Miss Fowle Honor Guest Last Night

Miss Teresa Fowle whose engagement to James Coleman Kriesel was announced at a dinner at the Marion hotel last Friday, and whose wedding will be an event of early spring, was the inspiration of a delightful affair given at the home of Mrs. J. A. Bernard last night with Miss Gussie Niles and Miss Lella Johnson the hostesses.

Lovely pussy willows and gayly colored Oregon grape were used in some of the rooms. Others were festive with ferns, palms, cyclamen and primroses. Among the interesting features of the evening was the cross word puzzle contest. Mrs. Ralph Merrer evolved the most nearly correct solution and to her fell the honor of making the presentation of a beautiful silver tray and engraved glass bowl to the bride-elect.

When solved the cross word puzzle was found to consist of the following words: "Teresa Fowle, James Kriesel, I wish you health, wealth and happiness in your new home in Albany. We shall deem it right have you love us just the same."

The dining room was attractive with cyclamen and primroses and the guests were seated at one long table and three small ones. The favors were tiny pink candy baskets. Mrs. W. P. Fowle, mother of the honor guest presided.

In the group were Miss Fowle, Mrs. W. P. Fowle, Mrs. Burns Gillette, Mrs. Margaret Montgomery, Mrs. Susan Varty, Mrs. Fred Gahlerdorf, Mrs. Emil Carlson, Mrs. T. W. Creech, Mrs. Ralph Merrer, Mrs. J. The afternoon was delightfully spent yesterday when members of the Etokta club met at the home of Mrs. E. E. Fleher. MUTE TALKS AFTER AIRPLANE DIVE

GWENDOLYN CASWELL, 17

Gwendolyn Caswell, pretty twenty-two-year-old Chicago girl, dumb since she was a child, was taken in an airplane to the height of a mile above the Chicago Aero Club's field, when the pilot shot his machine straight for the earth in a nose dive, with motor running. When she reached the earth, it was found she could talk again. "The motor makes lots of noise," were her first words. At ten feet, she could hear distinctly, though she had never heard before. Her Darkest Hour

Nanette was mischievous, pretty and liked a good time—and she saw no harm in letting the handsome Ralph Bradley make love to her. She did not know the fickleness of men—nor that she was a mere incident in young Bradley's adventurous career. She could not foresee that he would leave her to wed a girl of his own social station—nor the tragic train of events which were to grow out of her own grief, resentment and jealousy.

Told under the title, "The Tell-Tale Tattoo," there is a lesson and a warning here for every girl. It appears in one of the many features of True Story Magazine for February. Don't miss it.

Sunbonnets Planned To Raise Debt

Sunbonnets, the kind "our mothers used to wear" are a favorite topic of conversation among the Salem women interested in the Old People's home, and seeing it free from debt. A plan is being worked whereby that may actually happen.

The first step toward this end was taken Monday afternoon when more than forty women met at the home of Mrs. Donald Riddle to cut and sew sunbonnets. Nearly a thousand were cut and a great many were completely finished. They will be sent to the auxiliary of the woman's home missionary society in the Oregon conference. Further plans for the sunbonnets and the way in which they may raise the debt will be divulged later.

Mrs. H. H. Vandevort, chairman of the board of the home, is asking anyone interested in the project to lend a helping hand in making the miniature bonnets. The announcement of the next place of meeting will be made shortly.

For the purpose of stimulating interest in the movement the following jingle has been written as a slogan for the workers: "Bonnets pink, bonnets blue, will free us of debt if we prove true. Offer your service these bonnets to make, lightening our load for the old folks' sake."
