

SEEK RELEASE OF LOST LEGION FROM PRISON

Chicago, Feb. 21.—An organization has been formed to obtain the release of Leavenworth penitentiary's "lost legion" of war prisoners who fought during the world war and who were given prison sentences for infractions of military discipline. The committee to review cases of military prisoners is the official name selected.

A national movement is planned by the committee, the personnel of which is drawn from 24 organizations, including Gold Star Mothers and Red Cross nurses and the various ex-soldier groups. It is intended to have the trial and punishment of every American soldier now serving sentence for offenses in war time, officially reviewed.

Speeches made at the organization meeting of the committee contended the last three presidents have taken part in freeing objectors, slackers and others, while no executive has lifted a hand to liberate the men who went over the top and who were over-sentenced in the heart of war for offenses which in some cases would draw only a reprimand from a civilian judge.

An army board of review is of no avail, the organization contends. A civilian committee, able to act impartially, must review the cases, it states.

POOR FARMS OF NATION SCANDAL ASSERTS DAVIS

Chicago, Feb. 21.—An indictment of poor farms and orphan asylums in all parts of the country as characterized by conditions "revolting and a scandal to the nation" was delivered by Secretary of Labor James Davis in an address here today. He said that a survey being conducted by the department of labor disclosed American county charitable institutions that are "a century behind the times," "monuments of waste," and places of "filth, cruelty, inhumanity and horror." Children are born in such institutions he said, "to a heritage of misery."
"Huge sums are wasted annually in conducting 100 poor farms for 100 counties in one state," he said. "Concentration in the care of the aged, orphans and widowed would bring happiness to those unfortunates. The present archaic system is as bad as the workhouses exposed by Charles Dickens in England years ago or worse. Un-speakable suffering has been disclosed. An overseer performing an operation for gangrene with a back-knife is one of the horrors thus far revealed."

The secretary said that at the conclusion of his term in the cabinet he would devote the remainder of his life to fraternal work.

Blue Seal Pabcolin Rugs and Yard Goods

The Heaviest Competitive Felt Base Floor Covering

Don't Miss This Opportunity of Test

Blue Seal Pabcolin weighs more than 32 lbs. (figuring 660 square yards) than any other competitive felt-base floor covering.	The Quality of the Felt is wool, cotton, and burlap, 37 per cent of ingredients being burlap which gives us a long fibre felt and acts the same as hair in plaster. It's adhesive and a binder.	Refined, Compound Asphaltum Compounded in California at the oil refineries owned by the makers of Pabcolin rugs. It has a higher melting point than any other in the world and is purer.	Durability and Wear The raw felts and saturated felts are run under a collar system of pressure of enormous weight that reduces it into a thin, tenacious sheet and adds to its durability and wear.

You Should Know the Composition and Materials in Your Floor Coverings As Much as You Know the Buying Power of Your Dollars.

No CREEPING or CRAWLING. Reducing the felt under the pressure mentioned above and encasing it in the seal as we do, we reduce the possibilities of creeping and crawling, a defect so common in other felt base floor coverings.	METALLIC ENAMEL PAINT. The paint used on the surface of Pabcolin is a metallic enamel paint, not a common soft oil paint often used by other manufacturers of floor coverings.	30 Per Cent more PAINT. We guarantee to you that we use at least 30 per cent more paint on the surface of Pabcolin than there is on the same amount of floor covering of any other make, either cork or felt base.	The BAKING PROCESS. The paint is baked on for a period of seven days and nights at a low temperature.

LONGER WEAR LONGER WEAR. Longer baking at low temperature means thorough baking and oxidation and additional wear in the surface covering.	GUARANTEE PABCOLIN is manufactured in OAKLAND, California, by the Paraffine Companies, Inc. It is sold to you with their guarantee that it has to give perfect satisfaction. If it does not, we are authorized to replace it.
