FLOOD COSTS LIFE OF MAN NEAR EUGENE

Waters Transportation company today roughly estimated that $15,000 would be required to replace in operation the river freighter Relief sunk here Monday as the result of damage incurred in the ice jam in the Willamette river. This morning the boat had taken a further list to the port side and was resting on bottom in water that left only the pilot house and part of the upper deck protruding. Ten heavy cables are holding the boat from shifting downstream.

Officials declared that an accurate estimate of the damage could not be made until the boat is drydocked and the extent of necessary repairs ascertained. The vessel, they declared, is valued at between $20,000 and $25,000.

Continuation of the schedule will be resumed Monday according to present plans of the company. The date for the resumption of the run, however, is yet uncertain.

Temporary repairs on the Relief will be made here and the vessel will go to the Portland drydock under her own steam, officials declared. During the repair of the Relief, a substitute freighter will be placed on the run.

FOUR FATAL SHOOTINGS IN CHICAGO

and genteel appearing, was found on a sidewalk in a residence district today. No valuables were found in the clothing and the hat was missing. A late returning reveler, waylaid and murdered by robbers was the police version.

John H. Olson, an iron worker was struck and killed by a speeding automobile that did not stop. Another car that did not stop long enough to take toll of the damage it had done, smashed into a taxicab in which Miss Ruth Raymond, 26, was riding. She was taken to the hospital with a fractured skull and is not expected to live.

There were numerous other accidents, auto and otherwise, but no further serious mishaps were reported.

New York Makes Merry

New York, Jan. 1. — Record crowds, despite the rapidly falling temperatures, milled about the sidewalks of New York far into the early hours on New Year's day in a carnival spirit, tooting horns and clanging cow bells, to make their greeting to the New Year audible over the shrill whistles and the church chimes.

In the theatrical district the mass of people were kept in some form of slow motion by 300 extra policemen, who were nearly overwhelmed when the theaters poured out their patrons at the approach of midnight.

Prohibition enforcement ranks were greatly reinforced but only one raid of any consequence was made during the early morning hours, when $5000 worth of liquor was seized in an uptown restaurant.

STATE POWER DEVELOPMENT ACT PROPOSED

[illegible] development in develop[illegible]

"The Columbia river has been referred to as one of the greatest of [illegible] the world [illegible]

To illustrate the effect of public development of water power I might add that it cost $40 per month to light the Canadian end of the International Bridge, and $50 per month to light the American end.

"When coal and other fuels have become exhausted or can only be produced at prices that cannot compete with the cost of water power, where will the factories of the United States be located?

Would Bring Industries

"There is only one answer to this question. The factories must go to the power and not the power to the factories. Ultimately the factories of the country will be located in the west where most of the water power resources are located.

"From Goldray on the Rogue river is being transmitted power from Oregon to San Francisco, and it is high time that cheap power be developed on the Columbia river and made available for Oregon and Washington. On each side of the Columbia river is a railroad which should be operated by electric energy derived from the stream and the expense of hauling thousands of carloads of coal thousands of miles be [illegible]

"The matter of public [illegible] ment of water power is [illegible] an experiment. As illustrative [illegible] the success of public developments of water power and the operation of water power plants may be cited the Ontario power project of Canada; the Municipal plant of Chicago, operated by the drainage canal; the Los Angeles hydro-electric plant, and many others throughout the United States.

Does Principal Cost

"The principal cost of a hydro-electric plant is in the dam or dams which are so constructed that they are as lasting as the streams themselves. Therefore, no depreciation or loss can be charged against them. The machinery and conduits are the only portion of the plant against which a depreciation charge can be made and by reason of the improvements made in electrical machinery the depreciation thereon is very small.

"Today we notice advertisements in the newspapers offering for sale water power yielding from seven and one-half to eight per cent, while United States bonds yield only a little more than half this percentage. The cost to the government in interest on bonds to develop water power would be only a little more than one-half of the interest on bonds issued for the same purpose by power companies, and they would have the government back of them. The government would endeavor to make the construction cost as low as possible.

"The desire of the enterprising citizens of Eastern Oregon and Washington to develop the Umatilla water power project was thwarted by the government on the old theory advanced by the power companies that the demand must precede the development.

"This requirement on the part of the power companies that the demand for power must precede the development is contrary to all reason and retards commercial and industrial development," continued the senator.

Theory Is Criticized

"Who would have the temerity to construct a manufacturing plant designed to be operated by electrical energy upon the promise that sufficient electrical power would in the future be developed for its operation?"

"On the contrary how rapidly would our industrial and commercial development proceed if we were in a position to offer cheaper power than could be offered elsewhere?

"The idea of the power companies that the demand for energy must precede its development is purely selfish and is advanced in order that the development may be controlled by them and that they may also control the price of electrical energy.

"James J. Hill won his cognomen of Empire Builder because he pioneered the west with his railroad. He proceeded on the sound principle that railway facilities must precede the settlement of the west and if the west is to become industrially great it must now proceed on the sound principle that cheap power must precede industrial and commercial development.

"I do not wish to have it believed that I am in favor of public ownership generally. But the development of water power on account of it being a perpetual resource and its distribution being simple is in a class by itself and is not subject to the vicissitudes of any other class of business."

Quakers Meet Bears

Berkeley, Cal., Jan. 1.—(By Associated Press.)—It was planned for Quakers to be sacrificed this afternoon to make a Berkeley holiday. The California stadium was the arena, and the gatekeepers were ready to throw the victims to a hungry lot of Bears, with a throng of spectators looking on in heartless glee.

But the strange part of it was that these Quakers were eager to be exposed to the Bears. They'nd fear the creatures. In fact, they had no intention of being immolated.

Less metaphorically, the card was as follows:

University of California, alias the Bears, undefeated in five years, played two tie games this season, vs. University of Pennsylvania, the Quakers, unbeaten this season; tied one time; rated one of the three bets teams in the east. 50,000 Fans Expected.

The California management expected 50,000, if Mr. Pluvius stayed away. More than 40,000 seats had been sold yesterday.

Lou Young's Pennsylvanians, who arrived Tuesday and had a final secret workout yesterday, were not in the best shape, because of the long journey and because of adverse weather since Thanksgiving. They were handicapped further by the loss of several stars from injuries. On the other hand, Coach Andy Smith's Bears had fewer men on the medical list than at any time during the season. There was doubt whether an end and a guard could start, but they were not badly hurt and capable substitutes were trying on their shoes.

Pennsylvania had a slight advantage in weight, averaging 184½ to 178½ for California, but this element, unless overwhelming, counts for little in present day football. Prophets of the game held the teams to be closely matched. The kickoff was scheduled for 2:30.
