't hurt me. But oh, Virgie! Virgie! I thought he loved me. I wanted him to love me. And Oh, God! pity me—when I saw him today I knew that I still wanted him to love me, even though I am only one of the fifty-seven varieties," she added flippantly.

"I wonder," she looked at me intently, "if you're going to be the fifty-eightth."

"Don't you remember, Gloria, that there are only fifty-seven varieties; there ain't goin' to be no fifty-eightth." I said with a disregard for grammar that fitted the moment.

Tomorrow—Gloria's Tears.

Beauty Parlor Claims to Make Brain Efficient

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 18.—It is pretty generally agreed that beauty may be stimulated by scientific treatment.

But, inquire a number of Columbus residents, how can a marcel, or shampoo cause a girl to be credited with a perfect percentage at her mid-term or final exam?

The query is prompted by the following ad, inserted in a university paper:

"We are causing co-eds to pass 100 per cent exams. Our scientific way of treating face and scalp stimulates mental effort."
