Apollo Club Announces Concerts

Definite announcement relative to the concerts to be given by the Apollo club this season has been made. Owing to the heavy expense to which the club was placed last season in bringing to Salem two notable attractions, the New York String Quartette and Paul Althouse, Metropolitan tenor, retrenchment was found necessary and it is accordingly planned to give only two concerts this season.

NEWSBOY SUES LAWYER FOR PAPERS PURCHASED

Denver, Colo., Jan. 17.—Harry Dalldow, a lusty-lunged 14-year-old newsboy, filed suit in district court here yesterday against Walter J. Bates, an attorney.

In his petition, the newsie asks the court to award him one dollar, which he claims the attorney owes him for "papers bought on time," during last November and December.

The paper vendor declared he knew Bates could afford to pay the amount because when he presented his bill the lawyer was sitting in a "swivel chair smoking a fat and expensive cigar."

Maddock Quits AS OREGON COACH

Eugene, Or., Jan. 17.—Joe Maddock, head coach of football at the University of Oregon during the past season, tendered his resignation to the university authorities yesterday. Pressure of business interests was accredited as the reason for his resignation.

No successor has been hinted by the university officials.

Regret was expressed by the athletic directors of the university on receipt of the resignation of Mr. Maddock.

The resignation followed the decision of the university officials to have the football coaching done on the year-round plan, rather than the present system. Taylor to Tell JURY OF MURDER

Klamath Falls, Or., Jan. 17.—Grand jury investigation into the slaying of Oscar Erickson in the robbery of a card game here early on the morning of January 4 was started this morning. John Taylor, who has made a complete confession of the robbery plot, told newspaper men this morning that he will bare the entire story to the grand jury and will then plead guilty to whatever charge the jurors file against him. Belief prevails here that Taylor will not be indicted for first degree murder by reason of the fact that he confessed the entire crime and its tragic ending and aided authorities in tracing down others connected with it.

Texas Rangers Put Out of Business By Court After 90 Years

Austin, Texas, Jan. 17.—(By Associated Press)—The Texas rangers, credited with being one of the most fearless law enforcing organizations found anywhere in the world and America's first constabulary force, today is threatened with elimination. A district court yesterday ruled that the law creating the ranger force unconstitutional and enjoined the organization from further ranger activities.

For more than 90 years, this group of men, originally numbering 150 never more than one thousand members, and at present but fifty, has had a record of enforcing the law to the utmost. Organized first to protect homesteaders in the wilderness of southwestern Texas, its work has been changed to suit the times and of recent years it has apprehended law violators and criminals. For the first time since its inception, its work was at a standstill today.

The history of the ranger force extends into the provincial days after Texas had declared its independence from Mexico and before the republic of Texas was organized, when the land between the Sabine and Rio Grande rivers was considered "no man's land."

Constabularies in Pennsylvania, New York and other states were patterned after the Texas rangers, who have a motto of "get your man." The Royal Northwest Mounted Police of Canada also is said to have had its inception as the result of the Texas force.

A round-table discussion on pruning and early planting was enjoyed by the members with both Mr. Van Trump and Mr. Bateham, in charge of the asylum grounds, holding the reins at the present time. The members held a double pruning. Hardly a bulb that will not freeze out, according to Mr. Van Trump and Mr. Bateham, are the peony and rock roses. The beauty of a peony hedge was mentioned.

At the next meeting, the first Friday in February, Mr. Bateham will present to the members his plans for the planting of a large plot near the receiving ward of the hospital. Mr. Bateham stated that he would attempt to prove what some authorities hold almost impossible—the planting of bulbs so that there will be a steady blooming of some variety from very early spring till late fall.
