GRANGE ENDORSES BILLS OF TAX REDUCTION CLUBS

Endorsement of the program of the Oregon Tax Reduction clubs legislative program was made at a meeting of the Marion County Pomona grange held in Ankeny yesterday. Censure of the United States senate in seating Senator Newberry was also embodied in the resolution.

The resolution endorsing the legislative program of the tax club follows: "The Marion County Pomona grange endorses the initiation of a bill to go before the general election in November, providing for the compulsory assessment and classification of all property, real and personal, and to provide for the repeal of the 1.2 millage tax for the support of high educational institutions.

"We further endorse the proposed measure providing that the taxes, raised by the various millage levies, shall not exceed the amounts of money that would be available computed upon the assessed valuation for the year 1922."

(Continued from Page One.) mobile were, besides Hecker and his father, Chief of Police Jenkins, Captains Harms and Ryan. The searchers were surprised when the elder Hecker motioned for the car to stop 100 yards from the bridge and then walked straight to slightly past the center of the bridge, where he pointed with his foot to a blood stain and said: "This is the place."

Under Guard Rail. That the body had been shoved over the bridge's edge under the guard rail instead of having been hoisted over it; was indicated by a sweeping away of mud between the blood stains and the bridge's edge.

Whether the murder was committed on the bridge is doubtful, as blood stains were found in both the front and back seats of the car, which would tend to show that Bowker may have been slain while riding in the front seat with Hecker, who then dragged the body into the rear seat. At any rate, the numerous splutterings of blood in the car indicate that a struggle took place in it.

Young Hecker Unnerved. Until the searching party arrived at the bridge young Hecker was gullen and defiant. He sat in the rear seat beside his father with whom he conversed in whispers, occasionally giving directions on the route.

When the auto stopped at the approach of the bridge, however, he slumped against his father's shoulder. He had to be supported while he walked to the bridge. By the time the party reached Jefferson scores of other automobiles had swung into the road, following the searchers' car. To cover himself from the gaze of a hundred or so persons who swarmed to the bridge young Hecker pulled a raincoat over his ears and a cap over his eyes. He was deathly pale and almost fainted.

DRUG SELLERS CONVICTED

Spokane, Wash., April 20.—Mr. and Mrs. Bert Williams, charged with selling narcotics and with conspiracy to sell narcotics, were found guilty on two indictments by a federal jury late yesterday afternoon. The couple are proprietors of the Alberts hotel at Wenatchee and are alleged to have sold narcotics to Maurice Hyatt, a Wenatchee youth and to other residents of the town. The jury deliberated less than an hour.

CHILD'S DEATH FOLLOWS BURNS

Death resulted this morning from the burns received yesterday by two-year-old Evelyn Hunt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Hunt, Salem route 6, who was taken to the Deaconess hospital in the afternoon.

The little girl had been left in the care of an older sister who was absent from the house for a few moments while the child was playing around the stove. When the sister returned Evelyn's clothing was in flames. With the aid of a neighbor the sister extinguished them with water and called for medical aid, but not before the skin had been almost completely burned.

Funeral announcements will be made later.

SKAGGS Cash stores AFTER ALL

SKAGGS recognized policy of "EVERYDAY PRICES," is founded on the principle that "confidence is the keynote of success"

The old method of so-called "SPECIAL PRICE" merchandising is fast becoming extinct.

The majority of thrifty Americans are no longer deceived by the merchant who tries to BAIT them with SPECIALS.

What excuse can he offer for fluctuating the prices of certain commodities, two or three times a week, thereby charging a certain portion of his patrons a low price and the rest a higher price, on the same item?

SKAGGS consistent, "EVERYDAY PRICES," compel CONFIDENCE.
