George A. Smith and V. A. Goode have brought suit in the circuit court against W. L. Benham and the Santiam Reclamation company. In the complaint, it is alleged that on Oct. 5, 1921, W. L. Benham gave his promissory note to the plaintiffs for the sum of $1500, due in 18 months. As the note remains unpaid the plaintiffs ask for judgment and the sale of Benham's rights to an application for a permit to appropriate the public water of the state, which is sufficient to irrigate 200 acres. The plaintiffs also ask that their foreclosure of the water rights be made a prior lien to that of the Santiam Reclamation company.

PARDON SOUGHT FOR JESSE WEBB

Circuit Judge Morrow of Multnomah county has recommended the pardon of Jesse Webb, serving a life term in the state prison here for murder, it has become known here. Governor Ritner who admits receipt of the recommendation declares that he has not as yet had time to give the matter any consideration.

Webb was received at the prison here August 5, 1911, under sentence to hang Nov. 5 of the same year but was saved from the gallows at the last minute through commutation of his sentence to life imprisonment by Governor West.

Webb, according to prison officials, has for a number of years been a model prisoner and an influence for good among his fellow inmates of the prison. He is the oldest prisoner in the institution in point of continuous service although several other prisoners have served terms aggregating much longer service. Cal Judy who was once released on a conditional pardon and later returned to the prison has served more than 30 years and Jack LaRoche who escaped from the prison on wood camp following the death of Governor Withycomb who it is said had promised him his release, and who was later recaptured has also "done" a longer "stretch of time" than has Webb.

Webb who was a printer before his arrest on the murder charge, has had charge of the prison printing plant here and has edited the prison publication "Lead a Hand" for a number of years. It is understood that the Typographical union and allied trade unions are strongly endorsing the move for Webb's release at this time.

Rumor Persists She Will Marry Prince

BERRY GROWERS SHOW INTEREST IN COMING MEET

According to all reports, loganberry men in this section of the valley are deeply interested in the meeting to be held Wednesday morning, December 20, at the offices of the Oregon Growers Co-operative association.

It is understood that districts in which loganberry growing is of vital interest, growers will meet and select a number of delegates to attend the meeting. While the sessions will not be closed for those interested and who wish to attend, yet efforts will be made to secure a representative attendance by the election of delegates.

It is probable that a permanent organization will be effected of loganberry growers and with this organization, plans will be discussed whereby the markets for loganberries may be increased and the public generally as to the merits of the loganberry.

It is pretty well conceded by those in touch with the loganberry situation, that the big problem is that of widening the loganberry market, and as to how this shall be done, will be one of the first questions to come up before the permanent organization.

It is also conceded by many growers that merely meeting and asking for six cents a pound will hardly be productive of results and that the real remedy lies in the marketing problems.

$141,000 NEEDED FOR ENDOWMENT

With a total of $1,059,631 being reported from the whole state in the Willamette forward movement campaign, less than $200,000 remains to be raised in the remaining six days.

In Salem there has been raised all together a sum of $169,531. The goal that has been set for Salem is $250,000 which leaves only $80,469 yet to be raised here. Today the captains at their luncheon reported $11,890 for the day. By increasing the amount for each day by several thousand dollars the full quota will have been reached.

"So many people have been saying that Willamette is now on trial," said William E. Hanson at the meeting today. "I beg to differ because I believe that Willamette university has proven its worth. We are on trial and not the college."

John H. Scott, local realtor, said in a short talk, "Salem has been enjoying the benefits of Willamette university for the past 80 years and what have we done in return. The time is at hand for us to show our appreciation."

This afternoon a number of autos have been volunteered to take canvassers in the rural section about Salem.

The primary reason back of the suspension of the Appeal to Reason is that it didn't.

YOKEL, LATE OF SALEM, CAUGHT AND CONFESSES

The interesting, if disastrous career of Herbert West, "yokel" holdup man—or youth—of Portland, came to a close yesterday afternoon when he was arrested by Portland police. At the station West, who is only 15 years of age and who, until last August, was held at the state training school for boys in Salem, confessed to robbing three Portland stores.

Jimmy Dunn, clothier, was to have been the yokel's next victim, the robber told officers. He and an unapprehended pal were to meet yesterday to rob the clothing store and it was while he was preparing to keep the trust that detectives made the arrest. Police said that, notwithstanding West's youth he is a dangerous type. "I don't think I would shoot a man just because he didn't do what I told him," West told police, "but if he resisted I might shoot him."

West was released from the reform school here last August and went to Kellogg, Idaho, to visit his mother, Mrs. D. J. Sloan. There, he said, he robbed a place to get a revolver and then went to the hills to practice using it. Later he went to Portland and moved to a rooming house where he made plans to become a "great outlaw."

The yokel admitted three holdups in Portland. They were staged at the Blaklin clothing store, the Perlman clothing store and the Edwards tire shop.

Young West would pass a high intelligence test, it was said.

serious today when the Tacoma Railway and Power company served notice to the city that beginning at noon it would be unable to furnish power to the city line. City power had to be turned off for three hours yesterday afternoon to conserve the water at the La Grande power plant, and hundreds of homes using electricity for heating and cooking were greatly inconvenienced in face of the freezing weather.

The city officials today were negotiating for the assistance of various lumber mills during the shortage. The action of the Tacoma Railway and Power company was forced by the fact that the Stone and Webster plants are also handicapped by a shortage of water, due to the freezing conditions in mountain streams.

City officials served notice today that street lights will continue to be dimmed and shut-downs will be necessary until the situation is improved. Notice was also served on Camp Lewis that the city will cut off the power and lights beginning today.

Inland Empire Freezing. Spokane, Wash., Dec. 14.—Sub-zero temperatures continued in eastern Washington last night and early today, with little relief in sight. Yakima reported 11 degrees below zero, Wenatchee 10 below and Walla Walla 3 below. It was 5 below here at 1 a. m.

Bellingham reported 21 above and Aberdeen 38 above. The local weather bureau said the cold would continue tonight. The temperature was moderating today.

Nick Skilbred, caught in a recent snowstorm near Adair, Idaho died in a hospital here last night of his injuries.
