VON HINDENBURG TELLS STAND ON GERMAN TOPICS

London, April 20.—Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, who hitherto has refused interviews, says Reuters correspondent at Hanover, consented to reply to a questionnaire submitted by the correspondent.

"The field marshal declined to answer a question as to whether he would prefer to see the former kaiser on the throne to being himself president," says the correspondent.

Asked whether he was prepared to sign a security pact guaranteeing the frontiers of France and Belgium, he replied that this matter was still the subject of international discussion and therefore he could not personally intervene.

Asked whether he was of the opinion that the present eastern frontier of Germany must be altered in Germany's favor, Von Hindenburg is quoted as replying:

"I share this opinion with all other Germany, but in order to not endanger peace the question must bet settled by negotiations."

Asked " will you, when president, do all in your power to see that the military clauses of the Versailles treaty are fulfilled?" he answered: "The treaty is binding for us until it is altered by a new agreement between the parties to the treaty. The military prescriptions of the treaty are naturally part of the fulfillment of the treaty."

To the final question as to whether Germany was capable of a defensive war, Von Hindenburg replied:

"My opinion as a military expert is that Germany is not even capable of defending herself against a small neighboring state, for states like Poland and Czecho-Slovakia possess much bigger standing armies than we do and are protected by military alliances so that, in any event, we should be confronted by a power whose armament was much superior to ours."

PIERCE LAYS CLAIM TO TAX PLEDGE NOW

b name, have virtually no direct state tax levy, according to the governor.

"The last Oregon state legislature—late lamented—was an ordinary legislature. Most of them wanted to do the right thing," declared Pierce. "The main trouble was that there were too many cliques and bands. Organization of the legislature was effected weeks in advance of the session. It would have been much better for every member of each house to come to the legislature a free man."

He intimated that there was too much trading of votes and log rolling measures through.

Session Reviewed.

"The real issue of the last session," said the governor, "was the merging of various factions with the governor, and an agreement on levying revenue without direct tax on property. I believe in raising money without direct tax on home owners and producers.

"The farmer needs it—all you can give him. No particular party is to blame for the fact, but rather economic conditions of our country. The relief of the direct state tax on farmers has been begun; I would like to see it carried further, but if nothing more is done I will feel that my trip down here to Salem has not been in vain."

He referred to the state tax on tobacco, stating that in his opinion it would raise more money than had been estimated. He expressed the opinion that the public service commission should be appointed by the governor, and fo out of office with him.

Referring briefly to the handling of state institutions while he has been in office, Pierce stated that a new boys' training school of modern type is being established at Woodburn, and that the state penitentiary is gradually becoming self-suporting. He admitted that he had found the latter to be a harder task than he had anticipiated.

Concluding his address, the governor declared, "I've tried to do my duty as I've seen it, and my term in office has been in the main a real pleasure to me."

cially, telephoned to Mr. Watts and told him about it. I told him if his child suffered from any physical defect that made attendance in public school dangerous for him, and he would furnish a doctor's statement to that effect, that I would give him permission to teach the child at home. He refused to do it.

"The first actual knowledge that either the truant officer or myself had that the child was suffering from a physical defect, was in the statement of Mr. Watts printed in the Capital Journal.

"While we have strictly enforced the truancy law, we never yet have refused to allow the teaching of a child at home when the request was accompanied by a doctor's statement."

Under the law a written permission from the county superintendent to teach a child at home is necessary to escape the penalty of the truancy law.

RACERS HANG UP 2 NEW RECORDS

Culver City, Cal., April 20.—Two world's records—those for the 25 and 50-mile distances—which had stood for nearly three years, were smashed here yesterday during the running of a five event automobile sprint program.

Harry Hartz drove to spring championship and a new record by winning the final heat of 50 miles in 22 minutes and 11 seconds, breaking the mark of 26 minutes, 1.92 seconds hung up at Beverly Hills, September 2, 1922, by Tommy Milton.

The other record for the day was established by Peter DePaolo, who in the second of four qualifying 25-mile heats which preceded the final 50-mile dash, eclipsed Tommy Milton's mark of 13 minutes 1.49 seconds by rounding the oval twenty times in 11 minutes, 6.60 seconds.

Of eleven starters in the final event, six finished in the order named: Harry Hartz, Peter DePaolo, Fred Comer, Frank Elliott, Bennett Hill and Robert McDonough.

San Bernardino, Cal., April 20.—Bobby Allen, welterweight boxer, is being held here in the county jail as a result of the death of Harry Simone, who died in a Los Angeles hospital Saturday night following a ten-round bout here Thursday. No action will be taken here until the verdict of a coroner's jury, which sits today in Los Angeles, has been ascertained.

Simone seemed in fair health for five hours after the bout, when he suddenly lapsed into unconsciousness. An operation failed to save his life. Death was thought due to some cerebral affliction.

Allen expressed grief here last night over the death of his opponent, declaring that he would never fight again.

Ashland high school won the championship in general typing, its team of 4 members averaging the fastest of any in the meet. The average time was 57.8 words a minute.

In answer to rumors that were said to have been given wide prominence, and to be absolutely unfounded, Dean Alden of Willamette university at chapel this morning made a request that any member of the student body who was under the impression that he had been appointed a "stool pigeon" to detect other students in infringement upon school regulations, come and see him privately. U. S. TYPE HOUSES INVADING GERMANY

Berlin.—Frame houses modeled upon American patterns, are beginning to be popular in Berlin. A whole section of wooden houses, a sight hitherto unknown in large German cities, is springing up on the extreme west end of the German metropolis.

The Germans have heretofore ridiculed the idea of wooden houses. Anything that did not last through several generations did not seem worth building to them. But today economic necesity has driven them to study the problem of the wooden house. To their surprise they find that wood has stood the test of time in America, where there are houses dating back to Colonial days. They are, therefore, trying out the wooden house idea, which they find much cheaper than stone and brick construction.

SAILSHIP NEARLY EXTINCT

Hull, Eng.—Windjammers have become so scarce on the high seas that today a sailing vessel of any kind attracts more or less attention in almost any port, and especially after a long voyage. In the eyes of seafaring men the full rigged ship is rapidly disappearing and it has been estimated that there are but 125 of this type of vessel in commission in all the world today. Of these only five are owned by British interests, compared with hundreds a few years ago.
