What's New on The Market

By Rex Stewart
Fine looking turnips are offered at 10 cents a bunch; a new shipment of cauliflower has improved the supply on the market the price quoted is 25 cents a head. Oranges, received in a car today are better in quality than those received here recently. A car of Los Angeles lettuce arrived this morning and will be distributed tomorrow with no change in prices.

Six Salem Christmas dinner tables will be graced with Edam cheese, imported from Holland. The supply is limited to six real-ly genuine cheeses weight two pounds and are priced at $2.75. There is some of this cheese made in California but are not as good as the imported stuff.

Red cabbage for salad making is getting scarce with the approach of Christmas, but the price still remains at six cents a pound. Dressed rabbits will be quoted five cents lower tomorrow with the price of 39 cents. Those to be offered are not from Woodburn, but are of good quality.

Frank A. Elliott, of the state forestry department, left Salem this morning for Portland where he will spend a short time on business.

"All is quiet and orderly in Polk county," observed Judge A. B. Robinson, of the Polk county court who, with Mrs. Robinson, is visiting in Salem today. After spending this afternoon shopping here they will return to Dallas this evening. Judge Robinson recently returned from a business trip to Portland.

Charged with speeding his automobile, C. H. Jones of this city, pleaded guilty when he was arraigned in the police court this morning. He paid a fine of $20 which was assessed by Judge Earl Race. Jones was arrested by Officer Dave Brown, operating out of the secretary of state's office.

Although there are but few calls at the city employment bureau by men in search of employment, there is yet a labor surplus in Salem, according to Police Judge Earl Race who conducts a free employment office in the city hall. There is but little construction work at present underway in the city, according to Judge Race.

Three of the 337 industrial accidents reported to the industrial accident commission for the week ending December 15 were fatal. Workmen losing their lives in industries during the week were: A. Engstrom, laborer, Milwaukie; W. W. Wilson, laborer, Oregon City and C. W. Ward, bucker, North Bend.

"Zillah", the Girl With the Ex-Ray Eyes

Which borders closes to the uncanny at Bligh theatre today and tomorrow. Promises to be an attraction of great interest. Zillah sees all. Ask her any question. While blindfolded and alone upon the stage this remarkable girl gives a demonstration of mental telepathy and thought transference, answers questions, calls the names of those present, their addresses, occupations, and just what is uppermost in their minds, and with unerring precision describes her patrons, their friends and conditions and associates surrounding them.

Nature endowed her with some wonderful gifts and a most charming personality. From the moment Zillah steps upon the stage, her audiences are held entranced, awed by the almost uncanny sense, and charmed by her rare type of beauty and magnetism. An almost super-woman upon whom nature has bestowed her choicest gifts—that describes the girl Zillah.

SANTA CLAUS MARVELS:
How times have changed in every way,
It's hard to realize;
Today my sled's an aeroplane,
That whisks me through the sky.
And what a difference in the gifts
Which my big load comprises,
How many very useful things
Foretell their glad surprises.
For children dear the finest Gift
Is one that they can use
Instead of many toys that break
I'm going to bring them—SHOES.
Slippers for the Kiddies and Momma and Daddy too,
at a cost that will surprise you—
