MARKETING COST OF GASOLINE IS HELD EXCESSIVE

Kansas City, Mo., Mar. 18—Duplication in marketing costs with resultant wide margin between tank car and tank wagon prices for gasoline, was held accountable for conditions detrimental to the oil industry in an address prepared for delivery before the American Oil Men's association convention by Paul B. Erickson here today.

He suggested as possible solutions reduction in the number of filling stations and sale of gasoline to retailers on a sliding scale, depending on the volume of their monthly consumption.

He declared disbelief in the efficacy of "doping" gasoline, and urged that distribution be given to the product rather by "jealously guarding the quality of gasoline and by giving it a trade marked name."

A saving of $10,000,000,000 in the American oil industry annually may be effected through a broad application of simplification and standardization, R. M. Hudson, chief of the division of simplified practice of the United States department of commerce, said in an address prepared for presentation at the convention. Mr. Hudson said that that amount represented almost as much as the total investment in the petroleum industry, which he stated has made considerable progress in standardizing pipe, drilling, equipment and sales.

Mr. Hudson said that the Hoover committee of 18 prominent American engineers on waste in industry had disclosed that waste in six typical cities was close to 50 per cent.

SHIPPING BOARD SAYS SHIP SALES ARE GOOD

Washington, Mar. 18—Sales of shipping board vessels to private interests the past six months have been very gratifying, in the opinion of Chairman O'Conner of the board, who in a statement today, favored an extremely liberal "sales policy" in order to get the remainder of the government's fleet into private hands for continued operation unde rthe American flag.

During the last six months the statement said the shipping board has sold to American citizens more than 30 vessels of 176,898 dead weight tons for approximately $2,500,000.

"The board has under negotiations at the present time prospective sales of additional passenger and freight vessels, on lines now operated by the government," the chairman said.

Shepherd in Toils Thru Persistence Of Victim's Friend

Chicago, March 18. — William Nelson McClintock, known as the "millionaire orphan," died at the home of his foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Shepherd last December 4, while his fiancee, Miss Isabelle Pope, waited with a marriage license to wed him.

By the terms of a will brought forth by Shepherd and drawn up by him shortly after young McClintock reached his 21st birthday, nearly a year ago, his entire estate, valued at upward of $1,500,000, was left to Shepherd except for an annuity of $5000 which the will directed be given to Miss Pope, although no provision for the annuity was made.

Three weeks after McClintock's death, Judge Harry Olson, chief justice of the municipal court and a lifelong friend of the McClintock family, asked that the young millionaire's body be exhumed and an inquest held.

Judge Olson expressed the belief that McClintock had not died a natural death and that he had been the victim of typhoid inoculation or of poison. A chemical analysis of the body showed that death was due to typhoid fever, although the coroner's chemists did not venture an opinion as to how the fever was contracted and admitted that certain poisons might not show in a chemical analysis after death.

When the investigation was launched Shepherd and his wife, the latter a co-guardian of the youth until he became of age, were in Albuquerque, N. M. Shepherd returned here but after the chemical analysis announced that the findings had completely exonerated him and he went back to New Mexico.

In the meantime several cousins and other relatives of young McClintock had indicated an intention of trying to break the will and Shepherd charged repeatedly that the investigation was simply a ruse to prejudice public opinion against him in the will contest.

An inquest into the youth's death was continued from time to time and is now scheduled to be resumed, March 23, while a hearing on the will was scheduled for March 17.

During the inquest, Judge Olson charged that the death of his brother, Dr. Oscar Olson, the McClintock family physician, occurred under mysterious circumstances shortly after he had been visited by Shepherd, and asked that his brother's body also be exhumed and examined. This has not been done. Judge Olson also declared there were mysterious circumstances in the death of young McClintock's mother that should be investigated.

It was not until information was given that Shepherd had made a study of bacterology and had made many inquiries about bacteria inoculation that the state's attorney's office began an active investigation.

Charles Faiman, president of the scientific school specializing in bacteriological courses, gave the information which implicated Shepherd directly in the case when he said that Shepherd had gone to his school, had taken a course there and inquired about typhoid bacilli inoculation, declaring that he, as an attorney, might be called on to defend a client accused of causing the death of a person by germ inoculation.

Faiman said he advised that the only way such inoculation could be carried out without detection was to give the germs in food. Shortly after the appearance of Shepherd at the school, three tubes of bacilli, one of them containing typhoid germs, disappeared, according to Faiman's story.

He also declared that Shepherd went to his office shortly after McClintock's death and took a letter written by Shepherd and inquiring about courses at the school.

Possession of the McClintock millions for years has been followed by ill luck.

McClintock's father was killed in an automobile accident. Later the mother died after asking the Shepherds to rear her son.

San Francisco, Cal., March 18.—Several shots were exchanged early today when a posse of police descended upon Hunters Point landing here and surprised the crew of a rum runner unloading cargo into an automobile. The auto was driven away and the rum runner put to sea safely after shots from both police and the bootleg craft went wild. No liquor was seized.
