Clubs Give Support To "Columbus"

Today marks the first day of a three day showing at the Liberty theater of "Columbus," one of the series of pictures based upon the Chronicles of America released by the Yale University Press. This picture is coming to Salem as the result of the efforts expended by the American Association of University Women to secure better films. It has the hearty endorsement of the majority of the women's clubs and the civic organizations of Salem.

With "Columbus" at the Liberty today, tomorrow and Sunday will be shown "The Silent Accuser," the story of a German police doctor, Dean and Mrs. George H. Alden and Mrs. A. M. Chapman pre-viewed this picture yesterday and are fervent in its praise.

If there is any indecision regarding the purpose of the film the following excerpt from the Yale bulletin will explain the matter.

"The production of this series of Chronicles of America Photoplays is a project to which the Yale University Press has devoted its best efforts for some years under the supervision and direction of editors appointed by the council's committee on publications of Yale university and with the sanction of the university, which owns and controls the Press. As needs scarcely be pointed out the procedure thus briefly outlined definitely insures the historical accuracy in all details of each of these motion pictures, which are designed to make more real and vivid to Americans of the present day, and to coming generations, the history and traditions of our country through the faithful presentation of important events in our development as a nation.

"In addition to their permanent historical value the pictures will, it is believed, be found to possess distinct dramatic quality, both because of the incidents depicted and because in the presentation of those the Yale University Press has obtained the cooperation of able men throughout the country, and in the field of drama as well as in that of history. For this reason the enterprise is neither 'merely another movie venture' nor 'just a Yale affair,' but rather a project of national life significance and one of vital interest to every citizen concerned in the welfare of his community.

"The release of the Chronicles of America Photoplays through the theaters marks the dawn of a new day for motion pictures, for if the motion pictures shown in its theaters as well as in its schools are of a high standard of excellence, no community need fear the influence undoubtedly and most effectively exercised by 'the movies.' One simple and certain way of making the motion picture theaters a powerful agency for good in each community is for every citizen to support by his patronage, and to encourage others to support, photoplays of the highest type, thus encouraging producers and exhibitors to devote their energies and resources to these in preference to others. It is because of its belief that the showing in the theaters of the Chronicles of America Photoplays can and should do much for the betterment of the motion picture industry as well as for the cause of good citizenship, that the Yale University Press has agreed to the theatrical distribution of these films." The following organizations have endorsed the showing in Salem: the Salem Woman's club, the Salem Heights Woman's club, the Etoka club, the War Mothers, chapter G and chapter AB of the P. E. O. sisterhood, the business and professional women's club, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Lincoln and McKinley parent teachers' association, the Highland parent teachers' association, the Y. W. C. A., the Salem Arts league, Rotarians, Kiwanis and Lions club.
