LOSS BY FIRE

the state hospital, both of which are out of the city limits. These fires, however, were fought by the local department.

Fewer Calls Answered.

These figures, contained in the annual report of "Buck" Hutton, chief of the local department, will be submitted to the council at its regular meeting tonight.

The loss was not only much greater here last year, but there were many more fires. In 1921 the department responded to 170 alarms during the year, while, during the last 12 months, it answered but 142 alarms. Last year the trucks traveled 215 miles, and this year, however, they covered 239 miles.

The loss on buildings this year totaled $18,746.33 and the loss on contents was $43,950. Insurance paid on buildings was $6386.30 and on contents, $17,250.

Citizens Are Thanked.

There are, at the present time, one auto pumper and two chemical and hose cars at the disposal of the local fighters. Soon the city will have its new triple-combination fire truck.

SALEM WOMAN PASSES IN EAST

A telegram was received this morning by A. T. Woolpert from Mrs. Woolpert at Edgar, Nebraska, stating that her mother, Mrs. E. M., Fugate, died at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

Mrs. Fugate had been a resident of Salem for the past 15 years and has been living with her daughter, 1195 South High street. She left about the first of June for an extended visit to the old home town in Nebraska, where resides a daughter, Mrs. Frank B. Voigt, at whose home she passed away, and while there was taken ill. As soon as it was learned that the illness would likely be serious, Mrs. Woolpert, Salem, and Mrs. P. A. Fugate of Aberdeen, Washington, daughters, were summoned.

While the telegram stated that no funeral arrangements had been made as yet, Mr. Woolpert stated that he thought that the body would be shipped here for burial.

LIVESLEY SUES HORST COMPANY

Alleging breach of contract, T. A. Livesley & company have brought suit against the E. Clemens Horst company for the return of $126,000 paid in advance for hops, based on a contract signed February 2, 1920.

The plaintiffs allege that the E. Clemens Horst company agreed to sell and deliver them 600,000 pounds of hops, grown in the California Wheatland hop district, and that such hops should be equal or better than prime hops of the Wheatland district. The hops were for 1922 delivery and the price 42 cents a pound.

Of the 600,000 pounds involved in the contract, the plaintiff allege that only 327,134 pounds were up to the quality specified in the contract, and that the remainder was immature, broken bales, immature, of dull and uneven color, carelessly dried, dirtily picked and with stems and foreign substances.

According to the terms of the contract, T. A. Livesley & company had paid in advance of delivery various sums, amounting to $126,000. But when delivery was tendered, it was found that, according to the complaint, that only 1789 of the 2977 bales involved in the contract were up to quality.

The plaintiffs refused to accept hops alleged not up to specifications of contract, and claiming that the defendants had violated their contract, the Salem firm sued for the total amount of money advanced.

What's New on the Market

BY FORREST GINN

From 32 to 34 cents per pound is being offered by local butchers for fancy dressed gobblers and hens. Old Toms are bringing two cents a pound less. Live turkeys, No. 1, are from 25 to 27 cents a pound.

The wholesale price on ducks is this year higher than geese. From 22 to 25 cents a pound is being offered for No. 1 dry or steam picked ducks. The price on large live ducks is from 16 to 18 cents a pound and from 13 to 14 cents on the smaller ones.

Geese are being quoted at the buying price at from 20 to 23 cents a pound for number one steam or dry picked.

No. 1 dry picked capons are bringing from 30 to 32 cents wholesale.

It is thought by local butchers that enough birds at the prices quoted can be secured and that a raise will be unnecessary. The Portland market is but btween two and three cents higher than the prices quoted here. The retail price on turkeys will be about the same as at Thanksgiving which will hold true with the other birds.
