

GOVERNOR APPROVES 20 BILLS

Even Score of Measures Enacted During Special Session Get On Statute Books

An even score of measures passed by the late special legislative session have been signed by Governor O'Quinn and sent on their way to the statute books. Nine others have fallen under the disapproval of the governor and have been killed by the executive veto. Still two other measures are yet in the possession of the governor for his approval or disapproval within the next few days.

This summary of the status of the work of the special session does not take into consideration the two expiation measures which were sent into the legislative process because they failed to receive the signatures of the president of the senate or the speaker of the house.

20 Measures Signed

Of the 20 measures signed by the governor the three highway bills, for the consideration of which the special session was called, loom up as the really constructive work of the six days session.

Under the terms of these measures state lines, fifty buses, auto trucks and other motor vehicles operated for commercial purposes are placed under the jurisdiction of the public service commission, the state highway department is given concurrent police powers over state roads with the secretary of state's department, and more stringent regulations are thrown around motor vehicles using state highways and provision is made for more rigid enforcement of motor vehicle laws.

Correcting Defects

Four of the approved measures were passed for the purpose of correcting defects—legislative and clerical—in bills enacted by the last regular session.

Of these four senate bill 7 by Senator Eddy, removes road districts from the purview of the local budget act of the 1921 session correcting a situation which, upon practical application, was found to be unworkable, and validating all special road tax levies voted by road districts thru out the state last November.

The other three corrective measures, house bills 17, 18 and 19, merely remedy clerical errors in appropriation bills of the 1921 regular session through which various state departments would have been deprived of funds for the year 1922.

Appropriation Bills

Five of the approved measures are appropriation bills carrying appropriations aggregating $147,540 as follows:

House bill 20, appropriating $2500 to cover traveling expenses and hotel bills of circuit judges while engaged in the performance of their duties while outside their home counties.

House bill 26, appropriating $30,000 to pay claims of Willamette valley flax growers against the state prison flax plant.

House bill 28, appropriating $5000 for the completion of the Alderson school at the Louise home, Portland.

House bill 29, appropriating $50,000 to the state bonus commission for administrative purposes.

House bill 30, appropriating $20,000 to cover legislative expenses including $5000 to cover the expenses of the audit of the state's business.

Miscellaneous Bills

Other measures finding their way safely through the executive office during the week are:

Senate bill 8 by Eddy, authorizing payment of awards made by state industrial accident commission to dependents of workmen killed in maritime accidents prior to the date of the decision of the United States supreme court holding that such occupations do not come under the jurisdiction of the state commission.

Senate bill 19 by Norblad, providing that school districts may arrange for transportation of pupils from without the district.

Senate bill 21 by Staples and Robertson, permitting state banks to borrow money from the federal reserve and the war finance corporation in excess of their capitalization upon approval of the state superintendent of banks.

House bill 2 by Kahl, authorizing the county court of Multnomah county to levy a tax of not to exceed one-fiftieth of one mill for payment of salaries of county employes.

House bill 24 by Kay, authorizing the leasing of certain funds of school districts which are not needed for immediate use.

House bill 27 by committee on roads and highways, amending statutes relative to lights at railroad crossings.

Of the nine vetoed measures, four were senate bills and five house bills as follows:

Nine Vetoed Bills

Senate bill 1 by Apion, exempting money acquired under the soldier bonus law from debts contracted prior to effective date of bonus act.

Senate bill 12 by Hare, permitting the sale of bonds by a certain drainage district in Washington county.

Senate bill 14 by Vinton, providing that the county court and state treasurer might agree upon inheritance tax payment in cases not specifically covered by statutes.

Senate bill 15 by Eberhard, correcting numerous alleged deficiencies in local budget law of 1921 regular session.

House bill 8 by Hindman, providing for a full term of office for every person hereafter elected at any general election in any state, district or county office.

House bill 11 by Fletcher, amending statutes relative to voter by absent voter.

House bill 12 Gordon of Lane, permitting judges chartered prior to statehood to amend charters.

House bill 15 by Belknap, validating certain divorces and remarriages.

House bill 14 by Carter, amending inheritance tax law and providing increases in exemptions in certain cases.

Of the two measures still in the possession of the governor one, house bill 6, provides for the appropriation of $44,500 for the repair of two fish hatcheries damaged by the recent storm. The other is the special election bill—house bill 31—providing for the holding of a special election on May 19, next, in conjunction with the primary election for action by the voters upon the exposition measures and the Lion and Benton county taxing and bonding bill.

Supreme Court Disposes of 251 Cases In 1921

Of the cases disposed of 25 were dismissed on motion or stipulation and 222 were disposed of by written opinions. Forty-six appeals were filed with the Pendleton office and 192 with the Salem office. There are now 110 appeals pending before the court ready for argument.

MINISTER DEPLORES MODERN MORALS

Fairmont, W. Va., Jan. 2.—The Rev. Dr. John C. Broomfield, pastor of the Methodist Protestant Temple, says public morals are increasing in laxity here to such an extent that, "if some of the stuff already pulled off by the younger set is any criterion, then the community can expect during the holiday season that will make Belshazzar's Feast look tame."

Dr. Broomfield says this condition of affairs is deplorable in view of the fact that it obtains hardly ten months after 8879 persons "hit the trail" for the Rev. Billy Sunday in this community.

The minister says he is gathering data for disclosures he will make in a future sermon. What he has thus far intimated, he says, is only as a gentle breeze when compared to the whirlwind that is coming when he actually lifts the lid.
