FAILED TO PROVE TWINS WERE DEAD IF NOT DOLLS

Hammond, Ind., Oct. 21—Mrs. Hazel McNally, declared by her 55-year-old husband to be the mother of "doll baby" twins, was freed of a charge of murder today when Judge Henry C. Cleveland ruled the state had failed to prove the infants are not still alive.

The 26-year-old wife, who has grinned and giggled through four days of the preliminary hearing, while witnesses attempted to fasten on her the charge of double murder, collapsed and fell fainting to the floor as the cheers and applause of 150 women courtroom fans rang in her ears.

By a strange paradox of the law, the defense which maintained the twins "born" to Mrs. McNally last December were but inanimate creations of china and straw dressed in baby clothes, won its victory because the state was unable to prove that the mystery babies were not at the present moment living, breathing human beings with actual flesh and blood.

The missing corpus delicti—lawyers' phraseology for the "body of the crime"—proved a stumbling block to the state and because of it the mystery of the McNally twins, whether they ever existed, whether they were only dressed-up dolls, or whether, as the state contended, they were first real babies and then dolls, remains unsolved.

ALL POLITICAL PARTIES ANXIOUS FOR ELECTION

London, Oct. 21.—(By Associated Press.)—All the political parties welcome the prospect of an immediate general election, which it is recognized, could not have long been delayed in any case.

The conservatives especially feel that it would greatly strengthen their administration if they were able to get a definite mandate from the country. Moreover, formation of the new ministry now would entail about 15 bye elections, involving much loss of time, with the possible prospect of a general election in the near future confronting them.

The conservative party meeting for the election of Mr. Bonar Law as leader will be held Monday afternoon at the Hotel Cecil, the Carlton club not affording enough room to accommodate the prospective attendance. This meeting will be followed, according to the best information, by announcement of the dissolution of parliament, either Monday night or Tuesday.

Expectation continues generally that the polling will take place November 28. As ratification of the Irish treaty is no longer a contentious matter, it is believed it can be disposed of within the specified time, and parliament is likely to rise for its Christmas recess early in December.

If the conservatives come into power as a result of the election, their policy, it is declared, will be not to aim so much at legislative achievement as to concentrate upon "sound administration and economy." Among the chief features of their foreign policy will be the maintenance and strengthening of the entente with France and a recasting of the British Near Eastern policy.

"We are placing men almost every day," Judge Race said. "Some of the jobs do not pay as much as the workers believe they should have, but we're still able to offer work to those seeking it."

enlisting of the motormen and conductors of the street car system. I had one conductor admit to me that 70 per cent of the carmen in Portland were members of an organization "that is 100 per cent American." He admitted that he was a member of such an organization. This assertion is amply substantiated by the precinct returns in the primary election of last May. Without exception the precincts populated largely by street car men and their families gave the klan ticket candidates heavy majorities, or pluralities.

Fraud Precinct Klanish.

Precinct 201, now of alleged election fraud fame, the precinct where Governor Olcott and J. B. Coffey were robbed of a big share of the vote cast for them, was a typical one of these precincts. Investigators from the district attorney's office reported the precinct to be strongly Ku Klux and largely peopled by street car company employes.

During all of this pre-political activity of the klan the city was, like every other community supporting a klan, rife with destructive religious agitation, but the effects were less marked than in other parts of the state because of the size of the community and the looser fabric of its social structure. Whereas, social alliances in smaller cities are usually formed in neighborhood groups and include a more or less diversified personnel in the matter of religious affiliations, in a city the size of Portland they are more likely to be the result selection and contact through a common church. Most of the social groups in Portland have grown out of the association of people brought together by membership in, or attendance at the same church. Hence, these clubs and other organizations were more apt to be in accord on matters of religious controversy than the neighborhood clubs of the smaller cities.

Boycott Not Effective.

Nor was the effect of the klan on business particularly marked during the first few months of its existence. The kleagles were not so restricted in their field of prospects as to resort to the boycott to secure individual members, and the boycott could not be made effective except in the case of small merchants in suburban districts where the klan was strong.

The klan agitation did, however, serve to draw a sharp line of distinction between Catholics and Protestants that reacted strongly against semi-public institutions, such as denominational orphanages and other public homes that was shown clearly in the annual drive for funds for the community chest. After the coming of the klan the community chest drive became a task of weeks of hard work, where it had before been put over in a few days.

It was not until the klan started its political drive that its destructive influence really began to be felt in Portland in a business, civic and social way to any marked extent.

DOUBLE MURDER MYSTERY SOON TO BE SOLVED

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 21.—Supported by the information in an affidavit by the witness to the murders of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, rector of the Episcopal church of St. John the Evangelist, and his choir leader, Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills, authorities today appeared confident that the mystery soon is to be solved.

With guards keeping leading characters in the drama under constant surveillance, no fear was felt that suspected persons might disappear. Detectives were engaged in running down details considered by the officials essential before making an arrest.

Says He Has an Alibi.

Reports of the discovery of a witness to the double shooting, a woman of reputable character, were confirmed officially.

In a statement given out at his home in LaVallette, N. J., Henry Stevens, crack shot and brother of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the slain rector, discussed the killing.

"There is no blood on my hands," he declared. "If I had guilty knowledge of this awful thing my conscience would accuse me without ceasing."

He said that he had no opinion as to who killed Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills but had an impression that blackmail was the motive.

"It is my impression," he said, "that some of the evil characters who live in certain sections of New Brunswick, no doubt more than one person was involved and one of them might well have been a criminally inclined woman—heard of the town gossip that associated the names of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills. These desperate characters probably decided to take advantage of the talk to blackmail Dr. Hall."

Question for Specialists.

"Why Mrs. Mills' throat was cut is a question for specialists," he said, adding that this applied also to questions as to why the love letters were scattered about and the bodies laid out in an orderly manner.

"At the moment these murders were committed," he concluded, "I was within 100 yards of my home, fishing in the ocean. Several friends were with me from about 7 until half past ten on that night. At 10:30 we went home where Mrs. Stevens and some friends were awaiting us. Half an hour later my family, including myself, went to bed."

ST. VINCENTS ONE OF BEST HOSPITALS SAYS INVESTIGATER

Portland, Oct. 21—There is nothing wrong in St. Vincent's hospital so far as sanitary conditions are concerned, according to Dr. George Parrish, in a report submitted to Mayor Baker yesterday. Dr. Parrish was designated by the council to make an investigation of the institution, an inquiry that was sought by the sisters in charge of the hospital. Sister Lucretia, exnun, in recent address, had charged insanitary conditions prevail there.

"Yesterday a thorough inspection was made from the attic above the sixth floor to and including the basement," the report reads. "I found everything absolutely correct—nothing wrong. For five years at intervals of a few days, I have passed through this institution and during that time I have never made a suggestion which was not immediately complied with by the sisters. At no time have they ever placed the slightest obstacle in the way of the health bureau."

The report also points out that a few years ago the American College of Surgeons convened and drafted requirements necessary for a hospital to meet in order to be enrolled in membership.

"These requirements were very high and difficult to meet," Dr. Parrish says, "and none but hospitals of the highest type are able to obtain membership in this order.

"A committee selected from members of the College of Surgeons, acting as judges in these inspections of hospitals, passed St. Vincent's as one of our hospitals to its membership."
