Decision was made this morning by language teachers in Salem high school to cut down on the use of cross word puzzles in the Latin and Spanish courses. Use had been made of the prevailing cross word craze to develop the students' vocabularies in these languages, but it was found that the benefit derived did not justify the time spent on the puzzles. It has been stated that cross word puzzles are being used in other courses in the high school, including English and shorthand.

Legislative Sidelights

Newton McCoy, former member of the public service commission, who was defeated in November by Edward Ostrander, was about the state house Saturday. It is understood Mr. McCoy isn't worried much over the attempts to abolish the commission.

Hundreds of residents of Umatilla county have wondered whence came the custom among the Umatilla Indians of naming their papooses after famous personages. The source is a member of the state senate. In 1887, Sam Garland, a young Virginian, was sent to Oregon by President Cleveland to be superintendent of schools on the Umatilla reservation. Sam Garland is now senator from Linn. "I got along fine with the Indians," he says, "although I had never seen an Indian except in a circus until I came to Oregon. But sometimes I have to change the names of the boys in school. I named one Graver Cleveland, one Bismarck, one Gladstone, another Diarrell, etc."

Though it has been nearly 40 years since Senator Garland was in the Indian service, he still likes the Indians. While he was residing in newspaper men Saturday about his experience on the Umatilla reservation, three Indian girls from Chemawa appeared in the lobby of the state house. "How do you do, girls," greeted the senator. "Where are your homes?"

"Montana," said one of them. "And have you ever met the governor?" the senator asked. They said they had not. "Let's go see the governor," the senator invited. The Indian girls allowed him to escort them into the executive offices.

Former Representative Childs of Linn county and his family were visitors at the state house Saturday. Childs served many years on the ways and means committee.

OPTOMETRISTS TO RAISE STANDARD

At a conference held yesterday between Dr. Floy B. Dayton, president of the state board of optometry examiners, and Dr. Henry E. Morris, secretary of the board, plans were launched for requesting the state legislature to raise the requirements for practicing optometrists in Oregon. The conference was held in Salem, Dr. Dayton coming from Portland for the purpose. Dr. George E. Birnie of La Grande, the third member of the board, was not present at the meeting.

It was decided to call a convention of the entire state association of optometrists on February 15. Approximately 125 will be present at the convention, which will be held in Salem. Final plans to be submitted to the legislature will be drawn up and passed at that time.

It has been announced that one action almost certain to be taken by the legislature is to increase the amount of common school education required of optometrists. A full high school education will be asked. At present only a 10th grade education is required.

Large audiences are reported to have attended both the morning and evening services yesterday. The Bible school and the Baptist young people's union had record crowds. The meetings this week will follow much the same plan as last week, one of the various classes and organizations of the church being in charge each evening. Tonight the board of deacons will conduct the opening part of the service. A. E. Miller, principal of the Grant school, is chairman of the board. The pastor's subject will be "Borrowed Axes." Tomorrow evening the Baracantha class lead the meeting, having special musical numbers for the occasion.

FREAK LAWS INJURING STATE SAYS BURDICK

a bigger thing even than the oil rushes in some of the states in the middle west."

The speaker advocated a similar plan for Oregon.

Mr. Burdick's address was followed by short speeches from A. S. Dudley, manager of the Oregon state chamber of commerce; J. S. State, head of the Oregon State Retail Merchants' association, and Tom Kay, new state treasurer. All three supported in general the statements made by Burdick.

"What we need in this state is more people," said Mr. Dudley. He went on to state that present indications pointed toward an influx of three times as many tourists from the south as last year.

"A few days of freakish laws can undo all the good that has been done," said Tate.

Tom Kay spoke in favor of preventing a return of the income tax, but advocated a state inheritance tax, particularly if a uniform tax can be inaugurated in all states in the union. Plans are now on foot to accomplish this end, he indicated.

Over a hundred men were present at the luncheon, crowding the dining hall to capacity.

Although the Alabama river is still within its banks, precautions are being taken along the Coosa and Tallapoosa rivers. Convicts have been removed from state prison No. 4 to Kilby and storekeepers are removing goods from basements at Wetumpka.
