

MRS. J. A. CARSON TO AGAIN HEAD COUNTY HEALTH

Mrs. John A. Carson was re-elected president of the Marion County Health Association at its meeting in Salem yesterday. Other elections were as follows:

First vice-president, Mrs. C. W. Keene, of Silverton; second vice-president, Mrs. H. Overton, of Woodburn; secretary, Miss Elizabeth Putnam, of Salem; treasurer Mrs. F. A. Elliott, of Salem.

Speakers at the session were Dr. Walter H. Brown, of the Marion County Child Health Demonstration, Sadie Orr Dunbar, of Portland, Earl Knott, of the extension department of the University of Oregon, County Superintendent Mary L. Fulkerson and Rowan Wheelan of Portland. Mayor Gleay gave the address of welcome.

The meeting convened at the Salem chamber of commerce rooms at 10:30 a. m., going to the Gray Hotel for lunch at noon, and remaining in session until late in the afternoon.

Mrs. Carson gave a detailed report of the association's activities during the past year. She has been head of the organization since its first inception in the county four years ago. The present plan of the association is to work in conjunction with the Marion County Child Health Demonstration during the five years it continues in Marion county, and take over its work at the close of that period.

These Women

A Review by Myla Jo Closser

In another decade or two, says that cheerful philosopher William Johnston in his new book "These Women," all the Home-and-Mother songs will have to be rewritten. "The next generation will remember Mother as a hustling creature with a permanent wave rushing off to the office." In spite of his humor, the philosopher does not like the prospect. "What can be done about it?" you ask. Read "These Women" and see what its author suggests.

There never was a more fair-minded critic than Bill Johnston. He speaks out his plain, shrewd observations on men, women and their relation to each other with a clarity which will appeal to everyone. "These Women" is a good book for young people—it is a good book for older ones too. Eighteen may profit by it. Eighty will enjoy it, even if it is a little late to reform. And in spite of the title, women are going to get as much satisfaction as men from its pithy, direct and withal sympathetic discussion. For Mr. Johnston admits, with disarming candor, that men are naturally lazy, selfish and prone to petty tyranny. After that, what woman could refuse to admit that he is right about women too?

You know how a perplexed and troubled person often seeks counsel from a stranger. It is a common human impulse which makes the Write-In-For-Advice department of newspapers well patronized. William Johnston's own magazine articles bring down such an avalanche of mail that one editor has had to protest. Now in "These Women" he condenses a lifetime of such counsel; and without your bothering to write a letter, he answers a number of vexing questions which most of us wrestle with at one time or another.

Why women don't marry, and why men won't. To what part of a husband's income has a wife a right? What price does woman pay for success in business? Are wives ever satisfied? What's wrong with parents? Where will homogeneity end?

Homogeneity? Oh, that's a word William Johnston has coined. It is not in the dictionary yet, but at the rate we are going—he says—it soon will be. It's meaning? You must read "These Women" and discover.

PLOT TO KIDNAP DANCING GIRL IS TOLD BY UNCLE

Bombay, March 28.—(By Associated Press)—The prosecution in the trial of the nine men charged with attempting to abduct the dancing girl Mumtaz began after her escape from the household of the Maharajah of Indore today called to the witness stand the girl's uncle, Alla Bux Wasir.

The authorities are endeavoring to prove that the affray on Malabar hill, Bombay, the evening of January 12, in which the wealthy merchant Abdul Kadir Baula was killed, was the result of an elaborate plot to return the girl to the Maharajah of whom she had been the favorite.

Baula was with the girl when attacked by a gang and in the ensuing fight in which knives played a part, Mumtaz was slashed across the face and a British lieutenant was injured. Mumtaz yesterday testified she had gone to the Maharajah's court first as a singing girl and that later she became the ruler's mistress.

Her uncle testified today after she had fled from the court he had been called to Indore where he was told the Maharajah wanted him. Upon his arrival, he said, he was informed by two of the accused men that he would be given assistance if he helped capture the girl.

The arson took place at Woodburn about two years ago. Sinclair and his father-in-law, Arthur D. Mason, were both implicated. Mason was in jail about three months prior to the time set for his trial, but before the trial pleaded guilty and was paroled from the bench. After his arrest in Portland, Sinclair, under a pretext of going home to see his family before going to jail, made his escape and went to Ohio. He is now in the Marion county jail and will be tried at the next term of court.

NOVELTY ACT AT BLIGH SUNDAY

Can you imagine George White, Courtney Slators, Pearl Regay, Sophie Tucker, the Dooleys, Ruth St. Denis and Gull Curri on one vaudeville bill, or better still in one act on a bill? The five talented members, two men and three women of "Footlight Fantasies," the headline attraction on the Hippodrome bill at the Bligh Sunday, bring exacting impersonations of this galaxy of stars together in their "Reproductions of Broadway Stars." The individual members of the company have made a careful study of the stars they impersonate and all have their individual mannerisms perfected.

Mr. Duncan is one of the original as well as the star roper of the famous Miller Bros. 101 Ranch wild west show. This is his initial appearance in vaudeville, having been recruited from the range on account of his record as a cow-puncher and champion roper of the round-ups and rodeos. He has a pleasing line of conversation which he will give with his other work.

Harry Long and William Jaxon, the suburban babies, are two clever comedians, singers and dancers, of a different source, whose quaint comedy and eccentric dancing will be the cause of much laughter.

With surprises, laughs and much genuine entertainment, Roth and Slater will offer "The Wop and the Flapper." The vehicle affords Roth an opportunity to display his inimitable Italian characterizations.

Nora Jane and Karl, with the billing of "Dancing De Luxe," will come in for their share of the honors on the new bill.

LESTER BROUGHT BACK FROM OHIO

L. J. Lester, an operative for the state fire marshal's department, returned yesterday from Toledo, Ohio, with Walter Sinclair, who is wanted in Marion county to answer to a charge of burning trucks.

The arson took place at Woodburn about two years ago. Sinclair and his father-in-law, Arthur D. Mason, were both implicated. Mason was in jail about three months prior to the time set for his trial, but before the trial pleaded guilty and was paroled from the bench. After his arrest in Portland, Sinclair, under a pretext of going home to see his family before going to jail, made his escape and went to Ohio. He is now in the Marion county jail and will be tried at the next term of court.
