The body of Frans T. Lauri, who passed away at a local hospital yesterday, was shipped to Astoria Friday by Webb and Clough, local morticians. Interment will be made in Astoria where relatives of the decedent reside.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings.

A few hours after the escape of Oliver Freeze, 18, and Garnet Ex-line, 17, had been reported to the police last night, they were apprehended on Highland avenue by Patrolman George White. The girls had escaped from the state school for feeble minded earlier in the day.
A number of students of the Salem high school Friday took the "Bible test" which is given annually at the local school. One half credit is given if a successful examination is passed on the new testament and a half credit also is given for the old testament.
Last year about 20 students took the quiz.
L. H. Siddall, chaser, of Astoria, was the only workman to lose his life in Oregon industries during the week ending January 19, according to reports filed with the state industrial accident commission. Of the 314 accidents reported for the week 292 are subject to the provisions of the workmen's compensation act.
The men's glee club of Willamette university gave two concert, one Wednesday night and the other Thursday night to appreciative audiences at Falls City and Chemawa Indian school, respectively.
This will end their activities until the beginning of their three weeks tour upon Thursday next, at Sherwood.
Bids on the new ventilating system for the senate chamber and the house of representatives in the capitol building will be opened by the state board of control on February 10, it was announced by the board Friday. The regular legislative session of 1921 appropiated $18,000 for this purpose. It is expected to have the system in operation by the time the next regular session convenes.
Dr. W. J. Johnson, associate secretary of the Presbyterian of temperance and moral welfare, will speak in Salem on February 1, according to announcement received here today. He will also address throughout the state on the following dates: Jan. 22, 27, Portland; Jan. 29, Eugene and Corvallis; Jan. 31, Monmouth and McMinnville; Feb. 3, Ashland.
Cards on which forwarding addresses may be written should be given guests by all hotels, according to a communication received by Postmaster August Hackett of Salem, from Washington, D. C.
"Hotel methods of handling mail have not progressed with other methods of doing business," the communication from the postmaster general says, "and many complaints are received by postmasters."
An automobile driven by R. M.
Hofer, 785 south Commercial street, and one piloted by R. C.
Roberts, also of this city, were considerably damaged in an accident which occurred on the Pacific highway south of Salem yesterday, according to a report made to the police last night. A rear wheel was torn off of the Roberts car when it was struck from behind by the Hofer machine. Nobody was injured, according to the report.
E. C. Robbins of Portland, assistant general passenger agent for the Northern Pacific company, has been named by Governor Ot-cott to serve on the committee named several days ago to investigate conditions at the Oregon employment institution for the blind at Portland. Robbins will succeed Harry W. Stone who declined the appointment because of lack of time to devote to the duties involved.

arrow. He made justice and right triumph over oppression. There was not one of President Wilson's 14 points that was not included in the pontiff's peace conditions."
The pope was deeply grieved by the conflict which resulted from efforts to obtain Ireland's freedom. He was appealed to intervene in behalf of the Irish republican movement, but Archbishop Hayes, on returning from the Vatican in 1921, said that he was following the policy of neutrality and impartiality. He condemned crime in Ireland by either side and repeatedly expressed the hope that violence there would end.
Sought Peace in Ireland In a letter to Cardinal Logue, the pope appealed to both England and Irish to abandon violence, and proposed that the Irish question be settled by a body selected by the whole Irish nation.
When the Anglo-Irish agreement finally was reported, he expressed great satisfaction and sent a message to the Dal Eireann rejoicing over the peace agreement which made Ireland a free state.
Pope Benedict declined, in May 1919, to authorize the Catholic church to participate in a world conference of religions which had been proposed to him by a group of bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States. Cardinal Gasparri told the bishops:
"Rather than a reunion of the Christian churches, the Holy See aims at the unity of the church, which, in the opinion of Rome, can only occur by returning to the Catholic church." In December 1920, the Vatican issued a decree requesting the Catholic bishops to pay vigilant attention to such societies as the Young Men's Christian association, on the ground that they corrupted the faith of Catholic youths. The pope urged the Knights of Columbus to combat propaganda against the Catholic faith.
Opposed Socialism
The pope took occasion on numerous occasions to express his views thoroughly on some political and social questions. Early in 1920 he sent a letter to an Italian bishop urging the Catholic priests to work intelligently and energetically against what the pope characterized as "the dangerous doctrine of the socialists."
He repeatedly denounced im-modesty in women's dress and what he termed the indecency of fashion. On another occasion a spiritual head of $90,000,000 Catholic, was born of noble line at Pegli, Italy, on November 21, 1854. His father was the Marchese della Chiesa (pronounced Keeza.) He received his education at the Capronican College and later attended the Academy of Ecclesiastics. Ordained to the priesthood in 1878 he soon attracted the attention of Cardinal Rampolla, who under Pope Leo XIII was the papal secretary of state. He accompanied Rampolla to Madrid in 1883 when his patron was Nuncio, remaining there until 1887 when he returned to Rome upon the elevation of Rampolla to the Cardin-alate.

In 1901, after having served four years as secretary of the Nunciature in Spain, he was appointed secretary of the Cypher.
This position gave him incumbent considerable authority and the same year Mgr. Della Chiesa was named as Consul of the Holy Office.
Made Cardinal in 1914.
A notable promotion came to him on December 16, 1907, when Pope Pius X appointed della Chiesa as Archbishop of the important See of Bologna to succeed the late Cardinal Svampa. His administration of this office for seven years was characterized, it is said, by prudence and diplomacy. His consecration as an archbishop was performed by Pius himself in the Sistine Chapel, an hour or unusual that it attracted world-wide attention.
His voice was raised in approval of the aims of the Washington conference on the limitation of armament and in a letter to President Harding, the pope commended his initiative in calling it. His efforts on behalf of war prisoners were unremitting and he personally appealed to the prelates of the church to promote amity among the nations and deplored the unrest in Europe which had followed the war.
He issued numerous appeals for the poor children of Central Europe and for the famine sufferers of Russia and through his efforts a huge fund was collected and distributed to the children of Germany, Austria, Poland, Hungary, and Czechoslovakia.
He also made large contributions to funds for the relief of Russians and Chinese and to the International Red Cross.
Born 67 Years Ago Giacomo Della Chiesa, the Archbishop della Chiesa was made a cardinal in May, 1914, less than six months before mounting the throne of St. Peter's.

He took his ecclesiastical title from Pope Benedict XIV, one of the ablest pontiffs of the church, who born in Bologna on March 31, 1657 and died on May 3, 1758.
