What's New
On
The Market

By Rex Stewart

Because of the lack of market in Portland, some local milk shippers have discontinued buying whole milk until next spring.
There are still, however, a few creameries and dairies which are still doing a little shipping.

Besides a small quantity of salmon and halibut, silver smelt at 20 cents a pound, and kippered black cod at about the same price are expected to arrive in a shipment for Friday's trade. Halibut cheeks are selling for 23 cents a pound.

Egg shippers are doing little buying as a result of the two cent drop made yesterday which places the local market on an equal basis with Portland. In Portland there are quite a few storage eggs left, and little demand for fresh eggs from outside markets. The New York market has slumped and the Petaluma supply is said to be a formal competitor to northwest producers in all markets. As soon as stores are stocked up on eggs the local shippers' buying price may go down.

Grapes offered at two pounds for 35 cents today were not in good condition. Small Hubbard squash can be obtained for 10 cents each.

100 STORES IN 1922
AN ANALYSIS of the word 'SPECIAL' as applied to merchandise—will prove that we are correct in calling it 'BAIT' Hundreds of buyers (Now SKAGGS PATRONS) were at one time deceived by thinking that they could get something for nothing at those stores pursuing 'special sales' methods.—Now, they see the fallacy of such methods.
HERE'S THE QUESTION
Why should a merchant sell his goods at a certain price five days in the week, and offer it for less on the sixth (sometimes below wholesale cost) unless, it is to DECOY his customers to the store, so that he can sell them items bearing excess profit.
THE ANSWER
We would consider it an insult to the intelligence of OUR patrons to try such methods and expect to retain their confidence.
Our growth proves that OUR SYSTEM of selling Nationally Advertised Brands of Food Products at consistent prices is the correct one.
