Pioneer Electrical Engineer, Brother of Salem Man, Is Dead

The family of J. J. Nunn of Salem has received information of the death in Los Angeles of Lucian L. Nunn, brother of the Salem man, and noted throughout the United States for his work as a hydro-electric engineer and developer. He was a man of wealth and his philanthropies reached into the millions, mostly given for the education of young men. He had never married. Miss Ella Nunn of Salem is a sister. The funeral was held Tuesday of this week in Los Angeles and J. J. Nunn of Salem attended. The center of the eminent engineer's business activity was Salt Lake, but his home was in Los Angeles.

The Salt Lake Tribune of April 3 says of Mr. Nunn: "Lucian L. Nunn, pioneer developer of hydro-electric power in the west and a philanthropist noted for his educational work, died yesterday in Los Angeles after a long illness. Mr. Nunn was 72 years of age and until the past few years had been a resident of Utah.

"Mr. Nunn built the first high-tension electric transmission line in the world, developing a transmission system that carried 40,000 volts from his plant on the Provo river to the Mercury mining camp. He achieved international recognition through his services in engineering and building the first power plant at Niagara Falls for the Ontario Power company, then the biggest power plant in the world.

"In pioneering electrical development in Utah and Idaho, Mr. Nunn put plants first on the Provo and Logan rivers, later at Grace Idaho. These plants and the construction of Bear lake as a storage reservoir were the nucleus from which has been developed the power which now serves most of Utah and much of Idaho. Other works that he inaugurated were plants at Malad, Idaho, on the Madison river in Montana and at Casper, Wyoming.

"Trained for the legal profession at Harvard university and in Germany universities, Mr. Nunn became interested in hydro-electric undertakings through his connection with mining operations in Telluride, Colo., where he first began to work out high voltage transmission.

"There being at the time virtually no men trained for this character of work, Mr. Nunn began the education to which in later years he devoted a great deal of attention and a large part of his considerable fortune. It was estimated last night that Mr. Nunn has given upwards of $2,000,000 to educational work through the Telluride association and the Deep Springs organization. Through these organizations hundreds of men have been given theoretical and practical experience in power work, later finishing their training at Cornell and other institutions of higher learning.

"With Mr. Nunn at the time of his death was a brother, P. N. Nunn. He is survived by another brother, J. J. Nunn of Salem, Or., and two sisters, Mrs. Emily N. Whitman of Ithaca, N. Y., and Miss Ellen Nunn of Salem, Or. Announcement of funeral arrangements will be made later."

BURKHART SIGHS SIGH OF RELIEF

Deputy Sheriff Sam Burkhardt, who has locked jail and prison doors off and on for a great many years, passed a bad night last night when the inference crept out that he may have in some way been responsible for leaving unlocked the door at the city jail through which Ray Hill made his way yesterday for a brief period of freedom. Burkhardt had been at the jail in the morning rather early to look Hill over, thinking he may have been connected with some offense that had been reported. When he went out he asked Chief Minto if he wanted the door locked and Minto said yes. Burkhardt snapped the padlock. The next he knew it was reported Burkhardt might have not snapped it.

He breathed a big sigh of relief when it became definitely established that the janitor had been at fault.

"I knew I locked that padlock," said Burkhardt. "Apparently some of the others didn't think so."
