

EGGS ADVANCE WITH DEMANDS FOR STORAGE

Portland, Mar. 3.—Local egg jobbers and storage operators are now generally of the opinion that the market has seen its low point for some time to come. Some are still of the opinion that a 25 cent storage level will still prevail.

Receipts have been good during the past twenty-four hours but stocks were well absorbed and values on the exchange advanced a point on extras to 22 cents while current receipts gained a half cent, being posted at 27 1/2 cents. Other grades are steady and unchanged.

There is a brisk demand now for fancy eggs for storage and jobbers are canvassing the country for supplies. Eggs are going into the cooler on a large scale although many will wait until the latter part of March to put away their requirements, believing that eggs at that time will show better keeping qualities.

Butter continues to hold firm, although standard cubes eased off a cent on the exchange to 45 cents. Extras are still bid at 48 1/2 cents with the daily make hardly sufficient for requirements. Other grades of butter are unchanged.

Country dressed eggs are in moderate demand and the market has a good healthy tone. Fancy eggs are bringing as high as 16 1/2 and 17 cents along the street while choice light weight moved out at 14 1/2 to 15 cents. Hog prices are nearing a record.

WOMAN MAY GET BACK PAY THRU ERROR IN BILL

Kathleen Mills, county treasurer of Tillamook county, through what is doubtless an error in house bill 218, has a right to collect from Miller county nearly $1800 in back salary.

The bill, which was introduced by Representative Winslow, increases the salary of the Tillamook county treasurer from $1200 to $1500. Evidently the act, which is an amendment to an existing statute, intended to make the increase effective March 1, 1925. Instead the year in the amended act was not changed, so the increase dates from March 1, 1915. The bill has been signed by the governor.

2000 ACRE FLAX SIGN UP IS NOW THAT ASSURED

With approximately 1600 acres already signed up out of the 2000 acres needed under prison flax contracts, it is believed the 2000-acre flax sign up will go over, although at a meeting at Astoriaville last week, attended by H. C. Miles of the linen mill and superintendent Crawford of the flax plant, it was made against the contractor's offer.

The protest on the part of Astoriaville farmers continues to be because of the price, particularly the price offered for flax 30 inches in length or over. The Astoriaville farmers say that the 30 inch flax is only a remote possibility for them, in fact virtually an impossibility. They declare they can raise 28 inch or 26 inch flax but not the longer flax, and that the length has been boosted just sufficiently to get them out on the highest price. They declare that by raising 28 inch flax they will be brought under the lower price and the state reap all the advantage.

With 2000 acres contracted this, it is estimated, will provide 200 tons of fiber, all that the prison plant can handle.

President Miles of the new linen mill is satisfied that there will be a sufficiency of flax for the mill's purposes.

He has contracted for 45 tons of the 1925 crop and 150 tons for the 1926 crop. The prison has on hand about 100 tons. Fifteen tons were shipped to Astoriaville last week. All sold by the contractor. There will be a sufficient amount of flax to meet the needs of the mill.

The question of quality is one paramount in the minds of the mill people, rather than of length. Weather conditions may affect the crop somewhat, particularly as to length, and if an extraordinary dry season, pop up the length may be reduced but if the quality is there it will be satisfactory to the mill people. They pay just as much for the shorter fiber as for the long fiber.

Work on construction of the new plant on the Fairgrounds road is scheduled to start this afternoon. There will be no basement and work of laying the foundation will start immediately.

STATE MONEY FOR HOSPITAL DIES BY VETO

able until the building for the hospital should have been completed and accepted by the board of regents of the University of Oregon. The hospital was to be under the supervision of the state university medical school.

In his veto message on the land settlement commission bill the governor intimates that he will veto appropriation bills totaling about $500,000. He says: "This bill appropriates $15,000 from the general fund for the use of the land settlement commission to buy stock, equipment and pay outstanding obligations. It is necessary at this time to veto appropriations amounting to approximately $500,000, and I believe this is one place where we can retrench without serious loss. I recommend that the commission sell one of the three farms they now have, and use the money to improve the remaining two."

Governor Pierce also vetoed house bill 232, introduced by Representative Shelton, which proposed to grant to holders of water right certificates the right to hold such rights indefinitely beyond the 40 year period provided by the present statute.

"The present law gives to appropriators of water and investors in hydro-electric power plants all the right, power and privileges that it seems to be should be granted, except a few minor changes to make the present law conform exactly to the federal statutes," says the veto message. "This proposed measure, house bill No. 232, goes further and by certain provisions and limitations, will, I fear, create a condition detrimental to the interests of the people."

reported the presence of any suspicious machines in that neighborhood during the night. A woman living on the second floor of the building reported this morning that she was awakened about 3 o'clock, but did not know what had disturbed her sleep.

Officers who investigated the robbery were inclined to scout the idea that the robbery may have been an inside job, pointing out that the method of operation brand it to be the work of the gang which perpetrated the other robberies. It has been generally conceded that this gang probably operates out of Portland in high-powered automobiles, and upon information furnished by scouts who go over the ground of contemplated robberies carefully.

ROBBERS PICK ONLY QUALITY MERCHANDISE

the second story of the building. The hall opens through windows onto an air well at the bottom of which the skylight is located. The robbers entered the air well through one of these windows, pried open the skylight and dropped into the store room.

Familiar With Ground. As in all of the other jobs laid to this gang, a thorough familiarity with the store and the goods of value was shown by the robbers. Without disturbing the bulk of the stock they selected from the piles of merchandise that had been laid out in preparation of the sale that opens in the store tomorrow, only the choice articles, their discrimination indicating that they had made a thorough study of the store and its stock, as well as the safest means of entering and leaving the building.

Their looting accomplished, the gang secured a stepladder from the basement and made their escape through the skylight they entered.

The complete absence of finger prints or other clues indicates that all of the robbers wore rubber gloves and were adepts at the work.

Think Auto Used. The police are certain that the stolen goods were carted away in an automobile, yet none of the night patrolmen on the beat have confers of action open to me. I should be freed from business cares and be given sufficient salary so that they may give all of their time and ability to the legal work before them.

"I loved the girl dearly and had no reason for taking her life and if I am responsible for her death I murdered her in a fit of temporary insanity."

Dr. Blazer said he had been subject recently to temporary memory lapses and for that reason had given up his practice. He said that during his professional career he had known persons who would have been better off had they died in their infancy but disclaimed that he had ever felt that way about his child woman-daughter.

"She enjoyed herself, enjoyed her food and while she could neither walk nor help herself she knew almost all that was going on and I believe she enjoyed life."

When intimated that he might be shaming loss of memory and that he might be shrewd enough to baffle authorities, he said: "I will have to abide by a decision of the jury."

made by slashing his throat. Bishop and his wife lived in the Blazer home.

"The details of that afternoon," said the physician, "when my daughter was found dead in bed beside me are not clear. I cannot seem to recall any of the happenings of that day.

"I loved the girl dearly and had no reason for taking her life and if I am responsible for her death I murdered her in a fit of temporary insanity."

Dr. Blazer said he had been subject recently to temporary memory lapses and for that reason had given up his practice. He said that during his professional career he had known persons who would have been better off had they died in their infancy but disclaimed that he had ever felt that way about his child woman-daughter.

"She enjoyed herself, enjoyed her food and while she could neither walk nor help herself she knew almost all that was going on and I believe she enjoyed life."
