Mails Here Are Heavy; Ten Men Added To Staff

The Christmas mail rush began in earnest at the Salem postoffice today. Ten special employees, augmenting the regular staff, were placed at work in handling the tremendous volume of incoming and outgoing mail.

Parcels and letters jam the regular work rooms and today it was necessary to pile a surplus in to the postmaster's quarters. To expedite the handling of parcels, a chute has been run out of a window to the rear of the building.

"People have mailed much earlier than usual this year, but at that, our big rush will come in the next four days," August Hucklestein, postmaster, said this morning.

The huge piles of parcels of all sizes which fill every vacant corner in the local office give no indication of hard times. "It would appear that people have plenty of money for Christmas shopping," Mr. Hucklestein said.

A few complaints from persons who have reported damaged packages have been received at the postoffice already, but the number this year has not been large.

Reckless Driving Charged to Stage Pilot; Trial 29th

The trial of R. G. Hazelton, Portland-Salem stage driver, charged with careless and reckless driving, will be held in the justice court on Thursday, December 29, Judge G. E. Unruh announced this morning.

Hazelton was recently arrested by Constable Walter DeLong. Arraigned, he entered a plea of not guilty. He was said to have struck from the rear a car driven by Mrs. Mabel Benjamin and to have knocked it from the road.

After spending two months visiting in different cities of the east, Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Thompson of this city, returned to Salem yesterday from Baltimore, Md. Dr. Thompson is a Salem physician.

Veterans of Foreign wars will hold their second meeting of the month in the veterans' room of the armory tonight at 8 o'clock. Election of officers will be the most important matter before the organization. Department officers of the organization are expected to be present.
