BIDS ON CITY BONDS OPENED TONIGHTS MEET

Bids on the city improvement bonds advertised to be sold January 19, 1925, will be opened by city recorder Paulson at the meeting of the city council tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the council chambers.

A new alderman will be elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of C. Van Patten of the sixth ward. Damon Pfeener was named at an informal meeting of the council after he resigned at the last regular meeting, but he must be elected, or some other man be elected at this meeting.

The fact that Mr. Van Patten put in his resignation to take effect at the close of the last regular meeting prevented his successor's being elected then.

Property owners on the east side of Fairground, road from the Salem Brick and Tile company north westerly to Hall street, have prepared a petition for the construction of a sewer system, stating that it is necessary for the preservation of public health. This petition will be presented to the council this evening. Those who have signed this petition are Edward Stewart, J. M. Wirth, Henry Reischach and R. C. Miles.

Plans and specifications for the improvement of Howard street from west line of High to east line of Church will be presented to the council.

An ordinance granting a franchise to the Capital Ice and Cold Storage company for the placing of a spur track to their new warehouse at 169 Trade street will be presented to the council. An ordinance granting this franchise was passed once by the council, but Mayor Glynn vetoed it as only the starting point of the spur track was given and the remainder of the location indefinite.

Discussion of the transfer of dog catching activities to the police department entirely, instead of attachment of the work to both the police department and the street department as is now done, will come up tonight. W. W. Rosebraugh is chairman of a special committee working on the matter.

CHALLENGE MOSER'S RIGHT TO SERVICE

regards the selection of a presiding officer for their organization, or of their disposition as regards the personnel of the Multnomah county delegation. Their choice for the presidency has already been expressed, and they are evidently not inclined to question the competency of Senator Moser on personal grounds.

But his retention in the chair and as a member of the senate raises a serious question as to the validity of every act of the present legislature, particularly in those instances where the division in balloting may be close, and where Senator Moser casts the deciding vote.

Today the matter of Senator Moser's eligibility is one for the senate itself to pass upon. When the session has adjourned and the constitutionality of the legislature's acts may be in litigation, then the question becomes one for the court to decide, and precedent throws serious doubt upon whether the supreme court would hold Moser entitled to his seat.

There are few holdings of the court in the past upon which to base an opinion as to what the decision might be, but there are a few cases in point.

In the case of Gibson vs. Kay, 69 Or. P. 596, in which a writ of mandamus was sought to compel the state treasurer to pay a warrant drawn upon the state funds for $87.50 in payment for the service of Claude McCulloch, state senator from Baker county, as to the corporation department.

The court in this case reported two findings which prevented McCulloch from drawing the money, one that as a member of the legislature which created the corporation department he was prohibited from receiving compensation from the department for services, and the other sustaining the constitutional provision as regards legislative holding lucrative offices under the state government, and holding that subordinate appointive offices are to be construed as coming within the inhibition.

Court Decision The opinion held that the act creating the corporation department authorized the corporation commissioner "to appoint such clerks, stenographers and assistants as may be actually necessary from time to time to properly discharge the duties of the office."

There is a further reason, "the opinion written by Justice Burnett reads, "for not upholding the claimant in the situation involved. It is said in article 3, section 1, of the state constitution that the powers of the government shall be divided into three separate departments, the legislative, executive, and judicial, and no person charged with official duties in one of these departments shall exercise any of the functions of another, except as in the constitution expressly provided. In any view of the case the functions of the corporation commissioner and his assistants, including stenographers and clerks, pertain to the administrative department of the government in which a member of the legislative department is forbidden to participate."

OTHER, EXCEPT AS IN THE CONSTITUTION EXPRESSLY PROVIDED.

In any view of the case the functions of the corporation commissioner and his assistants, including stenographers and clerks, pertain to the administrative department of the government in which a member of the legislative department is forbidden to participate."

Moser's Eligibility The question is advanced whether his employment as attorney for the Port of Portland makes him an employe of the administrative branch of the state government, or an employe of a subdivision which is a legal unit of government in itself.

The supreme court has held the employe of cities and other independent political units do not come within the inhibition of the constitutional provision in question.

But attorneys who have studied the question carefully are inclined to the opinion that the Port of Portland is directly a subdivision of the state government, drawing its authority from the legislature and having its commissioners named by the governor or the legislature. Senator Moser as attorney for the Port of Portland is just as much an employe of the state as Claude McCulloch was an appointee of the corporation department, these attorneys hold.

Subject of Speculation What the senate should do in the case should the action of Moser's eligibility be brought directly before it is a matter of considerable speculation. Were nothing else than a seat and the presidency involved there is no question but what he would have practically the unanimous support of the upper house. But if his presence there is through the legality of the legislature's acts in question the situation may be different. In such a case the plans of his friends as well as his opponents would be in jeopardy.

It also must be considered that as president of the senate Senator Moser would become governor of the state in event of the death or disability of Governor Pierce, and the question arises as to whether he could legally execute the duties of that office.

There are a score or more of other interesting possibilities in the situation, not the least of which is what would develop should Senator Moser be unseated, and the governor be called upon to name his successor.
