COLLEGE AGAIN WINS HONORS

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, June 13.—Designation of the Oregon Agricultural college as a "distinguished college" for the sixth consecutive time is announced in a telegram to President W. J. Kerr from Major General Charles Morton, commander of the ninth corps area.

"The secretary of war sends congratulations in which I join," reads part of the message.

The "distinguished" rating, given after inspection by the federal war department, means that the college is classed among the 25 per cent of institutions having similar military instruction in the country which are most efficient in their work.

This is the seventh time the college has received this distinction, first given in 1917. The only year missed was 1919, when many of the cadets were away fighting in the World War. A gold star worn on the left sleeve of each cadet's uniform shows that the Oregon Agricultural college belongs to the honored 25 per cent.

Five per cent of graduates from this institution who have taken the reserve officers' training course may be selected as honor graduates each year. One or more of these young men is usually tendered a commission as second lieutenant in the regular army or passing the physical requirements.

MATRIMONIAL TRIALS START EARLY FOR HANNA

Dallas, Or., June 12.—The trials and tribulations of a married man begin early, doubtless is the opinion of W. L. Hanna, who within a couple of hours after his marriage Wednesday was called upon to go through the ceremony again. It all came about through a technicality, but technicalities sometimes loom like the rock of Gibraltar.

Rev. Richard Hyilton of Ellensburg, Wash., performed the ceremony Wednesday for his brother-in-law, Mr. Hanna, and Mrs. Mabel Kidd, but when he reported at the county clerk's office in the evening to make a return on the certificate, he found that technically there had no ceremony, as he had no license to marry people in Oregon. Rev. Mr. Hyilton lost no time and probably met no speed cops, for he intercepted the happy couple at Portland when they arrived by train, took them to Vancouver, Wash., and made doubly sure of the marriage.

PROHIBITION VALUE DECLARED ESTABLISHED

DeKalb, Ill., June 12.—The passing of the American saloon has already produced a marked effect upon the social life of the nation, Dr. A. C. R. Brandell of Rock Island, president of the Lutheran Augustana synod in his report to the 65th annual convention of that body here.

"Despite periods of financial depression," he said, "there is poverty like the poverty of a generation ago."

EXTENSIVE PLACER OPERATIONS PLANNED

Fatcanok, Alaska.—A huge placer gold mining enterprise will be launched next summer in an effort to wrest an estimated $15,000,000 from a single section of interior Alaska. The operations will require 100 miles of ditches and laterals and a small army of men.

The area to be worked over will include such historic bonanza creeks as Goldstream, Fairbanks, Fish, Cleary, Big and Little Dome, Eldorado, Pedro and Luther. The enterprise was made possible by the construction of the government's Alaska railroad, over which will be transported the materials for building flumes, pipe lines and steel syphons. The hydraulic method of mining will be used. To take the water over the mountain ranges steel pipes from one-half to three-eighths inches in thickness and five feet in diameter will be needed.

Alaska has a number of large low-grade areas which are supposed to contain more gold than has been taken from the territory.

HARDING MEMORIAL STAMPS IN DEMAND

Washington.—The Harding memorial postage stamp seems to be much in demand by stamp collectors throughout the country. The postoffice department has been compelled to enjoin postmasters from selling or otherwise furnishing precanceled stamps of that and other issues to persons or concerns not authorized to use precanceled stamps, the conditions governing the use of which specifically provide they can be furnished by post masters only after special authority in each instance has been obtained from the department.

Precanceled stamps are those furnished in large lots of second, third, and fourth class mails bearing across their face the printed name of the post office where they must be used. Each stamp is accounted for by the user and the mail they carry does not have to be cancelled by machines or by hand at the sending post office.

DELEGATES OFF FOR HOME TODAY

Cleveland, Ohio, June 12.—Most of the 2000 delegates and alternates who attended the republican national convention were on their way home today or were ready to start after a needed and welcome full quota of sleep.

With hundreds of visitors who came to Cleveland to see the big show, they began pouring out of the city within an hour after the convention ended on special and regular trains and in automobiles. The first special train leaving departed before midnight for New York and other points in the east.

Flag draped buildings, cleaning crews in the huge gray auditorium where the convention was held, rapidly thinning crowds in hotels, the meeting of the new republican national committee and a few lingering sight seers remained as evidence of the affair, but the tumult and milling was over.

William M. Butler, President Coolidge's campaign manager, planned to leave for Chicago to open the party's headquarters there after today's national committee meeting and other leaders were hastening home to begin work for the Coolidge-Dawes ticket.

NATURAL GAS VENTS FOUND IN TULE LAKE

Klamath Falls, Or., June 12.—Eight vents emitting natural gas have suddenly opened in the dry bed of Tule Lake, 20 miles east of here. Tests by J. D. Howard, industrial geologist, show gas to be of paraffine variety. Flumes more than a foot in length burning with intense heat are reported to have been obtained in tests.

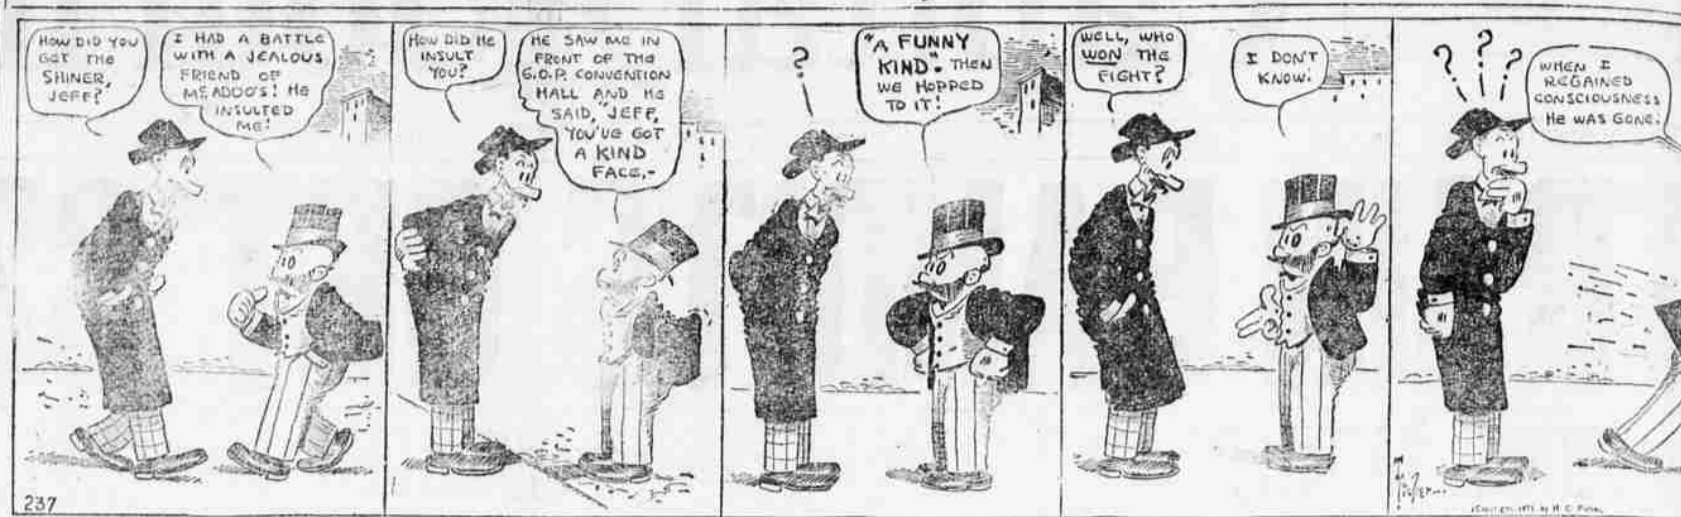

The vents or chimneys range in diameter six to thirty inches and are several feet deep, Howard says.

Between August 5 and 10 last year water disappeared from eight sections of Tule Lake. Howard contends that nature is now disproving some geologists' statements that this area is burnt out by volcanic action.

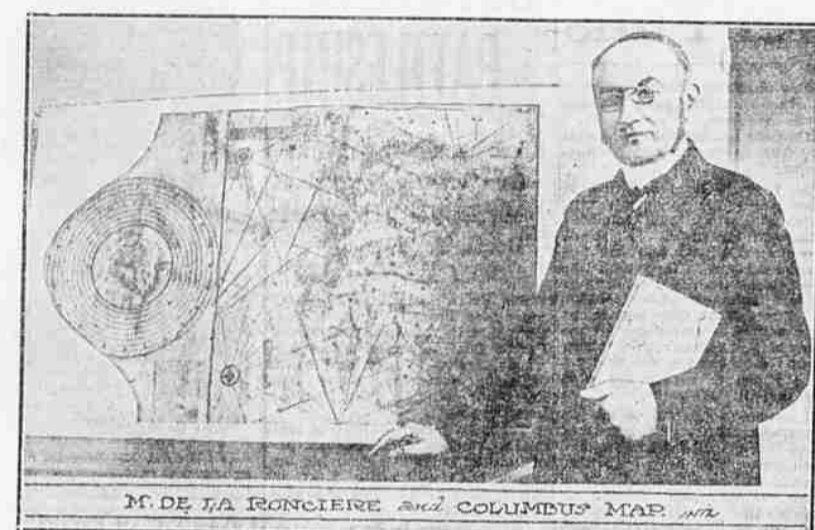

Three oil companies are now drilling on the same structure running through the lake bed.

COLUMBUS MAP FOUND BY FRENCH CURATOR.

M. de la Ronciere, curator of the French National Library in Paris, is shown with the Columbus map recently found in the library. The map is believed to have been drawn by Barthelomy Columbus, brother of the discoverer of America, and to have been used by Christopher Columbus himself. M. de la Ronciere had been examining the map while completing a history of Africa and found it registered as a rare specimen of the 16th century Portuguese map. Closer inspection revealed faint inscriptions which identified it as the real Columbus map and showed the ancient Italian name for Cape Verde islands.

CHEMAWA STUDENTS LEAVING

Chemawa, Or., June 13.—The new boys' building, McNary hall, opened up this year for the accommodation of the larger boys, was closed yesterday and only the two old buildings are open as so many of the students have left. There are only a few of the large boys left and about 60 of the older girls out of more than a hundred and fifty are left. Most of the children have left for home, but about twenty or thirty of the girls who are advanced enough, are given positions in Portland in various capacities in the homes.

REPORTS ON ASSEMBLY MEET

Woodburn, Or., June 13.—At the regular Sunday services of the First Presbyterian church, Rev. Achur gave his report of the Presbyterian assembly at Grand Rapids. This is the first time in the history of the Woodburn church that its pastor has attended the assembly. So erratic has been the life of the church that no regular pastor has had the charge long enough for the privilege to attend to relate to him. Rev. Achur has been with the church now for several years and a marked improvement was reported in every department and a decided growth.

were partly opened. This was main evidence of his effort to avert the disaster by flooding the turret with water.

Aboard the hospital ship Relief lay the dead, killed by a premature explosion in the Mississippi's number 2 turret. Aboard the U. S. S. New Mexico, flagship of division four of the battle fleet, members of a naval board of inquiry prepared to open at 10 o'clock this morning their investigation of the disaster. Aboard the Mississippi, anchored outside the breakwater, officers and men watched the flame shattered turret where a fourteen inch gun, with an as yet unexploded charge jammed in its breech, meant that the danger of still another explosion had not yet passed.

Big Gun Explodes
It was the flare back from one of those guns that shot death in flames and poisonous gases back into the turret from its open breech. A second, the breech locked, let loose in the harbor here as the Mississippi steamed home with its dead and injured from the drill grounds, and hurled a steel projectile dangerously near to an steel outboard passenger liner. Should the third gun's charge explode before it can be removed, however, it is believed that precautions already taken will prevent further fatalities.

der the firing harmless. Just how the fatal explosion occurred was still undetermined, though from witnesses aboard the Mississippi and aboard other vessels near her when disaster broke up their scheduled target practice, a fairly comprehensive picture of the accident was obtained.

At Target Practice
The battleships Mississippi, Tennessee, Idaho and California, the latter towing the target vessel off San Clement Island, 45 miles from here and were engaging in secret gunnery practice.

The firing was under way. It was about 1 o'clock.

In the plotting room of the Mississippi, electric bulbs flashed one by one their signal and each gun was fired and reloaded.

Eight of twelve scheduled salvos had been fired, each rocking the great ship as the guns belched their steel at the target. After the eighth salvo other guns in other turrets reported ready for the next volley but no flash came from turret No. 2, near the bow of the ship.

In the plotting room anxiety grew. Attempts to communicate with the turret failed. Then came a terse command:

"Flood the magazines!"

It was half an hour before any attempt could be made to enter the doomed turret. There were eighty odd men there and 48 of them perished.

When the flare back from the first 14 inch gun came—officers say it may have been caused by a premature signal to throw the electric switch setting off the charge or by a still glowing fragment left in the breech, after the previous firing—the only avenue of escape were soon cut off by flames. Four men leaped thru hatchways to safety. All others in that part of the turret contained the guns suffocated in the atmosphere of flame, gas and poisonous fumes.
