W. H. Walton returned Monday from Copco, on the Klamath river where he attended the celebration attendant upon turning on of the second unit of power from the recently completed dam built at a cost exceeding $1,000,000 by the California-Oregon Power Co. Over a thousand people attended the celebration, including a car of engineers and bankers from the northwest and two cars of San Francisco bankers. The dam is 170 feet high above the surface of the Klamath river and extends a still greater distance beneath the surface of the stream to bedrock. Approximately 42,000 horse-power is developed, with a possible development of as much more at a second damsite. The structure is one of the largest in the northwest and the company expects to be delivering power to Salem in the near future. A second unit of the Prospect power plant on the upper Rogue river owned by the same company is to be constructed at once.

MORE ABOUT THE KLAN

of a fraternal and patriotic order that had sprung out of the Scottish Rite Masons. Thus camouflaging, the clan succeeded in enrolling many Masons in their order who were ignorant of the real intent and purposes of the organization and with this prestige of membership induced others to pledge up money for donations, dues and assessments. Until exposed the organizers reaped a small harvest of Salem money, but under the sunlight of publicity the promising fraternal flower withered to almost nothing. Practically all of the men of standing who had been fooled by the early propaganda either withdrew, or cancelled their citizenship by the less antagonizing means of declining to attend any of the meetings.

In Salem the Klan has principally been known for its inactivity and the character of its leadership. Prior to the opening of the state wide political movement of the ku kluxers in the primary campaign the Koo Kooos here were under the ban of a public stigma that effectively checked their most determined efforts to extend and enlarge their membership. By capitalizing the grievances of discontented political elements in the county they were able to muster a sizable, but ineffective following in the primary and this machine has further been extended by the same means during the present campaign.

Ever since its inception here the Klan has been under the leadership of men whose chief recommendation for the work has been their apparent inability to make good at anything else. Most of those active in the Klan have been deposed holders of political offices with personal axes to grind. When all else failed the Klan seemed to offer the means of securing a meal ticket.

In short, the Klan in Salem and Marion county, despite repeated efforts to bolster it up, has been a fizzle.

STILL BUYING VOTES FOR CASH IN OHIO

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 6.—An election scandal in which one man has been arrested and our others are sought on warrants charging them with the attempted purchase of absentee votes of Pike county residents now living in Scioto and Ross counties, today featured the eleventh hour of Ohio's strenuous political campaign. Former Judge A. Z. Blair of Portsmouth, who presided at the disenfranchisement of scores of Adams county vote sellers several years ago, is assisting a citizens protective committee in Pike county with prosecutions.

MIDDLE WEST CITIES ISOLATED BY BIG STORM

San Francisco, Nov. 6.—Heavy rain and snow driven by high winds in the middle west states have partially isolated some cities of that region from wire communication and have slowed up trains. Warnings of high winds have been posted along the coast from San Francisco to Tatoosh, Wash., by weather observers, in continuation of the storms which began last night.

The fall of snow and rain shows signs of ceasing in the middle west after continuing since Saturday. Denver is said to have no communication by telephone with outside cities. The Western Union company is sending telegrams over detoured routes between the west and east. Hundreds of telephone and telegraph wires are down from Denver east through Colorado and Nebraska.

Telephone and telegraph companies say the storms are unusually severe for early winter. The United States weather bureau reports say a 40 mile wind is blowing at sea off Puget Sound and that a big storm driving in from the North Pacific will be felt on the mainland tonight.

Snow had subsided in western states today and no further precipitation for tomorrow was predicted by the weather bureau, although frost was indicated for southern Arizona. Cold weather will continue to prevail in western states, it was predicted and northern Utah will have unsettled weather tonight as a result of the storm moving southeast from the north Pacific.

The storm caused gales from North Dakota south to Kansas and in the upper Mississippi valley last night, the weather bureau announced. It snowed or rained generally throughout the Mississippi valley and the lake regions during the last 24 hours.

SALEM CHAMBER HEARS CONGRESSMAN HAWLEY

That it is the privilege of the people of the United States to determine to what extent congress shall subsidize private enterprises, was the belief expressed by Congressman W. C. Hawley of Oregon in a speech delivered before a large crowd at the Salem chamber of Commerce luncheon today noon.

Although the people would have no direct vote on such matters, Congressman Hawley believes that the sentiment expressed by them will influence largely the moves of legislators.

Patrolmen in Maryland are required to report to the State Highway department the location and cause of every accident that occurs on the state roads. The information acquired in this way is used by the department as a guide in the planning of improvements which will reduce the accident hazard. When numerous accidents are found to occur at any point, the dangerous feature is eliminated, even at considerable expense.

NINETY MINERS BURIED IN SHAFT OF BIG COLLIERY

fully burned were brought up and rushed to a hospital. The men were unconscious and their recovery is regarded as extremely doubtful.

The fan house was destroyed by fire which caught from the explosion and this fact led to the fear that the entombed men were smothered. Owing to the volume of gas in the mine, the rescuers worked in relays and replacements were necessary at brief intervals.

Most of the men who went to work this morning were married. The news of the explosion brought their wives and children to the shaft mouth, where they gathered in dumb horror. The shaft was not damaged by the explosion and the cage continued to operate. It was said by mine authorities that one of the main entries was blocked by falling debris about 500 feet from the foot of the shaft.

There is a "man-way" which makes another entrance to the mine, but whether the entombed men had been cut off from it had not been determined.

LOST-2 TRAINS STALLED IN SNOW

Casper, Wyo., Nov. 6.—Two Burlington trains, Nos. 29 and 39, last heard of early Sunday morning south of Wendover, Wyo.

Somewhere between Wendover and Cheyenne, passengers on Burlington train No. 29, which left Denver Saturday afternoon for Billings, were still snowbound today as a result of the blizzard which swept central and southern Wyoming and tied up all traffic. Division headquarters of the C. B. and Q. here denied all knowledge of the whereabouts of the train, which should have arrived early yesterday and was overdue some 30 hours at noon today. Train No. 30, which left here Saturday night for Denver passed Wheatland at 3:30 Sunday morning and is believed to be stalled in the blocks below that point. Wire communication between here and Denver has been out since Saturday afternoon.

$125 New Phonograph $62 Closing out one nationally advertised fine Phonographs at half price. $1 down, $1 a week.
