LIQUOR RUNNERS UNDER GUARD AFTER CONFESSING

San Francisco, Mar. 14.—Reported death threats against three of the government's principal witnesses in the case of the suspected rum runner Quarda, Canadian ship seized here last October, resulted today in placing a heavy guard about the men. The confessed liquor runners who turned state evidence are Ed Magruder and the Crivello brothers, Salvatore and Mariano. Testimony of the three tended to implicate Vincente Quarataro, wealthy San Francisco bond broker and C. H. Bellanger, a director of the Canadian exports consolidated Ltd., of Vancouver, B. C., as principals in an alleged coast wide rum running ring.

The latest reported threats link Magruder with the tragedy of last Tuesday when the fisherman Nicolau, member of the fishermen's union was found shot to death in his room in a hotel here. A friend of Nicolau intimated he had been killed to prevent his testifying in the Quarda case, in which he was to have appeared that day as a witness for the government. Nicolau was shot at the hotel where Nicolau was shot and government officials have received information that Magruder was the man the alleged slayers of Nicolau were after.

Another possible complication is the reported disappearance of a considerable quantity of the liquor seized on the Quarda between its unloading and storage in a government warehouse.

SENATE ROW BREAKS OVER COUZEN CASE

ed a colloquy with Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire. Senator Ernest, who previously had sought unsuccessfully to interrupt the speech of Senator Couzens, arose and said:

"Mr. President, I wish to ask if there are any rules of the senate that would permit me to call a fellow senator a wilful, malicious, wicked liar as I wish to avail myself of this rule."

Senator Glass leaped to his feet, shouting that the Kentuckian should say specifically to whom he was referring, and Senator Robinson, Arkansas, the democratic leader, jumped from his seat demanding the right to make a point of order. He drowned out Senator Ernest, who was attempting to speak and placed himself directly in the pathway of Senator Glass, who had started across the chamber toward the republican side.

Borah Retires Order. Senator Reed of Pennsylvania sought unsuccessfully to throw the senate into executive session, so it could dispose of its troubles behind closed doors. There was a chorus of objections and while Senator Reed of Ohio, who was presiding, pondered for order, Senator Borah of Idaho began a speech which eventually brought committeesman to call Camp at the Belmont hotel. The hotel operator reported that the ocean's room did not answer, whereupon Tupper was dispatched across town to the Belmont. Failing to get an answer to repeated knockings on Camp's door, Tupper summoned a hotel attendant who gained entrance with a pass key.

WALTER CAMP DIES SUDDENLY IN HOTEL ROOM

Camp, in his pajamas appeared to be sleeping in his bed, but an examination showed that he had been dead for several hours.

Walter Camp, Jr., the coach's son who is a New York business man, was summoned immediately.

A host of famous gridiron stars at Yale, many of whom are now successful mentors of college elevens throughout the country received their football training under Mr. Camp's personal supervision. Before the present highly developed coaching system in American colleges was adopted, Mr. Camp was for many years the guiding genius of the sport at Yale.

Year after year, when the sons of Eli were supreme in the football world, Mr. Camp was the power back of that supremacy.

After Walter Camp, Jr., himself at Yonkers, N. Y., was back in town, he talked by telephone with his mother in New Haven. It was decided to take the body to that city tomorrow.

very that they should disappear, and undoubtedly they were informed by the senator from Kentucky so that they might do those things."

Ernst Makes Denial

"I have never heard of any papers disappearing from the files," Senator Ernst said in reply to this assertion when he finally was permitted to speak. "Nor have I ever been asked by the treasury to get any papers."

When Senator Ernst added that "no one believes such a statement is true," Senator Robinson objected and Mr. Ernst replied:

"If my mild mannered friend here was in the position I'm in there would be a knock down and drag out battle."

Much of the discussion revolved about Senator Couzens' 1919 tax law return to which the treasury now is seeking to add more than $10,000,000. Senator Glass, who was secretary of the treasury during that year, told the senate he was convinced that Secretary Mellon had re-opened the case "simply because he and the senate from Michigan hate one another and would go to any limit to discredit one another."

 "How magnificent Mr. Skinner plays 'Sancho Panza'! There is the richness of oil in his splendid voice and the unctious of a fine big nature in his action, and though he has been playing the part for two years now, his impersonation has all the freshness and spontaneity of a first performance. It is one of the gems one may put away to glow over from time to time, and smile or even laugh aloud at the memory."—George Warren, San Francisco Chronicle.

is used by many of the more critical poultry men, because they know CHERRO is one of the first and only feed that has maintained a low fibered feed regardless of price fluctuation of raw products.

Of eleven different Poultry Feeds made by Cherro manufacturers, only one contains over 5% fiber and only one Dairy Feed contains over 10% of fiber. These high standards have no equal.

This means pure and wholesome feeds always consider the quality of protein as well as quantity.
