STORY OF CRIME AND CONFESSIONS BY RICH YOUTHS

was safe. The father virtually decided to comply with instructions but permitted his lawyer and relatives to go to the morgue to see the body of a dead boy that had been found in a culvert. The boy was identified as Robert. An autopsy showed that he had been slain before the letter demanding ransom was written.

Several witnesses were examined but not until a pair of glasses found in culvert was traced through the prescription to young Nathan was either he or Richard suspected.

The two boys were taken into custody and were held in hotels and in the state's attorney's office for three days. Their admissions and assurances baffled their examiners. It was learned that their attempted alibi was refuted by the testimony of a chauffeur that the car the boys said they had used was undergoing repairs at the time. Then Loeb began to confess and Leopold, learning of his action, did likewise.

According to the confession they planned both slaying and kidnapping. They are reported by the state to have said they did it for money and for adventure.

It was less than a year before they had read before the American Orthodontists' Union at a meeting in Boston, a paper on the Kirilind varbler. Scientific men who heard him praised him for a contribution to science that had seemed impossible, in filming the shy warbler in the Michigan wilderness, thus demonstrating its existence.
