ROTARY HEARS EDDY DISCUSS THRIFT VALUES

The true principles of thrift involve preserving the things that are handed down to us from the past," was the statement made by state Senator B. L. Eddy, of Roseburg, in a speech before the Salem Rotary club this noon. "The main trouble with a Bolshevist or Communist is that he does not appreciate the institutions that have already been established."

"I would not teach any doctrine of reaction," he said, "but merely the idea of progressive building upon what has been built before, rather than destroying existing institutions."

The speaker attacked present educational conditions in the United States. "Examine many of our college textbooks," he said. "Down beneath the surface, if you look far enough, you will find the rank and file of communistic doctrine. And occasionally a man comes before the people in the guise of a learned professor, presenting ideas of socialism in the most insidious manner. I would like to see the time come when men who have these corrupt ideas would be prevented from teaching and the contrary doctrine instilled into the minds of young people."

A number of visitors were present at the luncheon, including several members of the state legislature.

The club, by vote, endorsed the idea of having each member buy two tickets for a lecture by Frank Branch Riley, Portland public speaker, who is being sent east by the Portland chamber of commerce. If present plans materialize a date for Mr. Riley will be arranged in the near future.

Small today at 2 o'clock for a hearing in which it will be understood to get him to talk. Ruffe is a sulky appearing individual, submitting to all the requests his jailers make, except that of talking. He gave his name and address when captured, but they were fictitious, it is believed. It is believed by the prosecuting attorney's office that the fingerprints taken from the door of Doe's store where the attempted robbery took place which coincide with those taken from Ruffe's fingers at the police station will be sufficient evidence for the charge to be placed against Ruffe.

LEADERS IN ITALIAN POLITICAL CRISIS

Here are four men who are prominently mentioned in the present political upheaval in Italy. Antonio Salandra, former Premier, caused a sensation by deserting Benito Mussolini, following the publication of documents that alleged Mussolini knew too much of the murder of the millionaire Socialist Deputy, Matteoli. Signor Amendola is the editor of the anti-Fascist journal "Il Mondo," suppressed by Mussolini. Andrea Torre has been appointed to the Mussolini Cabinet to succeed Salandra. Signor Federzoni, Minister of the Interior in the Mussolini Cabinet, and head of the National Police, is primarily responsible for the action of the Fascist "Black Shirts," as the militia is called.

Legislative Sidelights

When the Davis-Strayer bill to adjust the boundary between Baker and Grant counties was up for final passage today Senator Strayer said: "Although I am one of the sponsors of this bill I am rather jeopardizing my career. Grant county is overwhelmingly republican. This bill will add a few miles to Baker county, which militates against me."

Twenty nine students of the Buckman school of Portland, some boys and some girls, but each carrying the name of one of the state senators in their civics class in school are here today studying legislation. Simon Yerovich, who is Senator Mozer and president of the Buckman senate, couldn't come because he had to carry papers. The courtesies of the senate were extended them today.

Tom Sweeney, well known to the newspaper readers of a few years ago as one of the successful detectives on the Portland police force, was a lobby visitor last evening.

Barge Leonard, former member of the lower house and a prominent Portland attorney, paid the members of the legislature a social call last evening.

RIGGS SUED BY MOTHER-IN-LAW

That Janet Waller is the mother-in-law of Zedec Riggs and when she rode in his automobile, she was familiar with how he handled his car, is one allegation made in the answer filed in the suit of Mrs. Waller against Riggs today. In the complaint Mrs. Waller seeks to recover damages from Riggs. Inasmuch as any recovery of judgment will come from the insurance company protecting Riggs against accident, the answer is virtually an answer of the insurance company. The insurance company paid a claim for damages resulting from an action by Andrew Junor, former golf instructor here, brought against Riggs.

The answer in the present case alleges that Junor was responsible for the accident, but intimates if there was reckless driving on the part of Riggs that his mother-in-law was well aware of it when riding with him.

CORBETT BILLS PUT DELINQUENTS UNDER BOARD

Senator Corbett today introduced two bills providing that permanent commitments of dependent delinquent or feeble-minded minors under 15 years old shall be to the state child welfare commission.

Relative to dependent or delinquent minors it is provided that it shall be the duty of the commission to make arrangements with satisfactory persons, agencies or institutions for the care of the children and it shall be the duty of any institution receiving state aid to accept such children upon the request of the commission unless the governing board can show that the admission of the child would seriously interfere with the general purpose of the institution.

Relative to feeble-minded minors the commission would assume guardianship until the child reached the age of 21. The commission could return any child committed to it to its parents or guardian or place it in a suitable foster home "or make such other disposition as may conduce to the welfare of the child and the best interests of the state."

HARTLEY URGES SHORT SESSION

Olympia, Wash., Jan. 21.—Adjournment of the legislature February 14 to be reconvened again in special session next November was urged by Governor Hartley in a special message to the legislature today. Governor Hartley declared that he proposed to make a business survey of every state department for presentation to the legislature next fall. Fewer laws and less regulations of business industry and agriculture should be the aim of the legislature, he said.

The governor recommended that the legislature take up only urgent legislation at the present session and make appropriations for only one year. Passage of economy measures, action upon the child labor amendment and the necessary appropriations should be the only business taken up, the governor said.

KILLING AND TRAPPING BEAVERS PROHIBITED

Killing and trapping of beavers would be prohibited in all counties of the state under house bill 89, introduced by the game commission this morning. Provision is made that property owners may kill the animals to ease they are damaging property. The bill, however, would remain the property of the state. The bill widens the scope of one introduced by Ford of Grant and Harney, prohibiting beaver killing and trapping in eastern Oregon.

The years should bring you not merely old age but wisdom.

COOLIDGE ASKS SENATORS TO DINE

Washington, Jan. 21.—Republican and Democrat members of the foreign relations committee late today were invited to dinner tonight at the White House.

The senators were not advised as to the reason for the conference and no information on that point was forthcoming at the White House.

In the absence of official information there immediately arose the suggestion that Mr. Coolidge might be desirous of discussing with the committee the controversial angles of the Paris agreement or the move by the senate today requesting the president to call an arms conference.

The invitations from the White House included, in addition to the foreign relations committee members, Senator Curtis of Kansas, the republican senate leader; Alexander P. Moore, the American ambassador to Spain and Richard Washburn Child, former ambassador to Italy who has been for several days a White House guest.

DRIVE FOR Y. W. SECURES $2500 AT NOON TODAY

Approximately $2500 had been subscribed at noon today by the teams of women soliciting through out the city in the $6000 Y. W. C. A. campaign which opened yesterday morning. This amount included one gift of $250 and one $100 donation.

Many of the most generous givers of other years have not been approached by team workers, according to Mrs. John J. Roberts, president of the Salem Y. W. C. A., who with Mrs. Harry Hawkins and Miss Mary Pindley, in general charge of the drive. Others have doubled their usual donations this year.

All of the workers and captains will meet at luncheon at the Y. W. dining room tomorrow at 12:30 when a general accounting of the drive will be given. The leaders were greatly encouraged today by the support given by several fraternal and social organizations, both as a body and through their individual members.

"The budget calls for $6000," said Miss Marion Wyman, secretary, this morning, "and we must have that amount to carry on the work. If we do not get that amount we will run only as long as the funds last—then close down. We refuse to carry a deficit as was done last year."
