NEW ORDER TO ABSORB KLAN

National Associated Clans Will Swallow Ku Klux And Dominate Roost, Is Claim.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 10.—Imperial Wizard Simmons "the real and only original" Ku Klux Klan is threatened with disruption. This is on the word of George E. Kleiber, Jr., of Houston, grand commander of "The National patriotic Clans," recently chartered in Tennessee as a rival to the Atlanta interest of Simmons and his group. Edward Young Clarke.

Mr. Kleiber explained that the Clans have been incorporated in 20 states, the Pan American Confederation, these now figuring in the contract a result of charges that against the Imperial officers are to be admitted, in the new organization and that eventually the Clans expect to swallow the Klan and rule the United roles.

The result of suppression of the invisible empire is that, it was explained, to a desire to consolidate the patriotic order, each "All Highest" Simmons will have no ownership of the funds now in the hands of the Simmons-Clarke regime.

A rival organization is not the only one of Kleiber and his associates, but a rival organization of brothers within the klan who will oust Simmons and Clarke.

The revolt began in Texas, but is said to be spreading rapidly. A bulletin issued from Simmons headquarters says:

"Imperial headquarters continues to get word to these transgressors the country their abuse of various men, whom they claim to have insulted, charging them with disloyalty, laughing and everything else on the calendar. Yet the imperial officers have never made any effort to disprove the various charges which have been made against them individually, and as a whole."

The members here that the officers claim that many charges against them are trumped-up.

SOCIAL LIFE AND OLD FRIENDSHIPS

Gambler that a chief with typically American, they were getting their enjoyment and recreation out of a typically American institution, the neighborhood visit of business and professional men and their wives. Each of an evening they gathered to dance, play cards and visit. Over the repast following a midnight lunch the men talked politics, business, golf, baseball, or affairs of civic moment while, naturally, while the women chatted and laughed as they helped the hostess to clear away the mass incident to the evening's enjoyment.

Man Bores Injected.

How much healthy amusement we want to be found in these groups could be successfully proven again and destroyed by the poisonous and false doctrine of the Ku Klux Klan is beyond human calculation. But it accomplishes, they destruction in instances aforethought.

Hardly did the Klan become established in a community than those chiefs began to disintegrate. Inevitably the time would soon come when the interest of the evening would remain the regret of one or two members who had never before shouted themselves. Over those who did assemble would hang a pall of bored quiet, punctuated by long and embarrassing gaps in the usual conversation. The incident that would be related a mile or more of declaring the original atmosphere. Throughout the soul he lost and hopes would soon disappear in nature. He not query without avail. The more interesting group seemed now to be a collection of misfits—the responsibility was gone. Now fast active and clever the men talked in monosyllables of the weather and other commonplace topics. Ignorance is the minds of each was a vital subject of paint secret. The Ku Klux Klan, but it was never mentioned. Already the suspicion and distrust engendered by the Klan was eating into the community.

Lodges Disrupted.

In some instances these little groups survived two, or several times such meetings, with more goodness, enjoy and artificial than the succeeding one, but sooner or later they ended, severing the friendships and associations of years.

And thus did the Ku Klux inject their disrupting poison into fraternal orders, over-ride, chamber of commerce, business men's business organizations and all like associations. The pre-election gatherings in lodge rooms began to find small groups in the hallway, or whispered conversations replacing along the hall and gossiping palaver during the assembly in the war small hours disappeared altogether; directors of commercial clubs and other civic organizations who had the party method to perfect secret organ to kill a citizen control and deliberately absent themselves from meetings; businessmen suddenly became too busy to attend luncheons they had previously enjoyed as interesting and instructive.

With suspicion rife and friendships shorted, most of them lost, many invaluable rights and left, men passed men with whom they had been familiar for years on the street, without an word or a nod of recognition, and lifelong friends surely quake.

Life Friendships Broken.

One morning a few weeks ago I visited a prominent lawyer in one of those real estate communities or aggrandizement. He is one of those men whom you might classify as being neither Catholic nor Protestant, white nor Jew. Among his clients, he told me, were both Catholics and Protestants, whites and Jews, and Gentiles. He observed the office he was talking with, and immediately circumspect as to a man well past middle age who might recognize as being a successful merchant or professional man. "Here his professional men, all on a few moments later I missed my return to the lawyer and asked him:

"What do you know about the Ku Klux Klan? What is it doing in your city?"

He turned away for a minute, looked out of the window as if in meditation, then squared himself around to the desk across which I leaned him and said:

"I don't know much about the Klan, but I do know what it is doing in this city—it is smashing everything worth while in it.

"You see Mr. Jones, who was just in here. Well, I have known him since I first came to——. He is an insurance man, local broker and realty dealer. He has his office in this building on the floor just around the corner. He is a friend and for a number years I have ever known. He is not a churchman and never was, but his wife is a Catholic and their children have all been educated in Catholic schools.

"In the next office to me here is a Mr. Smith an equally fine man. He is almost the same age as Mr. Jones. He is an active member of a Protestant church and has been for years. He, too, has a family of children and these two families have lived within a block of each other for years and years.

Old "Dragon" Burns.

"Ever since I can remember these two men have been friends. Before the days of the automobile I used to see them walking down town together almost every morning, they lunched together at noon, and there was seldom a night when one or the other or both did not drop into the other's office to join him up on the way home. Even after they both got automobiles it was much the same. The families were always on very friendly terms and visited back and forth continuously; the children were equally at home in one house or the other.

"So far as I know there was never a bitch between these two men. If ever boys were staunch friends I have never seen them.

"Then the Klan got started here. Well, only knows how, and stirred up a religious fight in the schools. Smith was on the school board, which discharged one of the old teachers, presumably because she was a Catholic. I don't know just the details of how it came about, but Jones remonstrated with Smith over its action in voting to discharge this teacher and they had a row. They haven't spoken to each other since.

"That's what the Klan, Ku Kluxers are doing in this town."

DRY RULING TO SEND BRITISH TO CANADIAN PORTS

London, Oct. 10.—(By Associated Press)—The London morning newspapers give considerable prominence today to the ruling of Attorney General Daugherty in Washington prohibiting liquor on vessels within maritime waters, printing interviews with ship men, reports of the general feeling in the shipping trade, details of liquor sales aboard liners and speculations upon changing ports of destination in the event the ruling is upheld and enforced.

It is stated that a meeting of the members of the North Atlantic conference will be held in London this week at which the whole question will be discussed. It may also come up today at the usual weekly meeting of the conference in Liverpool.

The interviews published in the newspapers confirm the general attitude previously ascribed to the British shipping companies—that is "we shall say nothing and do nothing."

In some quarters there is expressed incredulity at the "crude proposal," as it is called, and the belief is declared that it is likely to be soon dropped when the authorities realize they will be the chief losers, as British liners undoubtedly will transfer their sailings to Canadian ports.

The Times prints details purporting to show that travelers would lose little time and gain in other ways by going to Quebec and Montreal instead of New York. The newspaper believes that even if some liners continued to New York their western terminus there would still be an increase in the popularity of the Canadian route.

TRY TO BURGLARIZE POLK FAIR EXHIBIT

Dallas, Oct. 10.—Some unknown persons made an effort to burglarize the county fair building Sunday evening by effecting an entrance through a hole in the roof of the main exhibition building. On the upper floor of this building was displayed the fancy work, canning products and flowers. Fortunately these exhibits had all been removed from the building in order to reach the lower floor it was necessary to break the hole as a large door after reaching this floor another hole was broken to get into the large dance hall. They made their exit from this building by one of the windows. During the fair and a short time prior to its opening while the exhibits were being placed the fair board maintained a night watchman on the grounds.

SMELTER KING DIES SUDDENLY AT SOUTHAMPTON

Southampton, Oct. 10.—(By Associated Press.)—Isaac Guggenheim, American multi-millionaire smelter magnate died here early today.

Mr. Guggenheim came here in his motor car from London yesterday to meet Henry W. Hardy, who arrived in the Aquitania. Both stayed at the principal hotel.

Just before retiring Mr. Guggenheim complained of pains in the chest which he attributed to indigestion. This morning he was too indisposed to take breakfast and a physician was sent for but Mr. Guggenheim died before the doctor arrived.

For some time Mr. Guggenheim had not been in the best of health and it is understood he had a slight stroke a short time ago but had been able to get about and had arranged to return to New York next Saturday.

A coroner's inquest will be held this afternoon to consider whether an autopsy is necessary. Mrs. Guggenheim and her daughter will arrive this afternoon.
