DAIRY TOUR OF AMITY-McCOY AREA PLANNED

Dallas, Or., June 20.—Paul Carpenter, Polk county agent for the cooperative extension work in agriculture and home economics, is sending out letters inviting those interested in dairies and dairy products to attend the Amity-McCoy dairy celebration to be held there tomorrow, June 21, beginning at 10 o'clock.

At 10 o'clock the Amity cheese factory will be visited so that it may be learned just how the dairy article is made. The rest of the morning will be spent in going from one ranch to another in order to inspect some of the dairy herds around McCoy. The principal points that will be observed on the trip are the kind of stock the men have, herd production, merits of the bulls, plans for improvement and the outlook for the herds.

Noon will find the visitors at Porter Frizzell's where all will enjoy a basket lunch. Coffee will be served by the Polk Farm bureau. Cream and milk for the coffee will be furnished from the Frizzell dairy. For the afternoon a program of interest to dairy folks has been planned.

J. D. Mickel, C. L. Hawley and Walter Fuller will be the main speakers. Walter Fuller's part will be to tell those present how things are lining up in the cheese industry. The Oregon Agricultural college professor will tell how to judge a cow by the "way she's put up." It is also likely that there will be a judging contest between Yamhill and Polk teams.

The invitation to attend is open to all that wish to know more about the dairy industry. Mr. Carpenter wishes those that making the visit would remember to bring the basket lunch and last but not least a cup to sample some of the milk and cream at the Frizzell place.

60 CARS OF POLK FARMERS VISIT AGGIE COLLEGE

Dallas, Or., June 20.—A hot and most profitable day was spent by 60 automobile loads of Farmers from Polk county Saturday, when they composed a caravan that journeyed to Corvallis to view the many sights at the Oregon Agricultural college. Not a man, or woman, returned to their home without admitting that they had learned something that will be of great material benefit to them in their future work on the farm and in the orchard.

Polk county sent by far the largest delegation that has attended these gatherings. The day was supposed to have been the day for the visit of delegations from Marion, Polk and Yamhill counties, but Marion failed to send even one representative and Yamhill sent only two. It was therefore classed as Polk county Day, with the claim by the college authorities that Polk county had sent a bigger delegation than had any other county.

Everything of interest to the agriculturist was shown, from the new method of cutting potatoes for planting, and the best time for seeding, to the improved method of drying prunes; from cattle, sheep and goats in livestock to the champion chickens that have been developed by the college. To see all this and listen to the accompanying lectures made a strenuous day. But the time was divided into two parts.

At noon a basket lunch was served on the banks of a pretty creek that runs through the land of the college experiment farm. Here it was found that the men were in the majority by but a few, this proving that the woman of Polk county are as much interested as are their men in the improving of farm production.

From the standpoint of Polk county the most important showing was the exposition of a new method for drying prunes. Dryers as they are made can be used, with a fan added to pump out the moist air as it accumulates in the tunnels. Short smokestacks are advised. By this means it is claimed that four tunnels will do the work now turned out by 20 tunnels. These fans and the necessary power are quite costly, but it is claimed by the college authorities that the expense is more than justified.

Conditions could be worse. Great Britain has more British lecturers than we have.
