Zion and the Jews

Over $5,000,000 has been raised the past year in America for the development of Palestine as a Jewish homeland for Jews, according to reports read at the Silver Jubilee convention of the American Zionists now in session at Philadelphia. Over $10,000,000, most of it from America, has now been spent to rebuild Palestine.

The Zionist effort is purely a sentimental one, based upon fiction, tradition and idealism, an effort by an exiled homeless people to realize a dream and provide a homeland. It has been cherished by the orthodox Jews since the destruction of the Temple (70 A. D.) when the Jews as a nation were enslaved and scattered by Titus, although Palestine remained the center of Jewish religious thought until the fifth century. Zionism has assumed definite form and purpose in late years as a result of the menace of anti-Semitism.

Confusion of race and religion, both bearing the same name, complicates any study of the Jews. Many outside the tribe of Judah adopted the religion of Judaism, were rated as Jews and yet not of Jewish blood, racially speaking. When Alexander destroyed Tyre, many of the dispersed Phoenicians, who were also Semitic, adopted the Jewish religion, and when Rome destroyed Carthage, many of the surviving Carthaginians did likewise and hence became classified as Jews. These people were the merchants, traders and manufacturers of the ancient world. Their blood still flows in the dark complexioned, hook-nosed Jew who traces his descent to Spain and the Mediterranean countries and still maintains the commercial characteristics of his ancestors.

On the other hand, an entire tribe of Turks adopted the Jewish religion in its migration into Europe and mixed with the Jewish refugees, settling in Poland. Marriage and inter-marriage with the natives of the various countries in which settlement was forced during hundreds of years of forced migrations and persecutions, have given the Jews many of the local characteristics of the country of their nativity, so that there is really no homogeneous Jewish race, despite the binding influence of religion.

The Jews of ancient Palestine were primitive farmers and nomad herdsmen. They were a poor people and Palestine a comparatively poor country, though the greater rainfall of that era, before desiccation had so advanced, made it much more fertile than today. Its possession was disputed for centuries by alien races and civil war raged among tribes. On occasions the entire nation was deported and enslaved, only a remnant returning, to mix with invaders. Such prosperity as enjoyed was due to trading carried on across its borders by Phoenicians and Egyptians with the far east.

The Jews of today are primarily traders and manufacturers, instead of farmers. Upon them has fallen the mantle of the ancient Phoenicians much of whose blood flows in their veins. They are exploiters rather than developers. By training and environment they are unsuited for pioneering and reclaiming the desert. Centuries in northern and distant cities have made them unfitted for a life of toil in a semi-tropic region. So it is not surprising that many of the pioneers sent by the Zionists have recorded failure.

The efforts of the Zionists to appropriate Palestine has not been received with any enthusiasm by the natives of that country, who are Turks, Syrians, Arabs and Jews, and who get along together peacefully despite the fact that they are Mohammedan, Christian and Jewish in religion. Naturally the prospect of a big invasion of European and American Jews is viewed with apprehension by the natives. In addition, Palestine is rather a small place, 150 miles long, 100 wide at its broadest part, for such a numerous people as the Jews of today.

The world war proved the Jew a patriotic citizen of his home country. He served creditably at the front in all the armies, showed his gallantry in battle and his genius aided materially in financing the war. Such a people have easily earned their citizenship in the land of their nativity and ought not to need any other homeland.

SAP AND SALT
BY Bert Moses
Sap and Salt in the Streets, Ashland, Oregon

Don't laugh at folks in love; laugh with them.

It takes men with nothing to say a long time to say it.

If some one we don't like has real wit, we hate him twice as much.

Everybody loves the man who doesn't butt in where he doesn't belong.

It is a terrible calamity for any woman to be under obligations to a vulgar man.

Some men's idea of greatness is to be met at the depot by a brass band and a delegation wearing plug hats.

"It takes a woman without a husband to tell how to run one."

A DRAMATIC STORY OF LOVE AND ROMANCE

LOVE'S MASQUERADE

By Idah McGlone Gibson

AS A MAN THINKETH.

Doris Glendening did not answer immediately and the coroner repeated:

"Do you intend living with your husband again if he recovers?"

"I object," interrupted John Davis.

"Mrs. Glendening I advise you not to answer that question. The coroner has no right to ask it. It has no bearing on the case."

Doris raised her head and looked at the coroner silently.

"Then you decline to answer?"

"On the advice of my attorney," she replied.

Then turning to John Davis, she cried, "Take me away, John, take me away. I can't stand it any more."

She half rose from her chair and Davis rushed forward impelled by her extreme pallor. He was just able to catch her as she dropped fainting to the floor.

A spasm of pain passed over Adam's face as Doris Glendening was carried from the room.

"I did not mean to kill my wife. I do not think I can live without her," he reiterated earnestly to the coroner as he, too, was led away.

"There, Jim," said Claverling to Davis when, after taking Doris home, they sat down in the corner of the club for luncheon, "you can see now, can't you why Margaret Quito did not try to believe that Quito stuff. It could not have rung quite true. She probably sensed, although she was unconscious of it, that Glendening had pulled that line about Quito to other women before he did to her. And you can see from the American Beauty's letter that he had made her believe it."

"Well, Harry will never tell another woman about Quito," remarked Claverling. "The afternoon papers are going to publish the letter, and I think one of them is going to have it photographed with Harry's picture on one side and Claire Adams' on the other."

"You know, John, that I almost have it in my mind to feel sorry for Harry. I never have known a man who hated a scandal as he does and he has been able for so long to skin out of it. I am afraid that when he is himself and sees the papers they will send him to an insane asylum."

"I'm not sure but that it would be a good place for him," said Davis sternly. "He certainly wouldn't break any hearts there."

"Don't be too sure. I wouldn't trust Harry in a cemetery."

"Then you think, Jim, that this will not have a good effect upon him."

"I am not sure. I sincerely hope it will."

Came Home to Die

"Three years ago I came home thinking 2 or 3 weeks would be my limit to live. I had suffered for 15 years from colic attacks and severe liver and stomach trouble. I happened to see an advertisement of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and purchased a bottle at the drug store and after taking the first dose I felt better than I had for 15 years. I am now in the best of health—thanks to Mayr's Wonderful Remedy." It removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract, and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded at J. C. Perry's, D. J. Fry's and druggists everywhere. (adv) marriage, was that a man always wanted to be his wife's first love and a woman hoped always to be his last.

"Well, if you ask me, John, I'll say that no man or woman can be absolutely sure in this loving business. Every time one loves, one thinks it is the only love and the eternal love, but that does not prevent one from waking up some morning and finding that the whole thing is as if it had never been.

"When I marry, I am going to pick out a girl in cold blood. I'm going to look her over carefully. I am going to see if we have tastes in common and I am going to ask myself if I regard and respect her enough to make her the mother of my children."

McQUAY-NORRIS PISTON RINGS, PISTONS & PINS

The three most vital units in motor performance are the piston rings, the pistons and the piston pins. Wear, improper design or inaccurate fit in these units results in loss of power—gasoline waste—oil and carbon troubles—noise and unsatisfactory operation.

When new piston rings alone are needed, we have a McQuay-Norris ring for every price and purpose—all made from Electric Iron. When new pistons and pins are also required, we have the McQuay-Norris Wainwright line especially designed and made for replacement.

Regardless of where you plan to have your car overhauled, we can supply all sizes or over-sizes promptly.
