SUN YAT-SEN SOUTH CHINA LEADER DEAD

He asked also that he be buried at Manjing.

The body was sent to the Rockefeller hospital for embalming. Orders have been cabled to Moscow for a casket similar to that used for the burial of Lenin.

Dr. Sun was conscious until the last. He gave instructions to his wife about personal matters. He talked rationally to his political associates and only yesterday first accepted the fact that his end was near. In his will, executed last night, he left his house and his books to his wife. It is said that the estate of Dr. Sun was a modest one. His will emphasized his political wishes and the desire for party unity and peace in the ranks of his adherents, deprecating any attempt at a revolution of the political philosophy of his associates.

The body will lie in state at some public place to be selected today.

Dr. Sun died at the home of Dr. William Koo, a former leader in the central government of China before the defeat of Chang So Lin last year.

Followers To Carry On
Peking, Mar. 12.—(By Associated Press)—The death of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, first president of the Chinese republic will not affect the affairs of the Kuomintang party, comprising followers of Dr. Sun, leaders of the party said today.

After leaving the room in which they heard their dying leader plead for party solidarity in his last words, the Kuomintang chiefs were said to be preparing a circular telegram to the provinces announcing the death of Dr. Sun.

The leaders denied a report that a serious split was impending in the Kuomintang party.

STOKES ASSAILED AS "DOLLAR MARKED OCTOPUS" BY SMITH

know whose they were. Yet he swore in an affidavit it was Mrs. Stokes and Hal Billig. And Mr. Stokes took that affidavit, but he didn't use it in his divorce suit. He knew it was not true, and that it would not stand up in court.

"And that man Hanson, I contend, came into this court and voluntarily committed perjury. He came into this court and swore he recognized Mrs. Stokes from a picture taken 20 years before."

Buckle and Hanson are sleeping car conductors.

Smith referred to the paragraph in a letter Stokes wrote to E. W. Altz, a Chicago detective, informing him to see Stanley Joyce, husband of Peggy Hopkins Joyce.

"He said 'see Joyce and find out what he knows, and if he wants
