The local merchants who invested in the Peon pants, made famous by a noted film actor, are now fearing that they will lose money on the investment. The fad did not "take" here like it did in Portland and the few that bought, mostly high school students, soon became tired of the popularity and are now endeavoring to resell the floppy leg breeches. It is said that they can be bought cheap.

The office force of the Journal was yesterday presented with a number of large Japanese radishes, each more than a foot long and about an inch in circumference, by W. G. Gibson. The radishes were grown on his farm three miles from Salem on the Silverton road. At first glance one would think that the large radishes were horse radish roots which had been peeled. The radishes were tender and sweet contrary to what one would generally believe owing to the large size.

Sharp Contrasts Between Coal Production And Prices For Two-Year Period Show How Secretary Hoover's Efforts Held Prices Down

By Ernest L. Priest
Every American can draw two valuable lessons from the chart above. In 1920, when coal production was three times what it is last summer, the price of bituminous coal rose to $12 a ton at the mine and advanced $6.50 during the period corresponding in the calendar to this year's strike months. There was artificially induced buying, and there was no attempt to check it or to inform the country of the facts.

In 1922, the chart shows when suspended production brought a genuine scarcity, the price was held to an average of $6.70 a ton at the mines, despite "bootlegging" and the few operators who refused to come under the Hoover price agreement. There are reasons for the phenomenon of finding low production and low prices charted for the same year.

In the fall of 1921 the Secretary of Commerce, seeing that a strike was planned, organized trade associations into a campaign to quiet buy reserve stocks. The strike therefore found the United States with 75,000,000 tons, the largest surplus on record. Then last May when prices started to sky-rocket, Secretary Hoover began the organization of operators under voluntary price restraint agreements, at the same time announcing that he would press for legislation enabling the Interstate Commerce Commission to embargo profiteers.

The mere announcement of these moves caused prices to drop. When the strike ended, the price agreement ended too. A program of organizing transportation facilities to their fullest and at the same time asking the public through the press to hold off on buying until stocks were replenished continued the emergency measures. Mr. Conrad E. Spens, whose picture is at the left, was appointed Federal Fuel Distributor by President Harding and is seeing this part of the work through the winter.

Princeton's 30-yard line. Two Harvard rushes failed to gain and Buell failed in another attempt at a field goal. Putting the ball on its own 20-yard line, Princeton in its first effort of the game to advance the ball in scrimmage gained five yards. Cleaves carried the ball. Crum added a yard and Princeton immediately punted again. In three plays Harvard had a first down at midfield. A short forward pass from Buell to Owen and a line buck by Owen gave Harvard first down on Princeton's 25-yard line. Captain Buell of Harvard was injured in the forward pass play and was replaced by Spalding. Dinmore had previously replaced Wingate at quarter for Princeton.

Break Favors Tigers. After another exchange of punts Harvard through line smashes by Chapin and a forward pass of 12 yards from Spalding to Owen brought a first down on Princeton's 40-yard line. An end run of ten yards by Gherke after several short gains gave Harvard first down on Princeton's 25-yard line. Two Harvard plays gained only five yards and Owen standing on Princeton's 27-yard line failed in an attempt at field goal. Putting the ball in play on its own 20-yard line Princeton could not gain in three plays and punted to Harvard's 35-yard line. Gherke of Harvard fumbled on the next play and Baker of Princeton recovered the ball on Harvard's 12-yard line. After a five-yard penalty on Princeton, Crum gained five yards and Gray on the next play was downed two yards from Harvard's goal. Then Princeton scored a touchdown. Crum took the ball across the Harvard line. Dinmore added a point by a kick, making the score Princeton 7; Harvard 3.
