Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Spaulding of Salem are visitors in Portland for a few days, registered at the Imperial hotel. Mr. Spaulding is the owner of the large Spaulding lumber mill in Salem and buys up logs from all over the northwest. Mr. and Mrs. Spaulding are the grandparents of a new pair of twins, children of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Spaulding, residents of the capital city. They have other grandchildren, but their faces beam rather more brightly than ordinarily when the subject of the twins is broached. Mr. and Mrs. Spaulding, Jr., had no children prior to a few weeks ago and had always thought they would be particularly pleased with twins. In June Mrs. Spaulding, returning home from an early summer vacation, found that, thru the negotiations of her husband, a pair of twins had been brought to their home. Of course, she was pleased, as was the entire family, but there was the question of clothes for the unexpected babies. She is a prominent club woman and a member of the American Legion auxiliary in Salem and friends promptly arranged a "bee" to make the small garments.—Portland Oregonian.

Simmons, county superintendent of schools for Wheeler county, shows a total enrollment in the schools of that county during the past year of 745 of whom 110 were high school students. The average salary paid to teachers in Wheeler county during the past year was $157.75 for men and $111.19 for women teachers.

A great deal of credit is due to the Boy Scouts who under the direction of the Salem Scout executive, H. F. Zinser, had charge of the parking of the automobiles at the band concert last evening. The boys said that the drivers didn't resent being asked to park their cars in a certain place and the result was that there was no trouble experienced in getting in or out.

WAS SOLOMON RICHER THAN ROCKEFELLER OR HENRY FORD? His Long Lost City of Ophir is Revealed in "The Race for Life"

How rich was Solomon, described in the Bible as one who "exceeded all the kings of the earth in riches and wisdom"? Has any richer man lived since? How does Solomon's wealth compare with Rockefeller's or Henry Ford's?

Their wealth shrinks perceptibly when compared with that of Solomon, whose accumulations gave him an income exceeding $17,000,000 a year. That sum, translated into the currency of the distant ages of the past, amounted to 666 talents, so it can readily be seen that a talent was much appreciated then.

The Queen of Sheba dropped in one day for advice and in payment handed Solomon gold worth three million dollars, besides a lot of silver, jewels and spices—all free of income tax. And in one shipment Solomon brought ten million dollars worth of gold from Ophir, the richest city in Biblical history. But Ophir is a lost city now, and venturesome explorers, though searching indefatigably have never been able to locate it.

But for fictional purposes, and your entertainment, it is found at last by Mia May in "The Mistress of the World," a tremendous Paramount creation in twenty reels and four installments. The second of these, vividly depicts the incidents leading up to, as well as the actual finding of the city, entitled "The Race for Life," will be presented to the patrons of the Grand theater next Saturday and Sunday. There is a thrill in every scene.

MOTION FOR STRIKING

Bowerman contends, the weakness of the original law has been corrected through a provision which permits of registration at the polls. Such registration, according to Bowerman, also contemplates the reregistration of voters who, for any reason, may have changed their party affiliation since the closing of the registration books thirty days prior to the date of election and who are ready to take an oath as to their good faith in such reregistration.

Within Constitutional Rights A vote cast by a citizen who has all the qualifications of a voter, whether registered or not, is a legal voter, Bowerman contends pointing out that the state constitution fixes the right of a citizen to vote.

Continuing his attack upon the allegations in Hall's petition Bowerman declared that the receipt of votes from unregistered citizens does not constitute a ground for contest if held in the case of Tazwell vs Davis the only election contest ever before instituted in this state in which similar issues were raised.

Bowerman also challenged the collateral attack made by the contestant against the recognition of ballots cast by registered voters contending that such ballots could only be attacked directly and that the attack should be started at the polls with a challenge of the vote as is provided under the election law.

Thirteen Separate Allegations Bowerman is being assisted in the defense of the Olcott nomination by Roy Shields of Salem while Gus Moser, W. S. U'Ren and John H. Collier are appearing for the contestant.

Thirteen separate allegations are set forth in the Hall petition for a recount of the ballot but only two questions were attacked in the motion to strike filed by Bowerman and Shields as the basis for their arguments today. One of these involves the right of a voter to change his registration at the polls. The other involves the right of a voter registered in one precinct to cast his vote for a state office in another precinct. In opening his argument this morning Bowerman declared that it was important to the people of the state that the question involved in the present contest be decided as expeditiously as possible in fairness to both sides and pointed out that the contest opened up a wide field of litigation with prospects of big expense to both the contestant and contestee.

Charged Registration Hall in his petition, filed in the name of R. R. Costner, alleges that in certain precincts many voters who had been registered as other than republicans changed their registration at the polls and cast their vote for Olcott in the primary election. This reregistration, it is alleged, was contrary to the law. The right of a voter registered in one precinct to cast his ballot in another is also attacked by the contestant who alleges that this practice was resorted to by many Olcott supporters.

Both of these practices are defended by attorneys for Olcott as legal and entirely within the right of the voters.

Arguments in the contest will be heard by Judges Bingham and Kelly sitting en banc in the circuit court here at 10:30 Wednesday morning.

The petition of Hall contesting the nomination of Olcott and asking for a recount of the vote in approximately 1000 precincts alleges that such a recount would give the republican gubernatorial nomination of Hall by more than 4000 votes. On the face of the primary returns the nomination was given to Olcott by a plurality of 521 votes.

NEBRASKA NOMINATES

candidate for United States senator over Congressman Albert W. Jeffers, rated as a conservative, was increased as belated returns were reported to the Associated Press today.

Mr. Howell, who declared himself in favor of a farm bloc in congress and in opposition to the proposed ship subsidy bill sponsored by President Harding, had received 21,543 votes when $31 of the state's 1913 precincts had reported at 10 o'clock this morning, compared to 15,506 for Mr. Jeffers, who campaigned as a "consistent and earnest" republican worker.

Davis Also in Lead.

These returns, which represented 81 of the state's 93 counties gave Attorney General Clarence M. Davis, whose platform was also referred to as one of progressive principles, 12,979, while C. H. Gustafson, head of the United States Grain Growers, Inc., had 8192.

Arthur W. Wray of New York, prominent in Theodore Roosevelt's "bull moose" party in 1912, was leading A. H. Boglow of Omaha by almost two to one for the progressive senatorial nomination.

Senator G. M. Hitchcock continued to increase the lead by which he was nominated by the democrats. With almost half the state in, he had 25,136 compared to 7658 for J. O. Sproyer of Humboldt, who was classed by prohibitionists as a "dry" and 5226 for Anthony Monahan of Omaha. Senator Hitchcock in his campaign statement said he considered prohibition a settled issue, that he had voted to enforce and would continue to do so.

In the democratic and republican gubernatorial contests, neck and neck races developed. With 786 precincts heard from, Dan B. Butler of Omaha was leading Charles W. Bryan of Lincoln, a brother of W. J. Bryan, by slight margins with nearly half of the state reported, for the democratic nomination. In the republican race Charles H. Randall, with 819 precincts reported, was leading Adam McMullen, the vote being, Randall 25,880; McMullen 23,779.
