SOVIET TROOPS VICTORS IN BATTLE FOR VLADIVOSTOK

Tokio, Oct. 10.—(By Associated Press.)—The forces of General Dieterichs, head of the Vladivostok government, are retreating, demoralized before the onslaught of the soviet troops of the Far Eastern republic of Siberia, according to advices received here from Vladivostok.

The campaign for control of Vladivostok as it is evacuated by the Japanese appears from the reports to be going against the present Vladivostok government, whose soldiers are short of rifles, although they have plenty of ammunition. On the other hand, food is said to be scarce in the ranks of the Chita troops of the Far Eastern republic. Chita cavalry is attempting to cut the line of communication between Vladivostok and Nikolskoye, 60 miles northwest of Vladivostok.

Lieutenant Colonel O. P. M. Hazard, military attaché at the American embassy here, has left for Vladivostok to cooperate with the United States consul there in watching American interests.

FREE TO USE BONUS MONEY

Unreasonable Curtailment

The provision that a qualified applicant may borrow money for certain purposes is perfectly legitimate in themselves, but that such applicant cannot borrow money for other purposes equally legitimate and equally beneficial to the applicant, is not in aid of the constitutional provision but is an unreasonable curtailment of the constitutional rights of the applicant, and is invalid since neither express nor implied authority for making such a law or rule can be found in any provision contained in the constitution.

"Those enlisted or called into service during the war came from every occupation in life. In order to carry on their occupations upon their return to civil life those of them who possessed homes of their own and did not desire to engage in farming but did desire to engage in business or to enter one of the professions or to take up some trade or employment other than agriculture, were under the provisions of the constitution just as much entitled to borrow money to enable them to carry out such purposes as those who desired to engage in farming. There is no more reason why one should be excluded from borrowing money to aid in carrying out such purposes than there is for excluding one who desired to engage in agriculture."

Three other opinions affecting the administration of the bonus law were handed down by the supreme court this morning, all written by Justice Brand, as follows:

Other Opinions in Bonus

Cleere F. Hogan vs. World War State Aid commission; involving the right of an ex-service man to borrow from the bonus fund on property in which he has no legal title but in which the title is vested in his mother. In reversing the lower court's judgment in this case the supreme court holds that "it was not within the power of the commission to deprive the plaintiff of his right to use the real estate of his mother as security for the loan, nor was it within the power of the commission to limit the applicant's right to dispose of the money after it had been borrowed."

Sallie A. Carson vs. World War State Aid commission; involving the right of relatives designated in the bonus amendment, to secure a loan in a case where the deceased, if living, could have secured such a loan. In this case the court held that the relatives of a deceased ex-service man, "in the order named in the statute," may claim the bonus to which the ex-service man himself would have been entitled but are precluded the right to acquire a loan.

William F. Faulman vs. World War Veterans State Aid commission; involving the right of an ex-service man serving in the World war under an enlistment prior to June 3, 1915, to participate in the provisions of the Oregon bonus law. The judgment of the lower court in this case is affirmed in an opinion which holds that Faulman as a member of the reserve corps of the regular army at the time war was declared by this country upon Germany, "does not come within the prescribed class defined" by the bonus act and "is not entitled to share in or receive any money authorized to be expended" under the provisions of the act.

WOERNLE TO STAND TRIAL FOR DISBARMENT

In overruling a demurrer interposed by Joseph Woernle, Portland attorney, in the disbarment proceedings instituted against him, the supreme court this morning in effect holds that the accusations brought against Woernle constitute sufficient cause to justify his disbarment according to attorneys here.

The demurrer filed by Woernle to the complaint entered by the grievance committees of the Multnomah Bar association and the State Bar association asserted that the facts alleged in the accusation do not disclose any legal grounds for his disbarment.

"This demurrer is overruled and Woernle is given until October 25, to file an answer to the accusations."

"An attorney who commits perjury whether committed inside or outside of his professional employment, is subject to suspension or disbarment, without his having been first indicted and convicted," reads the opinion of the court which was written by Justice McCourt. "An accusation is sufficient which alleges the facts constituting such perjury."

STATEMENTS OF OVERTURF DENIED

Political animosity in no way brought on the action of the world war veterans' state aid commission in summarily removing H. J. Overturf of Bend as a Deschutes county appraiser, according to a statement issued by the commission today. Subsequent to his dismissal Mr. Overturf issued a public statement charging that the action was the result of political friction between himself and Governor Olcott.

"The motion for Mr. Overturf's prompt dismissal from his position of trust in connection with the handling of soldier aid moneys was not made, nor was it seconded by the chairman of the board," the statement declares.

"In concluding that Mr. Overturf had padded the value of property for the purpose of gaining state loans, the commission was unable to minimize that dereliction in its own mind on the grounds of his possible sympathy for the ex-service men since one of the most flagrant cases was one in which Mr. Overturf was disposing of his own property and, therefore, stood to profit personally from the transaction at the manifest expense of both the ex-service men and of the taxpayers of the state," the statement said.

The statement is signed by Sam

A. Koser, secretary of state; Geo. A. White, adjutant general; Arthur C. Spencer and Lyman G. Rice.

Marriage licenses today were issued by the county clerk to Walter J. Borchers, 29 of Sherwood and Jennie LaFlemme, 16, of route 9, Salem, and to Jesse R. Downey, 32, of Portland and Thersia Elkerenkotter, 32, of Salem.
