CLIMBERS BATTLE SNOW TO ILLUMINATE PEAK

Colorado Springs, Colo., Jan. 1.—Fighting their way through a snowstorm borne on the wings of a mountain gale, five intrepid climbers scaled the treacherous heights of Pike's peak yesterday to uphold the tradition of the Adaman club, an organization which for years has celebrated the coming of each new year by staging a display of fireworks from the brow of the Arctic peak.

Early in the morning the quintet of climbers began the ascent in one of the worst blizzards of the winter. Thousands of residents watched through the early hours after dusk for the sky rockets, which would announce the safe arrival of the party at the summit. At nine o'clock the flares shot skyward lighting for miles around the frozen ranges of the Rocky mountains.

At midnight another burst of fireworks turned the gray mountain sky into a kaleidescope of color as the advent of a new year was heralded. Shortly after midnight the one new member, which the Adaman club accepts each year, was initiated.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN TO GIVE WAY TO PROGRESS

New York, Jan. 1.—Before another New Year, the Madison Square Garden of today will be no more. A little way up town, however, at Seventh avenue and Fiftieth street, will loom a new structure bearing the same name, although it will be some distance removed from Madison Square at 26th street.

The Garden, the scene of the shooting of Stanford White by Harry Thaw, the democratic convention of 1924, and numerous championship boxing bouts, circuses, rodeos and cycle races, will begin its journey into the past, May 6. On that day the statue of Diana, which has looked upon a New York making enormous strides in progress, will come down.

Tex Rickard, who came out of the west to make the Garden the world's sport center, with the aid of John Ringling, has announced that its passing will be mourned by a three-night festival, with officials of the national and state governments in attendance.

Out of the pages of history will come the champions of boxers in the old days, the greatest of the bicycle riders of the past, circus performers and track and field athletes.

Arthur Zimmerman, of high wheel fame, will be there, according to present plans. So will Dan O'Leary, Gus Guerrera and Pete Hegelman. From the world of pugilism will come the Jims—Jeffries and Corbett— and Franks—Klaus and Erne—the Johnnys—Kilbane and Comon—Abe Attel and many others.

The champions of today, at least two of them, are expected to risk their titles during those eventful three days. Harry Greb, Pittsburgh's middleweight champion, and Eddie (Cannonball) Martin of Brooklyn, recently crowned king of bantamweight, are scheduled to appear.

In the first night Rickard has planned a reception and dance, there will be "survivors night" when all of the old masters will appear and the climax will come with forty rounds of boxing on the eve of the Garden's demise. The boxing will be followed by dancing until 4 o'clock in the morning, when the lights will be dimmed, the band will play "Auld Lang Syne" and the crowd will file out of the famous old structure for the last time.

OLD STAGE DRIVER TO BE BURIED AT SILVERTON

Portland, Jan. 1.—Cyrus W. Barger, one of the oldest stage coach drivers in the northwest, died here Tuesday, aged 76. He will be buried at Silverton Friday and his body will be born to its last resting place in a hearse drawn by a span of horses. His old whip which lashed the backs of his steeds for nearly fifty years will lie in his hands. These were two of the aged man's requests.

Barger drove stage coaches in Idaho, Oregon, British Columbia, Arizona and the Yosemite valley. He was the driver of the stage coach in which the late C. S. Jackson, publisher of the Oregon Journal, first rode into Pendleton, more than forty years ago. A friendship sprang up between the young emigrant and the stage driver and for many years Barger was employed as night watchman at the plant of the Oregon Journal. The deaths of the two friends occurred only three days apart.

Two daughters, Miss Nellie Barger of Spokane and Miss Edna Barger of San Francisco, survive.

BRITAIN NOT TO MAKE LOAN TO IRISH STATE

New York, Jan. 1—Great Britain has not made an offer of a loan to the Irish Free State on condition that Ireland agree to withdraw its claim to separate representation in the league of nations, it is declared in a statement by Timothy A. Smiddy, minister plenipotentiary of the Irish Free State at Washington, forwarded here. The ministers statement:

"A false interpretation has been given to the fact that the British government has introduced a bill guaranteeing 30,000,000 pounds sterling for the payment of the principal and interest on a loan to be issued by the Irish Free State for the completion of land purchase.

5 COUPLES LICENSED TO MARRY IN POLK

Dallas, Or., Jan. 1.—The marriage license department in the clerk's office has maintained its pre-Christmas activity with five issued during the past week. They were to the following couples: Era Daniel McKinney, 24, Independence, and Dorotha A. Chamberlain, 17, Independence; Wilbur ?. Flatt, Enterprise, legal, and Muriel Esther Hayes, 27, Dallas; George G. Harms, 24, Dallas, and Susie Regehr, 18, Dallas.

The Harms-Regehr marriage is a link in a rather interesting coincidence. Her father, Frank Regehr, and his mother, Mrs. George Harms, were killed in an auto-train collision near Oregon City, February 27, 1924. Last fall Mr. Harms and Mrs. Regehr married, so the young couple are stepbrother and sister.

25 ARE INJURED IN LOS ANGELES NEW YEARS EVE

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 1.—Automobile accidents, collisions, fights, flying glass, fires, stray bullets and various noise making accessories contributed their quota of victims in a total of 25 persons treated at the receiving hospital as a result of New Years eve merrymaking.

The most serious case treated at the hospital was that of George Mahoney, secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union, who police say, jumped or fell from the fourth floor of the Los Angeles Athletic club. Mahoney suffered a fractured skull and other serious injuries which police surgeons believe may prove fatal.

Stray bullets accounted for two victims. Caroline Gugman, 12, was shot in the hip as she left a church where she had been attending New Year's services while Lulu Klingenberger, 13, of Long Beach, was shot in the knee while riding in an automobile in that city.

Police had some difficulty in responding to ambulance calls which flooded the station. The dense crowds that thronged the downtown area caused delay in reaching the victims, police having to clear a path through the solid mass of struggling humanity before ambulances could pass. Sirens proved useless for their shrieks were drowned by the noise of celebrants.

A number of plate glass windows were broken in the Spring street financial district by waves of concussions caused by back fire of hundreds of automobiles.

SALEM GREETS NEW YEAR WITH WILD ACCLAIM

Salem rang out the old, rang in the new, tooted out the old, tooted in the new, shouted for the old, shouted for the new—and otherwise used every conceivable means of expressing hilarity that 1924 was done and that 1925 held all the possibilities and opportunities that could be crowded into 365 days.

Whatever the new year may hold it was toasted last night with unstinted optimism. Groups that gathered in a hundred places heard the striking of the closing hour, wished their companions a "Happy New Year", let joy reign unchallenged during the early hours. And now that the new year has been properly escorted through the portals of the future they settle down today to live the life of the new year according to the dictates of firmly determined resolutions.

"This year must be different; this year the mistakes of last will not be repeated; this year that advancement that was planned for last but which somehow didn't come, will come this year. This is the year—1925." So sang happy hearts as ambitions soared to the skies as the new year spoke its first welcome.

The night was one of gaiety. Theaters were crowded for their midnight matinees, the dance of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at the armory was a tremendous success, and hundreds who had found diversion in private homes during the early evening were downtown in automobiles to greet the new year and to form perhaps the largest crowd ever seen down town for a similar celebration.

Today the message of Happy New year will find further expression in other gatherings. Chief of the public celebrations is the open house of the YMCA where between 2500 and 3000 visitors are expected during the day. The Jason Lee Methodist church will hold a program, dinner and the annual meeting of the year today.

It is the new year. Write it "1925."

PIONEER STAGE DRIVER'S PAL TO ATTEND FUNERAL

time C. S. Jackson, late publisher of the Portland Journal, whose death occurred last Saturday, was their agent.

Later Rasch went into Montana and drove a stage from Thompson Falls to Missoula for the Fend o' Reille Stage company in 1883, remaining on that route until the completion of a railway. Then he ran from Thompson Falls to Murray and handled the business of the Wells Fargo Express company. In more recent years Johnny Rash drove stage in Yellowstone park, operating there for ten seasons.

Typical of the old frontier, Mr. Rash experienced a lot of the thrills of those days. Once he was held up on Snake river while operating the overland stage and the treasure box was saved because he had put in the rear boot in violation of the law on account of the roughness of the road. The robber didn't think to look there for it although he was much surprised that the stage seemed to carry no treasure.

In 1878 Rash, together with three guards, two on horses and one on the seat with him, engaged in a running gun fight for three miles with the Bannock Indians.

Mr. Rash is a native of McMinnville, Or. In recent years he has lived at Monmouth, but came to Salem last spring. A few years ago he slashed his foot with an axe at Monmouth and suffered from blood poison for four years. Prior to that, he says, he didn't have a gray hair and was as good a man as he ever was.

Mr. Rash says that he is generally supposed to be dead because it was once reported that he had passed on.
